GRAND JURY QUIZZES ALCOCK

Wine and Beer Sale Recommended.

'We Have Had Enough'

Bay City, Mich., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The Bay City Daily Times, for many years ardent in support of prohibition, has gone wet editorially. An editorial today announcing a change in policy says in part:

"We have had enough. We have seen the Al Capones, the Legs Diamonds, the Bugs Morans challenge government. We have seen the saloon traded for the bootlegger and the racketeer; law for the rule of the gunman and the 'muscle-in' courts, somewhat, for the justice of 'the taker-for-a-ride.'

"Through all its years this newspaper has stood for law and order. Its policy is not changing. It still stands for law and order, but it is confused in its effort to find where law is and where order exists after ten years of prohibition."

Columbus, O., Nov. 21.—(AP)—C. C. Crabbe, former Ohio attorney general and author of the state's prohibition code, today declared he favors repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act and modification of the state prohibition enforcement code to permit the sale of light wine and beer under government supervision.

In advocating repeal of national prohibition, Mr. Crabbe said he favored leaving the matter of control to the states.

In advocating modification of the state enforcement code he said he favored "modification rather than nullification." He said he opposed return of the open saloon.

Sees Virtual Nullification.

Still advocating temperance, the former dry leader said he does "not feel that the present prohibition law had been respected by the people or enforced by public officials. It has been and is being practically nullified."

"I am still an advocate of temperance," Crabbe said. "I am, therefore, opposed to the complete abolition of laws designed to curb the traffic and use of liquor. But I am firmly convinced there should be some modification of the existing laws."

Crabbe explained that in order to obtain modification of the state enforcement code it would be necessary to repeal the national prohibition laws, as with national prohibition in force state laws could not conflict with the national law.

Would "Command Respect."

Modification of the enforcement law to meet the wish of a majority of the people would "command the respect of the people," he said.

"The present prohibition laws have not prevented the use of intoxicating liquor, but, on the contrary, have brought about a condition where more people are drinking now than ever before," Crabbe said.

With reference to the state enforcement code which bears his name and which was approved by referendum vote in November, 1920, Crabbe said:

"I believe that modification to permit light wines and beer would bring a situation preferable to present conditions. If the present law had been or could be enforced, I would oppose tampering with it."

State Control Proposed.

In his advocacy of repeal of the 18th amendment Crabbe said "the individual states could then enact and enforce the laws that meet the wishes of the people of the states. That would, I believe, do much to eliminate conditions that exist today, restore respect for laws, and in the final analysis promote temperance."

Under a system of state control Crabbe would have all liquor dispensed under strict state supervision and delivered to the home instead of permitting it to be drunk in saloons.

DRY FLAYS JUICE SALE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—This grape juice business has a kick in it.

It kicked today and demolished the good old harmony that once existed between Dr. Clarence True Wilson, head of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals, and Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt. When Mrs. Willebrandt was assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition cases she was known as "prohibition's Portia." But now, as attor

REALTY OWNERS BY THOUSANDS PROTEST TAXES

Extend Time for Filing Complaints.

More than 1,000 property owners, bearing every imaginable form of complaint against the 1929 assessment upon their real estate, jammed the rooms of the board of review in the county building yesterday. It was to have been the last day for filing complaints, but the crush was so great that Reviewer Charles V. Barrett announced that the period for making complaints would be extended one week. Therefore, taxpayers will have until midnight next Friday to state their grievances and the offices will be open each evening.

About 12,000 complaints have been filed in the last ten days, Bernard A. Weaver, chief clerk, declared, and the probability is that an additional 10,000 will be presented.

Men and women, some of prosperous appearance but the great majority apparently of the poorer classes, waited in line to file their complaints. They told of depreciated values in land, vacant flats, low rentals, heavy mortgages with interest due, unemployment and reduced wages.

Some Have No Grounds.

Each reason for a reduction in the assessment was noted on the complaints. Such pleas as poverty and loss of work, however, could not be regarded as legal reasons for a reduction. The assessment in such instances was admittedly just, no matter what the ability of the owner to pay taxes. Upon such complaints the clerks noted: "Insists on filing but has no grounds for complaint."

Whether the board members, in passing upon the complaints, would consider the circumstances of the property owners in deciding upon pleas for a reduction remained a question of policy to be acted upon when the hearings begin next week.

Thus it remained a question whether the petition of Mrs. Anna Stevens, 1024 Montrose avenue, would be successful. Two stores owned by Mrs. Stevens at 2424-36 North Clark street, which net her $300 a month in rentals, were given an assessed valuation of $11,361. Her tax bill will be more than $600.

She Supports Sick Husband.

"I've a sick husband to support," pleaded Mrs. Stevens. "We've no other income." But the clerk was forced to note: "No grounds for complaint."

The woes of a landlord were detailed by Jeremiah McAuliffe, who owns the three story brick building at 1351-53 Catalpa avenue, given an assessed valuation of $10,022, which means an approximate tax bill of $550.

"I get $3,600 a year total rent," wailed Mr. McAuliffe. "Coal costs $500, decorating $500, besides a janitor and general repairs. Where's the profit?"

Building 40 Years Old.

This discouraging notation, however, was not placed upon the complaint slip of Miss Mary Byrne, who lives on one floor of the two story flat building at 4123 West Congress street and rents the other. The building is forty years old, she stated, and she receives $30 a month rent from the other apartment.

"But it hasn't been rented for thirteen months and I was dead beat out of three months' rent before that," she told the clerk. "Now no one even comes to look at the flat."

An assessed valuation of $3,212 had been placed on her property, indicating an approximate bill of $175.

Made Over Barn Protested.

John Duncan, 934 West Elm street, Park Ridge, complains about the $2,585 assessed valuation upon a structure which he claimed was an old barn made over. His tax bill will exceed $150.

The valuations mentioned here, it should be noted, are the assessed valuations, which are approximately one-third of the full market values believed fair by the assessors.

Occasionally a well to do home owner appeared with a complaint. A typical one was offered by Henry De Clergue, who said he paid $30,000 for his three story home at 6332 Kenmore avenue in 1924.

"The building is virtually obsolete. It is thirty years old, and large flat buildings and a school have been built nearby," he said.

His property was given an assessed valuation of $20,719, or full market valuation of more than $60,000. His indicated tax bill was more than $1,100.

5 BANDITS RAID GAMBLING HOUSE IN CALUMET CITY

Five bandits, one carrying a machine gun and the others pistols, raided Andrew Finneran's big gambling resort at Calumet City last night, lining up twenty-five patrons against the wall and stripping them of their jewelry and money. All the house cash was said to have been taken, although the entire haul was estimated at not more than $800. One bandit was reported to have been shot by one of his pals, and a customer was grazed by the same bullet.

The holdup was staged at 6:30 o'clock in the evening, but no report of it was made to the police. On rumors of the holdup county highway police and Calumet City officers began an investigation and found the place dark. From outside sources they learned the details of the robbery.

The wounded bandit was shot in the abdomen, a companion mistaking him for a customer attempting to escape from the hall. He was dragged away when his companions left.

Early this morning the police were hunting Finneran and John Perry, floor man at the resort. Finneran's place has been raided a dozen times by state's attorney's police.

Rumors Insist Red Dictator Is Murdered

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—[Saturday]—Despite a denial from Moscow by the official Tass News agency, persistent rumors are circulating in London that the Russian dictator, Joseph Stalin, has been murdered. The Russian embassy in London declares that it knows nothing concerning the reports.

THE TRIBUNE'S correspondents in various other European capitals report that similar rumors are current in their territories. THE TRIBUNE correspondent at Copenhagen reported at 1 a. m. as follows:

"According to cables just received from Moscow everything is calm there. Moscow denounces the assassination rumors as nonsense. Helsingfors tonight had phone connection with the Finnish legation at Moscow which stated everything is peaceful."

Report Two New Mutinies.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—Despite official assertions from Moscow that all is quiet in Russia, the Berlin correspondent of the Daily Express today telegraphed additional reports of disorder which he said had evaded the censorship.

The correspondent said the alleged mutiny of two Red battalions near Moscow Wednesday was confirmed by new dispatches today and added that two other mutinies had occurred—one at Leningrad and another in the navy at Kronstadt.

It was also reported that one Peters, labeled "the notorious executioner of the ogpu" (secret police), had been given authority to take two batteries of artillery to Moscow and "cleanse the Red army."

The correspondent added that Kork, commander of the Moscow military district, and Tuchachevski of the Leningrad area was ordered to relinquish their posts.

Stalin Exiles Foes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 21.—Dictator Stalin is reported to have foiled another attempt to oust him from the post of general secretary of the communist party and, with Commissar Menshinski's assurance that the cheka is loyally supporting him, is said to be taking stern action against his enemies, who are following a former group of plotters to Siberian exile. The deposed Commissar Tomski, former head of the soviet trade union, has been sent to Novosibersk. The repentance of former Commissars Bukharin and Rykov is expected to save them from a similar fate.

BARE BIG BRITISH FUND TO GAMBLE ON U. S. DOLLARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—[Saturday.]—British treasury officials have a secret fund of $165,000,000 with which they gambled in American dollars when the exchange was favorable in order to pay back the British debts to America. This was revealed in the British blue book just issued by the government.

It was also revealed that the treasury has been able to show a profit from these gambling transactions in American money of $8,470,000, leaving the original capital untouched. The fund first existed in 1915, and 1916, when a credit vote of $265,000,000 was made for war purposes. Of this sum $100,000,000 was subsequently paid back to the exchequer.

It was revealed that battles have raged around the fund because Whitehall officials wished to keep it intact to enable them to gamble on the American market when dollars were cheapest, and they have up to now won the battle, but it is hinted that the fund may be used to relieve some of the burdens on taxpayers.

If You're a Smith Brother Don't Sleep in a Deer Run

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Pat Upham of Gouberville, Mich., has chinchillas that would qualify him as one of the Smith brothers. He went deer hunting yesterday. He sat on a log beside a deer run in Munuscong swamp and went to sleep. He was awakened by a tugging at his hirsute appendage. Two big bucks were nibbling at it. Upham was so startled and so eager to save his whiskers that he forgot to shoot.

Passengers in 2 Cars Trapped Under Water

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Floods which have caused millions of dollars' damage throughout France and which were responsible for a number of catastrophes, including the recent Lyon landslide, at 10 o'clock tonight caused a spectacular train wreck in which 40 to 50 persons may have perished. Railway officials said they believed the death list would not be high.

The Paris-Nantes express, roaring through the night at 50 miles per hour, hit a low stretch of track paralleling the river Loire near Nantes, where the roadbed had been undermined by the water, and jumped the track. The locomotive and first two cars of the train plunged into the river.

Killed Trying to Prevent Wreck.

The engineer and an unidentified switchman, who heroically stood in the path of the onrushing engine trying to stop the train, were killed instantly. The exact number of passengers drowned in their compartments or carried away by the current in trying to escape has not been determined. One ma nwas rescued after standing up to his neck in water for over an hour, unable to move. Six persons in the rear cars were badly injured.

First reports said all the 40 to 50 occupants of the two passenger cars were killed.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

MARSEILLES, Nov. 21. — Grave fears were entertained here tonight for the safety of a number of passengers aboard an Italian commercial air liner which left Barcelona at 8:30 a. m. today and is believed to have been forced to alight on the water somewhere between that Spanish port and this city. A thick fog has hung over the Mediterranean throughout the day and has foiled all efforts by boats to search for the missing seaplane.

THIRTY DIE IN QUAKE

TIRANA, Albania, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Thirty persons were reported killed during a violent earth shock at 3 o'clock this morning in the Valona region. Most of the damage occurred in the towns of Messaplik, Palaze, Terkoel, and Dermi. Many others were injured and numerous houses were destroyed.

THREE LONESOME SISTERS WALK TO DEATH IN OCEAN

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Waves tonight washed ashore the body of the third of the three sisters who, hand in hand, waded into the sea yesterday seeking death as relief from lonesome old age.

The victim was Miss Jessie Miller, 60, "little sister" of Mrs. Ada McKeon, 65, widow, and Miss Abbie Miller, 63, whose bodies were washed ashore yesterday an hour after they walked into the water, fearful, they explained in a letter to their brother, they "would not be able to get out far enough."

The brother, Ralph D. Miller, 72, said the plight of his sisters was not as serious as they believed. In their letters to him, received too late to frustrate the carefully planned act, they left deeds to property at Cheyenne, Wyo.; Littleton, Colo., and notices that property they had owned here was lost for foreclosure recently.

Normal Buying the Surest Cure for the Present Ills

When people are sick, the obvious remedy to use is the one that will put them back on their feet in the shortest possible time. Very few people would dose themselves with something they knew would aggravate their condition or prolong the ailment.

The people who seek to relieve their hard times feelings by reducing their expenditures are simply administering the wrong medicine. Curtailed buying in times of depression serves only to aggravate a light case into a heavier one.

This much is certain. There is a specific remedy which can do a lot toward curing the present economic ills. Everybody whose income is sustained is in a position to administer it. It is simply this: Resume normal buying for normal needs. This will speed the recovery of business and help get rid of unemployment more quickly than anything else.

ASK CHIEF FOR FACTS ON CRIME AND TRANSFERS

Acting Police Commissioner John H. Alcock was before the grand jury yesterday as a witness in its investigation of the police department. It was understood that, in addition to being questioned about the transfer of a raiding squad and reasons for keeping eight captains idle, he was asked about general crime conditions in the city and the morale of the department.

The police chief would not discuss his testimony, but before being called into the jury room he defended his activities and said he was trying to give the city good police service. He called attention to his record of nearly forty years on the force, a record often commended.

His Story to Jury.

After appearing before the jury the commissioner said he had done his best to give the grand jurors all the information he had about everything in which they were interested, and that he had answered all their questions. He said he had understood he was finished with his testimony, but Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller, who is in charge of the police investigation, said the commissioner would be recalled on Tuesday.

Commissioner Alcock also said he was not responsible for the policy of putting captains "on the bench," where they idle away eight hours a day. Former Chief Collins started that, Alcock said, explaining that when he was put in temporary charge of the department by Mayor Thompson he inherited six captains for whom there were no commands. He also had six deputy commissioners for whom there was no pay appropriation, and he had to abolish their positions and restore them to their civil service rank of captain, which gave him a surplus of captains, he asserted.

Barasa Not to Testify.

Prosecutor Mueller said yesterday that former Judge Bernard P. Barasa would not be a witness before the jury on Monday. Previously Attorney Barasa had called at the jury room and asked to be heard and was told he would be called on Monday.

The former judge denied having asked for the removal of the six "cleanup policemen" of the Warren avenue district. He said he acted as attorney for Caesar Benvenuti, who was arrested on a charge of operating a policy game on the west side and who was accused of having offered a bribe to Sergt. Arthur Wachholz, but said he had not threatened Wachholz or the other raiders and had not asked Commissioner Alcock to transfer them.

It was learned that Commissioner Alcock also denied having been requested by Attorney Barasa to make the change. What explanation he gave the grand jurors was not stated. The six raiders were transferred a month before the election in which Mayor Thompson took an unusual position and the Warren avenue district includes "deliverable" wards where Thompson holds sway.

Asks More Fire Officers.

While Alcock was before the grand jury being questioned about his top-heavy staff, Fire Commissioner Albert Goodrich appealed to the chairman of the council finance committee for permission to appoint additional battalion chiefs of the fire department.

"I noticed in the newspapers that the police department is long on captains while the fire department is short on battalion chiefs," he told Ald. John S. Clark. "The reason we need additional chiefs is that we have added 321 men to the department and created five new fire companies."

LYLE JAILS GANGSTER

Dominick Brancato, alleged Capone henchman, was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell by Judge John H. Lyle in Felony court yesterday. The judge brushed aside Brancato's demand for a delay and he was in a Bridewell cell last night.

Brancato, who was arrested with a gun several months ago while believed on a mission to harm Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office, first demanded his "rights," and then begged for them, but to no avail. The gun carrying case is pending. Brancato was at liberty on bond when he was arrested again a few days ago in the vagrancy campaign.

"I demand a change of venue," said Brancato in a firm tone, as he was taken before Judge Lyle for his hearing.

"Have you a petition?" asked the judge.

Brancato failed to produce a petition, but looked anxiously toward the door as if expecting the arrival of an attorney. After waiting a few seconds for the defendant to reply to his query, Judge Lyle announced that a change of venue could not be allowed without a proper petition.

"I ain't ready for trial," said Brancato.

"I do not care if you're ready or not," replied Judge Lyle. "Unless you have a change of venue petition we will go to trial. Mr. Clerk, swear the witnesses."

Sentenced for Contempt.

"Ninety days in the house of correction for contempt of court," said Judge Lyle. "Take him away."

Policeman Roy Van Herik reminded the judge that disorderly conduct and vagrancy charges were still pending against the gangster. The judge ordered Brancato brought back.

Brancato appeared thoroughly cowed by this time. He pleaded for a change of venue, a continuance, or a delay for his attorney to appear. The judge ordered the trial to proceed.

Policeman Van Herik testified that Brancato was once caught trying to blast a hole through a wall of a jewelry store. Since that time, the policeman said, Brancato has been taken into custody several times and to Van Herik's knowledge "does not have any visible means of support."

Gets Six Months in Cell.

Judge Lyle then inquired if Brancato was the man captured with a revolver in front of Roche's loop office. He was told this was so. The six months' sentence for vagrancy was imposed when Brancato said he had nothing to say. The contempt sentence was rescinded.

Charges made in a petition for a writ of prohibition against Judge Lyle were called "scandalous and impertinent" yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Frank Mest, who appeared before Judge Michael L. McKinley in the Superior court to oppose the issuance of the writ. Attorney Frank Blech asked that Judge Lyle be prohibited from enforcing an order on a woman to pay back some money. The request for the writ was continued until Monday.

Carr Brothers Brought to City.

John [Red] Carr, 30 years old, and his brother, William, of 1106 Huron street, were brought to Chicago from Milwaukee last night to face charges of slaying John Guida in a saloon owned by the Carrs at 856 North Racine avenue on Oct. 24.

News of their capture in Milwaukee preceded the police and eight hours before their arrival a writ of habeas corpus was issued by Judge Harry Fisher of the Criminal court. The hearing was set for this morning.

Both men are said by the police to have long criminal records. John Carr was arrested with Sam Battaglia as a suspect in connection with the robbery of Mayor Thompson's wife. He was released, however, when witnesses failed to identify him.

The police said Guida was shot in a quarrel over a shipment of liquor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Racketeers controlling the railroad and steamship terminals in New York collect millions yearly in tribute by "shaking down" shippers at the rate of 3 cents on every hundred pounds of merchandise transported into or out of New York City.

This information has come into the hands of District Attorney T. C. T. Crain, who is forming a committee of public safety to drive racketeering from the city, and he gave it out to the public this afternoon.

Virtually every railroad and steamship company operating out of New York has been affected by the piracy of the racketeers, Mr. Crain said, but so far only one has been able to make progress in protecting its shippers. The names of the companies were not revealed.

Here's How System Works.

The way in which the system works, as described by the district attorney, is something like this: The racketeers intimidate the truck drivers at the piers and railroad terminals where freighters, barges or freight cars are unloaded, and the shippers must pay the tribute to have their freight handled.

Most of the merchants, according to Mr. Crain, have abandoned attemps to fight the system and now have entered into arrangements whereby the racketeers are paid their money through the drivers of the trucks handling the shipments.

This information has poured into Mr. Crain's office in letters, some signed and some anonymous, from merchants, shippers and others who have been victimized by the racketeers.

Pay Toll to Racketeers.

The laundry business, the cleaning and dyeing trades, the miniature golf business chauffeurs, florists, funeral directors, the milk and food dealers of all kinds, and virtually every form of small tradesmen are paying toll to the racketeers, Mr. Crain said.

The disclosures have convinced the prosecutor that racketeering in New York is "as widespread and all pervading" as it is in Chicago, and in some respects "even more bloated and loathsome." In fact, Mr. Crain intimated that Chicago might have something to learn from her "older sister." Mr. Crain so far has received no offer of coöperation from him.

The letters which the district attorney asserts he has received are astounding. The contents of some of them, he states, would be unbelievable if he lacked the evidence in black and white under his eyes. Business men after business men, writing upon their own letterheads, using their own names, offer case after case and instance after instance of blackmail.

Under Threats of Sabotage.

They offer, says Judge Crain, a circumstantial story of how they have been mulcted under threat of sabotage or even death. There is scarcely a trade vocation, or industrial commercial activity in New York which hasn't been seized upon by the racketeers and placed under tribute. The tales told by the merchants, manufacturers, and small tradesmen who have laid their troubles under the eye of the district attorney would make the performances of the robber barons of the middle ages seem trivial.

Mr. Crain told reporters he wouldn't be astonished to hear that tribute had been imposed upon scrubwomen, since there seemed to be nothing that the racketeering system had not touched in its rapacity and ruthlessness.

W. Sherman Burns of the Burns Detective Service has offered the services of himself and his men to Mr. Crain in his fight on racketeers, and the district attorney said he probably would accept them.

U. S. Offers Assistance.

An offer of federal assistance in driving out the New York racketeers also was made today to District Attorney Crain and the committee of public safety he is going to form. The offer came from Howard W. Amell, United States attorney for eastern New York, which includes Brooklyn and Long Island.

Mr. Amell's offer to place himself and his staff at the service of Mr. Crain was one of about a hundred letters received this morning at the district attorney's office commending Mr. Crain's plans for ridding the city of gangsters and offering him assistance.

While Attorney General Mitchell has announced in Washington that the federal government has declared war against the racketeers in several cities, Mr. Crain so far has received no offer

DAVID EXPOUNDS IDEAS ON CRIME AND ITS REMEDY

Judge Calls Prohibition Worst Influence in U. S.

Had the congress which created the eighteenth amendment, "the most pernicious influence on American life," evolved legislation rigorously limiting the manufacture, sale and distribution of deadly weapons, it would truly have taken a step toward the solution of the crime problem. This was the statement of Judge Joseph B. David of the Criminal court in an address on the causes and remedy of crime at the Agudath Achim, north shore congregation, 5024 Kenmore avenue, last night.

"The eighteenth amendment and its enabling laws are filling jails, almshouses and asylums," said Judge David. "Let the bombasts of the Anti-Saloon league harangue from the housetops. They cannot confute statistics which show that prohibition has increased crime more than 20 per cent. Fortunately the law is slowly but surely disintegrating.

"No Excuse for Gun Carrying."

"The legislators who sponsored that legislation are in a measure responsible for its effects, as they might have been of service to the electorate in limiting firearms. There is no excuse carrying a gun and there ought to be none for owning one, except for officers of the law and these with limitation. England's police do not carry weapons; ours would not if we created wholesome respect for the law, which the lawmakers did their best to destroy in prohibition laws.

"For thirty years I have been fighting for a law to give certain imprisonment to the gun toter. I drew a bill 25 years ago which was introduced in the legislature by the present chief justice of the Criminal court, John P. McGoorty. It was defeated by the apposition of merchants. But I have not given up."

Lists Other Causes of Crime.

In addition to prohibition, lack of respect for the law and accessibility of weapons Judge David listed as causes of crime, poverty, avarice, anger and jealousy. He held the habitual criminal to be a minor problem as compared with correction of the criminal tendency. The state, he said, is greatly to blame for being recreant in its duty to give every child equal opportunity, education and proper surroundings.

Among remedies Judge David urged sensible revision of criminal laws from the "antiquated English common law," appointment of a nonpartisan state's attorney by a committee of judges, and restoration of public confidence in the judiciary by taking politics out of judgeships.

"I say," he went on, "that the specific crime be measured against the individual and punishment be solely at the discretion of the judge. Let the judge put the criminal out and in the penitentiary for indefinite periods until the criminal has become fit to mingle with his fellow men. Do not leave punishment to the whim and caprice of the legislature.

"An education for respect of a sound legal system backed by an able state's attorney and a fearless judiciary will stamp out crime."

REPEAL IS URGED BY LAWYER WHO WROTE DRY LAW

ney for the grape growers, she is only "our once great leader," who hoodwinked her old friends and put the grape juice business over while—as Dr. Wilson sadly admits—"we were asleep at the switch."

This grape juice business, in which only time and a cool cellar are required to turn an innocuous sirup into wine, is an experiment, Dr. Wilson allowed, "more dangerous to the success of prohibition than any other evolved since the eighteenth amendment became effective."

Must Take Offensive.

Instead of being able to sit comfortably on the defensive while the wets attack Capitol hill, the drys are once more going to have to sally forth from the Methodist building, march across the street to congress and demand that the loopholes through which the grape juice is leaking be legislatively plugged up.

"If this thing can be done legally," said Dr. Wilson, referring to the grape juice business, "it shows that the prohibition act needs amendment."

Not content with deploring over Mrs. Willebrandt's defection, Dr. Wilson also voiced the first criticism which has been expressed against the prohibition bureau since its transfer from the treasury to the department of justice. Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock, he charged, had two men of wet sympathy in the prohibition office.

"Whole Thing Is Wrong."

"We drys were so used to thinking of her as our great leader," Dr. Wilson reminisced about the Willebrandt matter. "We had always left everything to her. She had represented our side for years. We failed to pay attention when she became attorney for the grape growers and while we were asleep at the switch this business got ahead of us. Temperance leaders of all affiliations are very much disturbed. The whole thing is wrong. A concentrate needing only a little time or a little doctoring to become intoxicating ought not to have the rights which evidently have been given this product."

And concerning Director Woodcock, the dry leader expressed regret that Daniel E. Reichgut, in charge of prohibition personnel, and Edward E. Berney, classification expert, continued to hold their jobs.

"They are both wets," he asserted. "Both have been in the government service for a number of years," Mr. Woodcock explained. "They are civil service employés with splendid records. They have shown themselves loyal and able. With their views on prohibition I am not acquainted."

While the drys remained "disturbed" over what happens to grape juice when nature is allowed its course, wets equally militant prepared for a convention to be held here, Dec. 8, under the auspices of Federal Dispensary-Tax Reduction league, supporters of the Sabath bill to create federal dispensaries in states that vote for them.

Delegates from throughout the country will attend the convention, Dr. F. W. Buck, the league's executive secretary, announced. A definite legislative program will be formulated and brought before congress.

STANTON CASE HANGS ON TESTS BY COL. GODDARD

The science of ballistics was put to a severe test yesterday in the basement of the Criminal Courts building as a result of the efforts being made to extradite Danny Stanton, public enemy, to Wisconsin for the murder of Jack Zuta, another public enemy. On Col. Calvin Goddard's ability to distinguish bullets fired from six different pistols of the same make and type will depend Stanton's fate.

Attorneys Thomas D. Nash and Michael Ahern challenged Col. Goddard's ability to be able to say that a particular bullet was fired from a particular revolver. The prosecution is depending on the original ballistic test to convict Stanton if he is extradited to Wisconsin.

It was suggested that Col. Goddard's ability be put to a test and this was agreeable to Assistant State's Attorney Q. J. Chott, the habeas corpus and extradition expert. The six new identical revolvers were obtained yesterday and Prosecutor Chott, who is also a firearms expert, fired some seventy-five shots from the different pistols. The bullets were turned over to Col. Goddard and he is to come into court on Dec. 2 and designate from which revolver the various bullets were fired.

OLIVER LENIENCY RULING WAITS ON U. S. TAX HEARING

Judge Delays Action Till Civil Case Is Decided.

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday delayed action on a motion for probation on behalf of County Assessor Gene G. Oliver and announced that the final determination of his civil liability for income tax evasion may have a material bearing on his criminal case. Oliver was convicted of tax evasion and sentenced to 18 months in prison and fined $12,500 by Judge Woodward last July.

GENE OLIVER.

First Assistant District Attorney Cinelus Poust opposed the recognition of any relationship between the civil and criminal cases on the ground that it would establish a precedent which might keep convicted tax dodgers out of the penitentiary.

Case Before Tax Appeal Board.

Oliver has been assessed $56,000 in delinquent taxes and additional penalties and interest, bringing the total to $100,000. His attorney, State Senator James J. Barbour, informed the court that the question of the validity of this assessment is now pending before the board of tax appeals at Washington, D. C.

Judge Woodward requested that the prosecutors take steps to speed up the hearing at Washington. He indicated that he would follow the finding of the tax appeals board, although Oliver may appeal from the board to the federal Circuit Court of Appeals and then to the United States Supreme court. Judge Woodward said the board of tax appeals may find that Oliver owes far less than the amount of evasion—some $50,000—charged in his criminal prosecution, or that the board may find he owes considerably more.

Offers 29 Character Witnesses.

Oliver appeared in court with twenty character witnesses, manufacturers and business men, to testify as to his worthiness of probation. The court questioned some of them along these lines:

"Suppose this man is given probation. Then how is the court to make any differentiation between this case and others?"

"How can the income tax laws be enforced if sentences are suspended?"

"Suppose a few good citizens are thrown into jail. Won't that tend to curb tax avoidance?"

In cross-examining the witnesses prosecutors Poust and Jacob Grossman referred by inference to the acceptance of bribes for tax fixing, evidence of which was a feature of the Oliver trial. They asked whether a bootlegger convicted of income tax evasion should be entitled to probation and drew an analogy between this and other illicit sources of income.

Senior High Schools Gain 26,000 Pupils in 5 Years

There has been an increase of 26,000 pupils in the senior high schools of the city in the last five years, Willis A. Tower, superintendent of senior high schools, said yesterday. The present number of students in attendance is 88,300. There are more than 8,000 more students attending the senior high schools in Chicago than did last year, he said. Of this total Schurz high school has 3,612; Crane 6,720, and Lane Technical High school, 6,352.

N. J. GOVERNOR WEDS MOTHER'S PAID COMPANION

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Gov. Morgan F. Larson of New Jersey and Miss Ada Schmidt, for two years companion to the governor's aged mother, were married last night at the Larson home in Perth Amboy, it was announced today.

The wedding was performed by the Rev. Robert Schlotter, pastor of Grace English Lutheran church at Perth Amboy, of which the governor is a member.

By the time Perth Amboy had learned of the wedding today the governor, who is 48 years old, was on his way to Miami with his bride for a honeymoon.

The best man was Capt. Harold Larson, the governor's nephew and a member of his military staff. The bride was attended by Miss Regina Larson, niece of the executive.

The bride is an attractive young woman in her twenties. She came to the United States from her native Denmark about five years ago. Her father still lives overseas and her mother is dead. The wedding came as a surprise to many of the governor's associates.

Mr. Larson's first wife died in 1926. She had been an invalid for years.

WOMAN SUES FOR $420,000 LOSS IN STOCK MARKET

The praecipe of a suit for $420,000, naming as defendants James L. Cooke and David A. Badenoch, investment brokers, was filed in the Superior court yesterday by Attorney Morris Townley in behalf of Mrs. Juliet Law Packer of 2440 Lake View avenue. The attorneys said the suit is to recover money lost in the stock market crash a year ago by Mrs. Packer's brother, Elwin Wallace Law.

The $420,000 was left in trust to Mrs. Packer by her mother, the late Mrs. George Wallace Law of Elmhurst, the attorney said. Law, an insurance agent having offices at 209 West Jackson boulevard, is a trustee of the estate.

The suit is directed against the brokers, the attorney said, because they carried the account as "E. W. Law, trustee," and therefore knew that Law had no right to speculate with the money. The defendants were doing business at the time as the James L. Cooke & Co., according to Townley, who said the company had since been taken over by another brokerage firm.

RAID LOOP FINANCE HOUSE ON COMPLAINT OF LOTTERY 'WINNER'

The offices of the Empire Finance company, 100 North La Salle street, were raided yesterday by Detectives Louis Capparelli and Michael Casey of the state's attorney's office after complaint was made that a lottery was operated from there. Joseph White of the Bismarck hotel, who says he is general manager of the company, was arrested along with six other men.

H. B. Biggs of Toledo, O., held a lottery ticket of the "Gold Bond" lottery calling for a $1,000 prize. He came to Chicago to collect and when he went for his prize he was told that a mistake had been made in printing the sheet containing the winners. Biggs went to State's Attorney Swanson. Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Ditchburne and James Brown were assigned to investigate.

The detectives found telegrams and letters indicating that the lottery was operated throughout the middle west. White, however, denied any connection with it, but said that a former employé of the company was the sponsor. The prosecutors, however, found notes in his own handwriting indicating that he operated the lottery, they said.

CITE BURGLAR'S CASE AS EXAMPLE OF BOND EVILS

An illustration of the ineffectiveness of the present bond system was cited yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney A. C. De Witt when he called attention to the case of Steve Oswald, alleged henchman of Joe Saltis, south side beer runner. Oswald was convicted of burglary and sentenced to one to twenty years in the penitentiary by the late Judge William N. Gemmill. The conviction occurred in November, 1929.

Oswald obtained his liberty on $15,000 bond pending appeal to the Supreme court. When the appeal was decided against him he forfeited his bond, which carried property valued at $33,250. The state's attorney's office started to collect on the bond and found that it was incumbered with mortgages and liens to the amount of $5,200. Because of this fact it will be impossible to collect on the property, the prosecutor said.

The new central bail bureau to be established as a result of recent conferences by the judges will use the figures of the reassessment for appraisal purposes, it was announced. Also, a list of incumbered properties will be obtained and posted, so that no such property will be taken on bonds.

AMMEL INJURED AS HE STARTS ON HOP TO CHICAGO

Plane Crashes in Panama —Flyer's Spine Hurt.

BY GERALD MARTIN.

Capt. Ammel left France field, Colon, at 8 a. m., accompanied by army flyers, and arrived at Ancon field at 9:20 a. m. A large crowd had gathered there to see him take off for Chicago. By one o'clock he had taken on a load of 700 gallons of gasoline, bid farewell and started.

Crashes Into Ditch.

Five hundred yards from the starting point he ran across a mound of earth. The plane looped and turned over, crashing into a nearby ditch. The plane is a complete wreck. It was broken into three pieces.

The captain was extricated, given first aid and rushed by another plane to Patilla field, which is in a suburb of Panama and the national air field. From there he was taken to Gorgas hospital, where he was examined by Chief Surgeon Earhart, and the chief of the medical clinic, Dooling.

The examination showed that Capt. Ammel suffered contusions about the left clavicle, the spine, and on the left chest and shoulder. X-ray examinations showed no definite fractures. An operation will not be necessary, it was said, and the patient is resting easily and shows no paralysis of the limbs. He was unconscious for an hour, but on coming to drank water and smoked cigarets.

Two Killed in Texas.

Houston, Tex., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Bert Pidcoke, pilot for the Texas company airplane division, and his mechanic, Jack Lewis of New Orleans, were killed today when the cabin plane in which they were flying crashed near the Main street airport.

GROUND BROKEN FOR NEW CITY DOG SHELTER

Ground was broken yesterday for the erection of a new municipal animal shelter at 34th street and Lawndale avenue, to replace the old dog pound. A number of city officials, representatives of humane societies, and a few canines who wagged their tails in approval of the proceedings were present when the first spadeful of earth was turned.

The building, which will cost $55,000 when fully equipped, will have two stories and a basement. Individual rooms will be provided for 200 dogs and rooms will be included for the use of stray cats and other of the four footed tribe. Observation chambers will be provided for dogs suspected of having rabies and a lethal chamber also will be built.

Funds for the building were obtained by the city council, with a resolution authorizing that all money collected over $100,000 in animal license fees should be set aside for the shelter. Contributions also were obtained from humane societies.

FAIL TO UNCOVER FRAUD IN KUNZ, GRANATA RACE

Election judges and clerks from a dozen precincts were questioned by County Judge Jarecki and the election board last night concerning their returns in the Eighth congressional district where Peter C. Granata, Republican, defeated Congressman Stanley H. Kunz.

The forecasts were that proofs of dishonesty and violence would be startling, but the testimony produced nothing except the usual indications of ignorance on the part of some of the precinct officials. There were no substantial changes in any of the figures. But the hearing took so much time that the election board's official proclamation was postponed until next Tuesday.

Representatives of Axel Lonnquist, who missed out for county commissioner from the country towns by only 355 votes, have announced that a contest will be instituted in his name.

10 BILLION BACKS BANKS OF SOUTH, PUBLIC IS TOLD

Reserve Head Calls Scare Unfounded.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Banks of the south have resources of approximately ten billion dollars, said Eugene R. Black, governor of the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank, today. And the tangible wealth of the south is estimated at more than eighty billions of dollars, according to Julius Barnes.

Mr. Barnes was in Atlanta to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce, here to obtain first hand information of business conditions in this section. He is chairman of the board.

Mr. Black, in calling attention to the billions in resources of the southern banks, said:

"There should be confidence that fundamentally our banking situation is sound, and with our agriculture, our industry, and our banking resources there should be no uneasiness as to our general situation.

Surety loss Is Small.

18 MORE BANKS CLOSE

[By the Associated Press.]

Eighteen banks closed Friday in widely separated sections of the south and lower middle west, but statements from authoritative banking and commercial sources described the general economic and banking situation as intrinsically sound.

In Tennessee Gov. Henry H. Horton took cognizance of what he termed "misleading statements" regarding state funds deposited in a subsidiary of the investment firm of Caldwell & Co., now in receivership. He defended his administration and promised a legislative inquiry.

Banks which closed Friday are:

North Carolina—American Exchange bank of Asheville, with deposits of $2,000,000 at the last call; First Bank and Trnst company of Tryon, Citizens Bank and Trust company of Waynesville.

One in Kentucky.

Indiana—Banks in English, Leavenworth, Corydon, and Corydon Junction.

Tennessee—First State Bank and Trust company of Paris; People's bank of Lenoir City; People's Bank and Trust company of Lenoir City, a Negro institution in Nashville.

Mississippi—The bank of Collins.

Missouri—Banks at Doniphan and Edina.

Arkansas—First National bank of Rector; Oden State bank, Oden; Montgomery State bank, Mount Ida; Caddo Valley bank, Norman.

Reorganization plans were started during the day, especially in Arkansas where announcement was made that the National Bank of Arkansas at Pine Bluff and the American Exchange Trust company of Little Rock, two of the largest closed in that state, will be reopened.

Bank Nails Rumor.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company and its local manager, Albert Ivison, were charged in a warrant sworn out by the Stock Yards bank here today with the willfully issuing a false statement that the bank had closed.

Ivison, who was arrested and released in $500 bond, said a mistake had been made and had been corrected as soon as possible and that there was no ground for charges of willful action.

Illinois Bank to Liquidate.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 21.—(AP)—State bank examiners of the state auditor's office took charge of the State bank of Waynesboro this morning. Officials of the bank announced frozen assets were the cause of the closing and that they had chosen to liquidate. They announced they planned to pay all depositors in full.

Plymouth Bank Closes.

Quincy, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The First National bank of Plymouth, Ill., failed to open its doors this morning. It was closed by the board of directors and placed in the hands of a national bank examiner. The bank was capitalized at $25,000.

PERU CABINET QUITS; RUSH SOLDIERS TO STOP OIL FIELD STRIKE

LIMA, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The provisional military cabinet formed Aug. 27 by President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro following upon the revolution which deposed Augusto B. Leguia resigned tonight. An official communique said the ministers quit because they desired to give the president a free hand in selecting new assistants, now that the country is on the return to normalcy, but entirely different versions were heard outside.

One view is that much dissatisfaction has arisen because of the way in which the minister of government, Maj. Gustavo Jiminez, handled recent labor troubles in the Cerro de Pasco mining region, where two Americans were killed in disorders.

Government officials said tonight that, in addition to the soldiers who went into the oil district today, the 7th cavalry regiment is garrisoned at Piura, in the same region, while police and civic guards also are prepared to aid in preventing disturbances.

EXTRA SESSION DUE IF NORRIS PROGRAM FAILS

Leader of Radical Group Outlines Views.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Acceptance of radical legislation is the price which must be paid by the administration to avoid a special session of the new congress in the spring.

Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], leader of the radical group, made this evident today upon his arrival in the capital. While Senator Norris professed no deliberate intention to filibuster against appropriation bills as a means of forcing President Hoover to call a special session, he admitted that such a course might be resorted to unless such legislation as the Muscle Shoals government operation bill now in conference between the two houses, the anti-injunction bill, reported adversely by the senate judiciary committee and not as yet passed by either house, his own constitutional amendment resolution to abolish lame duck sessions of congress which has been approved by the senate and is pending in the house, are finally disposed of in the short session of the old congress ending on March 4.

"As far as I am personally concerned I am not anxious for a special session," said Senator Norris. "Whether we have a filibuster and a special session depends upon the administration. If the administration continues its policy of obstruction we may have a special session."

Senator Norris said that all of the measures which he named are in the nature of unfinished business such as should be completed in the short session.

Unlike Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], who has said that the export debenture farm relief scheme should be enacted into law at the short session, Senator Norris said he thought a further trial should be given the administration farm board program before passing new legislation.

DEMOCRATS TO BE WET IN 1932, DECLARES COX

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Regardless of the dry south and the drifting away in the national contest two years ago of some of the traditionally Democratic southern states from the wet candidate for President the Democratic national platform in 1932 will have a plank calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and a return to the states of the regulatory power over traffic in intoxicating liquor, in the opinion of James M. Cox, who in 1920 was the candidate for president, with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt his running mate on the national ticket.

Ex-Gov. Cox said he regarded the prospect for a Democratic victory in 1932 exceptionally bright, provided his party entered the contest "with no thought except the simple political philosophy of Thomas Jefferson" to govern its treatment of the issues.

Water power, regulation of public utilities, unemployment, and placing the country on sound economic basis through a scientific tariff worked out by an expert tariff commission, according to Mr. Cox, will be dominant issues in the contest.

VICTIM THROWN INTO ALLEY; HUNT DEATH CAR DRIVER

Autoist Is Jailed After Fatal Accident.

Abe Seigal, 19 years old, of 4312 West Washington boulevard, was hunted by police last night as the motorist whose car struck and fatally injured Elmer Weber, 50 years old, 122 South Throop street. The victim died on Wednesday at the county hospital.

According to the police, Weber was struck by an auto at Throop street and Jackson boulevard. Witnesses of the accident told police that the driver of the car picked up Weber, saying he would take him to a hospital.

Found Dying in Alley.

A few hours later the victim was found dying in an alley at the rear of 717 South Loomis street, presumably having been thrown out there by the driver. He died without regaining consciousness.

The license plates of the automobile were traced to Ansel Cobb, owner of a garage at 4049 West Lake street. Cobb confessed that he had loaned the plates to Seigal and had helped the latter remove the radiator of the car, which had been damaged in striking Weber. Cobb is held.

Accused of Manslaughter.

Arthur Kemmer, 25 years old, 844 Fullerton avenue, was arrested yesterday on a manslaughter charge, as the result of the death on Oct. 31 of Michael Wrzesinski, 55 years old, 1447 Augusta street, who was run down by an automobile in Milwaukee avenue near Waukegan road, Niles.

The inquest into the death of Miss Cathryn McFarland, 8012 Drexel avenue, who was killed early yesterday when her car crashed into a safety island at Michigan avenue and 32d street, was continued at the request of coroner's physicians.

The death of Miss McFarland and four others raised the 1930 Cook county motor toll to 978. The other victims:

Felix Dobel, 40 years old, 1659 West Division street; struck last night by an automobile at Milwaukee avenue and Noble street and died a little later in St. Mary's hospital. Walter Jiscor, 30 years old, 1228 Cleaver street, driver of the automobile, was held.

Michael Skoczynski, 52 years old 905 Milwaukee avenue; died at St. Mary's hospital as a result of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile at Cornell street and Milwaukee avenue Monday night. Rudolph Anderson, 2015 West Monroe street, driver of the car, was charged with reckless driving.

Walter Bergman, 36 years old, a bookkeeper; died at his home, 7617 South Wood street, of injuries incurred on Oct. 6 when he was struck by an auto at Ashland avenue and 77th street. The car did not stop.

Unidentified man about 60 years old found dead on Irving Park boulevard in Bensenville last night, where he apparently had been struck by an automobile which failed to stop. The body was taken to the Elmhurst hospital and then to an undertaker's.

Completion of a new bridge in Roosevelt road across the straightened channel of the south branch of the river will be celebrated by city officials with a parade this morning. The bridge, which was started in 1927, was erected at a cost of more than $3,000,000 as a start of the river straightening project. It is a link in the viaduct structure extending west of Wabash avenue across a large area of railroad tracks. While the new bridge was under construction parts of the old bridge were utilized so that traffic would not have to detour. The celebration will start with a parade from Wacker drive and Clark street to Roosevelt road and Clark street, where a speakers' stand has been erected. Mayor Thompson will ride in the parade at his first public appearance since he went to the hospital.

MELLON TO GET $72,735 REFUND ON INCOME TAX

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A refund of $72,735 to Secretary Mellon for overassessment in income tax in 1926 was announced today by the internal revenue bureau.

The announcement said the refund was due to duplication of income, shift of income and contributions.

The bureau allowed the secretary an additional deduction of $252.26 for contributions made during the year to two associations.

A plea for patience in the development of the Bank of International Settlements, more commonly known as the World bank, was voiced last night by Sir Charles Addis, director of the Bank of England and British reparations expert, in a speech before a joint session of the Commercial and Industrial clubs at the Palmer house.

With world prices of commodities unsettled, the economic conditions generally disturbed, too much must not be expected immediately of this new institution, he said. It should, instead, be given every chance to prove its worth. It was too soon, Sir Charles said, to discuss with any definiteness the possible sphere of the bank or to fix the limits of its functions, but the outlook, he added, was hopeful.

Seen Boon to Credit.

"I believe," said Sir Charles, "that the bank will play a large part in facilitating the flow of credit and in the equalization and stabilization of world prices."

The reparations bank, asserted Sir Charles, is exploring a new field, and in its own circle is intent first upon finding causes for instability, and, second, a remedy of those causes. The bank, he said, was not organized for profit, there are no dividends, and it should be give an opportunity to build up a reserve.

Cites Factors in Stability.

Sir Charles' address was confined chiefly to the bank and prices of world commodities. He pointed out that national industry and retention of financial and economic resources of nations are the most powerful factors toward world-wide stabilization of prices and exchanges. Neither free trade nor protection, neither nationalism nor internationalism, can ever be a substitute for the hard work and savings that produce wealth, he said.

BRUENING PLEADS FOR REFORMS TO SAVE GERMANY

Says War Debt Burden Is Secondary Problem.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—"The payment of reparations alone is not to be blamed for Germany's present financial worries," Chancellor Heinrich Bruening told the delegations from all the rural communities in Germany assembled in the reichstag today. He eloquently protested against the prevailing pessimism.

"The German people, like the business men in many other countries," said the chancellor, "overestimated business prospects. They did some unnecessary building and gave observers of Germany a wrong impression of her wealth."

Outlines 28 Reform Laws.

The chancellor in the course of his speech outlined the program of reforms tied up in 28 laws which he will submit to the reichstag early in December, and he insisted that the reichstag must accept them before Dec. 21.

"These reforms will not restore normalcy in half a year," he said. "All they can do will be to stem off the tide of financial difficulties which are threatening to swamp the fatherland. Once the reforms are fully enforced, then we can proceed.

"We reduced the budget for next year by close to $250,000,000 after cutting this year's budget by $40,000,000. The sacrifices we demand from civil servants are hard, but the cuts in other countries (hinting at Italy's recent salary reduction of government employés) are double the size of ours. We must save to the limit, but do not despair."

Plans Political Line Up.

On Monday Chancellor Bruening will begin negotiations with all party leaders excepting the communists, to try to obtain the support of a majority before the reichstag reconvenes.

Former Finance Minister Paul Moldenhauer, who is closely allied to Germany's industrialists, declared today that the purchasing value of gold had increased by 10 per cent recently, which increased the value of the reparations paid by Germany. Under the provisions of the Dawes plan Germany could have asked for an "alteration of her reparations payments on the strength of the gold index, but this would be insufficient to meet the deficit," he declared.

Wants Debt Revision.

"A reduction of $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 in Germany's annual reparations at around $500,000,000 will not help us," said Herr Moldenhauer. "Our goal must be the revision of the Young plan so as to reduce reparations payments to a sum which Germany really can afford to pay. But Chancellor Bruening is right to refuse to consider the demand for revision now. We must first straighten out our own finances."

It was announced today that production costs of German iron and steel have been cut by $1.50 per ton through the decision of the Rhenish and Westphalian syndicate to reduce the price of industrial coal by 35 cents per ton from Dec. 1, conditional on a wage reduction on Jan. 1.

Curtius Speech Hits Stocks.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The German press and public today followed with keen interest the reaction abroad to the speech of Foreign Minister Julius Curtius in which he said Germany might have to seek the alleviating provisions of the Young plan.

The semi-official Deutsche Diplomatisch Politische Korrespondenz feels justified in deducing from the foreign press comment so far available a general disposition to accept in good faith this German declaration of policy "which has 90 per cent of the German people behind it."

The reaction on the bourse, however, was a depression in prices of from two to seven points. Curb trading after close was listlessly lower. In Frankfort-on-the-Main a number of stocks touched new lows.

Gen. MacArthur, "Youngster" of Army, Takes Command

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Douglas MacArthur, the youngest major general in the army and one of the outstanding American combat officers in the world war, was sworn in as chief of staff of the United States army today. He is 50 years old, several years below the age of most of his predecessors when they took over the administration and training of the army.

It transpired today that Gen. MacArthur assumed a full general's rank automatically upon taking the oath of office. He would not have become chief of staff until next year had Gen. Charles P. Summerall, his immediate predecessor, desired to remain in office until he normally retired for age on March 4.

Secretary of War Hurley revealed today that he had invited Gen. Summerall to stay on until March 4 at the conclusion of his four year term of office on Nov. 20.

Gen. Summerall declined, however, explaining that he did not desire himself to violate the four year Washington detail rule which he had so rigidly enforced against other officers during his administration.

The regulation referred to by Gen. Summerall limits chiefs of branches and all officers serving in Washington to four year details in order that a larger number of officers may have the opportunity for experience in the war department. This rule was strengthened and enforced by Gen. Summerall.

The new chief of staff was twice wounded during the world war, which he entered as a major of engineers. He was decorated by the American and French governments for personal gallantry in action and was twice recommended for the French Legion of Honor.

In world war days, according to stories related by soldiers, MacArthur often visited the front lines, sometimes venturing into No Man's Land.

North Central College Gets $215,000 from Alumnus

Securities and money amounting to $215,000 were turned over yesterday to the North Central college at Naperville from the estate of Dr. Albert Goldspohn, Chicago physician who died about a year ago. The gift was willed to the college endowment fund, according to F. W. Umbreit, president of the board of trustees. Dr. Goldspohn was an alumnus of the college and a trustee for 25 years.

Women and Children in Group; Autos Stalled.

Mandan, N. D., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Isolated in a small cabin five miles west of here, more than forty persons, who abandoned their automobiles during yesterday's snowstorm, were rescued late today when a snow plow opened up the road leading to their shelter.

While the plows were working to free them, restoration of communication facilities continued in North and South Dakota and northwestern Minnesota, disrupted by the unseasonable weather that indirectly was responsible for two deaths Thursday and early today. Word of the plight of the marooned group near Mandan was received there when several men arrived after traveling through the deep snow on foot. Efforts to reach the party were unsuccessful.

Winter's Grip Loosened.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Winter's viselike grip on the far flung Rocky mountain area was unloosed today by clearing skies and rising temperatures.

While snow laden clouds were whisked eastward into the Dakotas and Nebraskas, the upper Rocky mountain tier, Montana and Wyoming were visited by brilliant sunshine that rapidly melted from five inches to two feet of snow.

In Colorado overcast skies followed a three day arctic siege. Scattering snowfalls in eastern Colorado defied efforts of emergency road crews to get rotary plows through twenty foot drifts that have held east and west bound trains at a standstill between Flagler and Limon.

Rock Island railroad men said the eastern Colorado drifts were the worst in many years. A westbound train from Chicago, due in Colorado Springs yesterday morning, was to arrive tonight, while an eastbound train was forty hours behind schedule, held at Limon by the mountainous drifts.

Three persons were unaccounted for and the bodies of four others had been recovered tonight.

HELD FOR HOLDUP ATTEMPT.

Edwin Coates, 17 years old, of Bloomingdale, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Joseph Burke in Boys' court and held to the grand jury in $3,500 bonds on a charge of trying to rob Nathan Frakass in the latter's grocery at 1,33 North Hoyne avenue.

28 SAVED FROM DOOMED VESSEL REACH NEW YORK

Crew Tells of Heroism of Captain's Wife.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21. — [Special.] — Twenty-seven phlegmatic sailors and a woman, survivors of the Swedish tramp steamer Ovidia, reached port today on the fleet Cunarder 'Mauretania, after having been snatched safely out of the very mouth of Davy Jones' locker off the Newfoundland banks last Wednesday morning.

They were a jolly lot of refugees and considerably less excited about the whole affair than the Mauretania's passengers. Nevertheless tales of courage on the rusty old freighter during the two days she wallowed in a heavy sea, threatening momentarily to sink, were obtained from the seamen despite their Scandinavian imperturbility. The story of the rescue was told by Capt. S. G. S. McNeil of the Mauretania, who spoke of it as simply a routine bit of sea business and finally the romantic episode without which no ship rescue yarn is complete was wrung from an observing steward.

Square Head Skipper.

Capt. Axel Carlsson, square head skipper of the lost freighter, in accordance with the custom of the sea, was the last to go over the side of the sinking Ovidia. His comely wife, Bertha, was the first. In between the first S O S and the lowering of the lifeboats the woman went about unafraid.

"When she got ready to go she didn't say anything," related Nicolai Christensen, the steward. "She just looked at the captain and then kissed him like it was good-by."

It was learned from the third engineer of the Ovidia that the ship began to leak through parted seams on Monday and made water steadily until two holds were filled when it was deserted. For twelve hours after Capt. Carlsson had his wireless operator send out an S O S he and his wife and the members of the crew expected each moment to be their last. So acute was the ship's distress that around noon on Wednesday the captain issued orders to lower the boats and abandon ship, although the rescue ships were not yet in sight.

Sights Smoke of Mauretania.

Then Capt. Carlsson sighted the smoke of the approaching Mauretania, and from another direction appeared the freighter Endicott, which had been in communication with the Ovidia regarding a tow to Halifax. Capt. George S. Fried and the America were the last on the scene.

Capt. McNeil told a colorless although slightly caustic story of the rescue. He related how he had "cooled his heels" in midocean for more than two hours while the Ovidia's master waited for slower ships which had offered assistance to come up. While messages regarding a tow by the Endicott and a rescue by the America were passing back and forth, said Capt. McNeil, the Mauretania was losing time.

"We took the Mauretania up within 100 yards or so and asked Capt. Carlsson what he wanted to do. He asked me if it wouldn't be possible for him to hang on and wait for a tow from another freighter. I told him no, it wouldn't do, for the Ovidia's number was up.

"It was a hopeless idea, but he kept us there cooling our heels from 11:30 a. m. until 1:45 p. m. before he made up his mind to abandon ship.

All Are Rowed to Liner.

"I told him it would be better to use his own boats and so presently over went two, holding all aboard. They rowed to us—about a stone's throw, and were hoisted aboard, and that was that. There was a fairish sea running and a twenty-five mile wind—nothing stormy at all."

For a shipwreck victim, Mrs. Carlsson was unusually modishly dressed. She is a large, rosy cheeked woman and wore a blue gown of rich material and perfect fit, with other apparel to match. The wardrobe was furnished by Viola Tree, the actress, a Mauretania passenger. Mrs. Carlsson's personal belongings went to the bottom of the sea as did everything else aboard the Swedish tramp.

Members of the Ovidia's crew told of the quiet heroism of the captain's wife and of how Axel Johansson, the chief engineer, cracked jokes with the "black gang" to keep the engine room crew in good spirits to the last.

NEGRO WHO FAILED AT WEST POINT TO GET ANOTHER CHANCE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Alonso Parham, Negro dismissed from West Point last year because of failure in mathematics, will be reappointed to the academy by Representative De Priest, Negro Republican, of Illinois.

"Parham showed such an admirable spirit when he was discharged," De Priest said today, "that I am going to send him back for another trial."

The representative said the youth had been taking a special course in mathematics at the University of Chicago, and should be able to meet West Point requirements.

De Priest also plans to appoint another cadet to West Point and three to the Annapolis Naval academy. A special board he has set up in Chicago is examining applicants.

EXPERTS UNABLE TO AGREE; DELAY SUBWAY DECISION

Hearing Continued Until Today by Faherty.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

President Faherty of the board of local improvements yesterday continued the public hearing on the State street subway for the third time. A recess was called during the hearing in the hope that an understanding might be reached, but the subway engineers and lawyers were unable to agree on the use of silica steel, the construction of terraza floors, and other proposed changes in the subway plans.

Red faced with indignation, Mr. Faherty returned to the public session, announced its continuance until this morning, and declared that if the experts had then failed to agree the board of local improvements would adopt the prepared plans.

Property Owners Object.

These plans appear to be unsatisfactory to a large percentage of the 200 or more property owners who attended the hearing. They desire a mezzanine concourse uniformly nine feet between floor and ceiling. The plans provide for nine feet between cross streets and 7½ feet at street intersections.

The South State street property owners, led by George Heller, urged that the concourse be extended south of Congress street to Polk street and that the west side connection be made in Polk street rather than in Harrison street. The Palmer house, which favors the subway, through Attorney John D. Black asked more time in which to find out how much it will cost.

Even George M. Wisner, chairman of the board of advisory engineers, criticized certain features of the plan. He said that by tunneling, in lieu of the cut and cover method adopted, about $4,000,000 could be saved in the construction costs. After he had criticized other features Mr. Faherty interrupted with: "You are just building up a lawsuit."

Mr. Wisner said that for a considerable period he had been denied access to the plans on orders of Faherty and that he believed the plans could be improved if given more study. Then he added: "I am glad I haven't approved the plans."

Faherty for Ridgway Plan.

"I will accept the plans approved by Robert Ridgway," said Mr. Faherty. "He has had 40 years' experience in building subways and for 25 years has been head of the subway department in New York."

A lively session is expected this morning. Property owners appeared to be disturbed regarding the cost to them. Mr. Faherty indicated yesterday that he will spread the special assessment for four or five blocks on each side of the bore on the ground that all such property will be benefited.

Machine to Straighten Spine Is Installed in Hospital

A newly perfected machine to correct curvature of the spine has been installed at the Michael Reese hospital, the heads of the institution have announced. The new machine is thought to be the first in this country, and was brought here following a visit of two members of the hospital staff last year to the inventor, Prof. Ricardo Galcazzi in Italy. The machine permits the adjustment of a patient's spine in two planes, while a plaster cast is applied. Experiments to perfect the machine have been carried on by its inventor since 1914.

MARTIN DURKIN'S SISTER IS HELD IN FLAT SHOOTING

Mrs. Anna Louise Downs, sister of Martin Durkin, who is now in Joliet penitentiary for murder, was charged with assault last night in connection with the shooting of Charles Montford, her brother-in-law, in the Downs apartment at 1649 West 79th street. Her husband, George Downs, arrested when he appeared in Felony court to answer a burglary charge, was booked for vagrancy and assault to commit murder. Montford, whose wound was not considered serious, was held at the Bridewell hospital. Montford's wife, Kathlyn, and Mrs Katherine Behrens, an aunt of Mrs. Downs, were charged with disorderly conduct.

Responding to an anonymous telephone call early yesterday the Gresham police found Montford shot in the leg in the Downs flat. He was taken to a hospital, and the women, unable to explain the shooting, were placed under arrest. There was evidence of drinking in the flat, according to the police, who expressed the opinion that the shooting grew out of a quarrel.

ROB THREE AT HOTEL.

Two gunmen held up three men in the Leland hotel lobby yesterday and escaped with $120. The victims were Charles Stefferman, clerk of the hotel; his brother, W. H. Stefferman, and a Negro bell boy, David Grover.

CLARKE REPORTS GOOD PROGRESS IN JOB FUND DRIVE

Two Companies Send Checks to Committee.

More progress than surface returns indicate has been made in the drive to provide $5,000,000 for relief of the unemployed, Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the campaign begun by Gov. Emmerson's relief commission, said last night.

"Actual contributions received thus far received total about $130,000," Mr. Clarke said, "but it will not be long before this figure will be swelled to the expected proportions. We have been compelled to work quickly and most of our time has been devoted to the mechanics of the campaign.

"Now, however, our various trades divisions, operating as they did in the Liberty loan campaigns and in the recent drive to raise funds for the local governments, are beginning to function.

Sees Solid Support of Drive.

"With two or three exceptions, our division chairmen have been selected, and by Monday we are confident our organization will be complete. The divisions in the field have drawn upon headquarters for surprisingly large numbers of pledge cards, and this indicates that employés are solidly behind the pay day deduction plan recommended by the commission.

"The corporations are coöperating very satisfactorily, and early next week we should be able to show some tangible results that will accord us all great encouragement."

Gov. Emmerson suggested to his department heads in the executive branch yesterday that they and their employés contribute one day's pay per month to the unemployed, the plan proposed by the commission. The chief executive set an immediate example by making his own contribution.

Two Companies Send Checks.

During the day two concerns announced that they had followed the plan and sent checks to Mr. Clarke. In both cases the companies duplicated the amount of the employés' subscriptions. Alexander H. Revell & Co. sent a $5,200 check and Charles H. Besly & Co., brass and machinery concern at 118 North Clinton street, turned in about $2,000 as their first installment.

"This represents the spirit that will win the fight," commented Mr. Clarke.

Nine Schulte cigar stores in Chicago contributed 5 per cent of their sales on Thursday to the jobless, and it was announced that the money would be given to Mayor Thompson to be distributed to such social service organizations as he may see fit.

RUSSIA REJECTS LEAGUE CONTROL OF DISARMAMENT

GENEVA, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Russia today served notice on the preparatory disarmament commission that any attempt to place supervision of the proposed arms limitation treaty in the hands of the league of nations or any of its organs would be unacceptable to that country.

This pronouncement by Maxim Litvinov, chief soviet delegate, followed upon submission of two proposals, one by the British and the other by the French, to place supervision of the treaty's execution in the hands of a permanent disarmament commission under league auspices.

Litvinov also expressed dissatisfaction with the draft so far adopted, which he held inadequate. He asserted all efforts of the soviet delegation have been in vain and held the chapters as drawn up incapable of even serving as a framework for decisions for any real armament reduction.

Du Page County Officials Plan $500,000 Courthouse

As an unemployment relief measure Du Page county officials yesterday advanced plans for a new courthouse and jail in Wheaton to cost more than $500,000. A building committee was appointed consisting of N. W. Lies, Cloverdale; William H. Basthke, Glen Ellyn; Herman C. Wendland, Elmhurst; J. R. Foster, Downers Grove, and D. C. Hull, Wheaton.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—An emergency federal appropriation of 250 million dollars for road building was urged today by delegates from the American Association of State Highway Officials at a meeting with President Hoover's committee on employment.

Should congress accede to the proposal it will mean that 375 million dollars would be available for the relief of unemployment through work on the roads, for 125 million dollars a year can be used under the plan of federal and state coöperation now in force.

According to the plan the highway officials offered, states to which the road funds were granted would be given ten years in which to match the federal money instead of being required to match it dollar for dollar as the present law stipulates. They also recommend that the statute be amended to permit federal aid to the extent of 50 per cent of the cost of construction instead of at a maximum rate of $15,000 a mile.

Building permits in 286 cities fell 14.6 per cent in October, compared with September, the bureau of labor statistics announced today.

OFFER OF 2,793 JOBS IS SALLY'S 5 WEEKS' RECORD

1,703 for Women and 1,090 for Men.

At the close yesterday of five weeks of service in finding jobs for the unemployed THE TRIBUNE'S Sally Joy Brown department figured up the total of employment offers.

Even Sally was astonished when she found that 2,793 jobs had been offered since Oct. 18. In scanning her books and card indexes Sally found 1,090 of these jobs were for men and 1,703 for women. As fast as they are received at THE TRIBUNE the job offers have been sent to the Illinois free employment service bureau, 116 North Dearborn street, to be parceled among the hundreds who go there daily in hope of getting work.

Salesmen in Demand.

"Salesmen, carpenters, painters, and domestic or odd job men seem to have been most in demand among the unemployed men," said Sally in explaining her report. "Next in order came office workers, then factory workers, tailors, janitors, and printers. There was a large number of miscellaneous or unclassified jobs.

"Among the women the domestic jobs came first, with saleswomen and factory workers next. We had many calls for office workers and a fair number of beauty operators.

"It is, of course, impossible to know how many of these job offers were filled, as the employment service, after it sends a man or a woman to an address, is unable to follow up the case. But from many sources we have learned that those who placed their orders with the Sally Joy Brown department were well pleased with the persons sent."

A Mother's Appeal.

Among those waiting for Sally Joy Brown jobs at the Illinois service bureau yesterday was a Negro woman much in need of work, but who has had difficulty in getting it because she has only one child to feed. She remarked, Mrs. Walter said, that "it is just as hard for a mother to look at one child who is hungry as at a dozen."

A father, a truck driver, who has had a great deal of bad luck, told the bureau that he feared he could keep his two daughters in school no longer. Their clothes are so ragged that the other school children have begun to notice. He was sent out on an odd job yesterday.

The will of William A. Purcell, for more than 40 years attorney for the American Railway Express company, was filed yesterday with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. With the exception of a few minor bequests, the entire estate, valued at $865,000, is left to a son, William B. Purcell, an attorney of 5000 Greenwood avenue. Mr. Purcell died Oct. 22 at Denver, Colo.

JOBLESS WOMEN TO BE SHELTERED IN OLD CHURCH

Bible Class to Care for the Homeless.

An emergency shelter for homeless unemployed women and girls will be opened on Dec. 1 in the old Wabash Avenue Methodist church, 1460 South Wabash avenue.

In addition to being the first move among the churches to provide quarters for destitute unemployed women, this is believed to be the first effort to provide a women's shelter for the winter. It will accommodate 300 or more women and will be operated by the Artaban class of the St. James' Methodist church, 46th street and Ellis avenue.

Will Provide Breakfast.

"We will provide cots, linens and blankets for 100 on the opening day, adding the rest later," H. H. Hanks of the Chicago Beach hotel, president of the class, said last night. "We also plan to provide breakfast. A member of our class will act as house matron. She will advise the women. Five committees—meals, house, solicitation, entertainment and transportation—will see that we have funds and donations. A piano will be installed and entertainments given."

Miss Mabelle Harting, secretary of the class, said the shelter plan was originated several weeks ago. The members of the class [an adult Bible class numbering 125] expect to gather at the shelter next Saturday for an informal dedication. The pastor of the church is the Rev. James L. Gardner. John H. Hill is the teacher of the class.

More Appeals to Y. W. C. A.

A rise in the number of emergency cases of girls appealing to the Y. W. C. A. for shelter and jobs was reported yesterday by Miss Ruth Potter of the emergency bureau. New cases in addition to those placed in homes to care for children in exchange for room and board while looking for work mounted from 16 in August to 51 in October.

"We never turn away any woman or girl who comes to our residence late at night," she said. "She is taken in and then sent to the bureau where we try to guide her."

Miss Esther Stamatz, head of the Y. W. C. A. employment bureau, said that during September and October 1,895 girls and young women appealed for jobs, while the total was only 1,151 for the same period in 1929.

WOMAN'S SUIT ASKS $100,000 FROM DOCTOR

A suit for $100,000 damages, alleging slander, was filed by Mrs. Meta Koenig in the Superior court yesterday against Dr. Urban V. Comes, staff physician at the Rogers Park hospital. The suit says that Mrs. Koenig lived with Dr. Comes for more than a year on the physician's promise of marriage. Later, when she learned that he was married, the bill says, she threatened to begin a lawsuit but the physician compelled her to accept a small settlement. Since then, Mrs. Koenig charges, Dr. Comes has told his friends that she is "a common blackmailer."

GEORGE F. GETZ JOINS RANKS OF GOOD FELLOWS

Sends Check to Aid a Needy Family.

George F. Getz, philanthropist, business executive and sportsman, can now also be called a Good Fellow, with the capital letters. Yesterday he mailed his check for $100 to the Good Fellow headquarters in THE TRIBUNE offices at Dearborn and Madison streets.

"I would like to congratulate you," reads a letter accompanying the check, "upon the very excellent charitable work that you are doing through this fund. It takes care of a very definite need, and deserves every support."

Church Group Sends Check.

Among the other donations in the day's mail was $5 from the junior department of the Englewood First Methodist church. The letter said it was "to help feed a family." Every penny of the Good Fellow fund goes to some destitute family, THE TRIBUNE paying the expenses of administration.

Another $100 check was received from the employés of the Lake Shore Drive hotel. It covers the monthly budget of a family adopted for the winter by the Good Fellow hotel workers. The family consists of a woman and her eight children who were abandoned by an artisan painter when he became blind from the fumes of paint and could no longer support them.

"I asked every one to make a donation of any size they desired," said W. W. Myers, manager of the hotel. "Responses came from assistant managers, dishwashers, bell boys, and janitors, from practically every one who works for the hotel."

Plan Benefit Bridge Party.

The Alpha chapter of the Iota Sigma Phi, at a dinner last night in the Hotel Sherman, announced that it will hold a bridge party on Dec. 6 at the Bismarck hotel for the benefit of the Good Fellow fund.

"We hope to raise enough money so we can help some unfortunate family through the business slack and onto their feet again," said Miss Hazel Edwards, president of the sorority.

The Zeta Sigma Psi sorority, which is selling tickets for a Good Fellow benefit dance in the Drake hotel on Dec. 10, reported that the J. E. Bell Printing company has volunteered, as a contribution to the Good Fellows, to cancel its bill for printing the tickets and announcements for the dance. John B. Drake Jr., manager of the hotel, is donating the use of the main dining room with its dance orchestra.

To Sell Food at Cost.

"In preparing for the affair," said Mr. Drake last night, "I found that the sorority will want some food and beverages served during the evening. I'll make an additional contribution of the hotel's profits on these sales."

Last night, in the Stanford park recreation center, a comedy was presented by the dramatic group of the recreational center, with all proceeds donated to the Good Fellows.

Donations from individuals and groups continue to pour into the Good Fellow headquarters but there are still many families of cold and hungry women and children who need a helping hand from some Good Fellow to carry them through the temporary business slack with its widespread unemployment. There's a coupon published on this page of THE TRIBUNE for the convenience of those with jobs who want to help heads of families who can't find work.

HOOVER WON'T USE DEBT CASH TO CUT TAXES

Bars Plan to Suspend Sinking Fund.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Without giving any hint as to his attitude toward a continuation of this year's reduced income tax rates President Hoover today opposed any tampering with the debt retirement program required under the present sinking fund law.

The President made it evident that other funds heretofore diverted to debt retirement, such as foreign debt interest payments, will be used for current expenditures if necessary. He has not as yet abandoned hope that he can recommend a continuation of this year's tax rates. He is to reach a definite decision on this point during the coming week, before completing his annual message to congress.

Today's statement by the President was prompted by senatorial suggestions for a suspension of the sinking fund requirements for a year to avoid a deficit. Treasury officials yesterday indicated their opposition to any such proposal.

President's Statement.

"The administration is opposed to any intrenchment upon the statutory provisions for retirement of the public debt," said President Hoover. "The sinking fund now amounts to something over 430 million dollars a year. Hitherto we have allocated various funds, such as surplus or foreign debt payments, etc., to retirement over and above the statutory provisions, which excess sums would, of course, be available for current use without trenchment upon the statutory requirements. It is sound government finance to hold to the sinking fund provisions of the public debt."

The President's statement was not regarded as closing the door to a continuation of this year's reduced income tax rates, which without further legislation will lapse.

The sum used for the retirement of the public debt in the fiscal year 1930 totaled $745,778,650, of which only $388,368,950 came under the sinking fund provisions. Of the $357,409,700 retired otherwise nearly 240 million dollars consisted of foreign debt payments and other miscellaneous items.

The sinking fund is made up of 2½ per cent of the domestic portion of the public debt existing on July 1, 1920, plus amounts equal to interest which would have been paid on debt retired through the sinking fund since that time. In the current year the sinking fund will amount to about $395,000,000. The treasury under the law also this year must apply about $50,000,000 to debt retirement from principal payments of foreign governments. About 185 million dollars in interest payments from foreign governments can be used for current expenditures. Heretofore this money always has been used for debt retirement.

Those who advocate a continuation of the reduced income tax rates point out that if there is a small deficit after making use of the foreign debt interest payments it can easily be carried along in the quarterly short term financing operations.

MOVE 1933 FAIR HEADQUARTERS TO NEW BUILDING

Moving of office equipment from the former headquarters of the 1933 World's Fair in the Burnham building to the new Administration building in Grant park, just north of the Shedd aquarium, is to be completed early this morning. The office force of more than 250 persons will be transferred today to the quarters they will occupy until after the fair. All night a fleet of 15 trucks carried desks, typewriters, filing cases, and other furniture and equipment to the new building on the lake shore.

KEGEL DEFEATED ON REFRIGERATOR REGULATION ACT

Health Commissioner Kegel was defeated yesterday in his efforts to have the council health committee approve an ordinance regulating the installation of mechanical refrigerators which would give his department the control over inspections. The committee by a vote of 6 to 3 recommended to the council the ordinance sponsored by the boiler inspection department.

The new code leaves the inspection of all multiple unit refrigeration plants in the hands of George Nye, chief boiler inspector. As a safeguard against gas leaks the ordinance provides that refrigerant gases must be mixed with some other gas which has an odor that will give warning of a leak.

The committee's action practically ends the fight which Dr. Kegel has been waging for eighteen months. The Plumbers' union has been supporting Dr. Kegel in the fight, while the Steamfitters' union worked for the boiler inspection ordinance. At yesterday's meeting, however, it was announced that the two unions now are agreed on the ordinance.

GUARD EVANSTON CLEANING PLANT AFTER WALKOUT

Two armed watchmen last night guarded the plant of the University Cleaners and Dyers, 1205 Chicago avenue, Evanston, following the calling of a strike, and the arrest of Max Krasne and Albert Robins, two of the owners, on charges of issuing worthless pay checks.

According to the owners, the walkout arose over pay checks given to employés Thursday, with the request that they be not presented at the bank until the next day. However, Harold Hayes, 1124 Elmwood avenue, Evanston, a driver, attempted to cash his check that afternoon and was unable to have it honored. He notified the union, it is said, and the strike was called.

In addition, Hayes swore out warrants against Robins and Krasne before Justice of the Peace James Barber. The owners were arrested, held in jail over night, and released on $1,000 bail. Hayes' check was made good, meanwhile, by associates of the owners. After their release Krasne and Robins posted armed guards at the cleaning plant.

START WORK ON CONSTITUTION OF INDIA NEXT WEEK

Oratory Ends; Committees Take Up Job.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The stage of oratory at the Indian round table conference ended today, and next week the real work of the committees will begin.

The last half dozen Indian orators spoke their pieces today, and the debate was wound up by Prime Minister MacDonald. His speech was merely a series of compliments to the Indian delegates. He gave no indication of the British attitude. That will be disclosed at the secret committee meetings next week.

Refers to Stand of Princes.

The only significant passages in his speech were those in which he said that the case put forward by the Indian delegates had not fallen on deaf ears, and that the declarations made by the princes revolutionized the whole situation. The Indians appeared satisfied with his speech, as far as it went.

The British are surprised at the attitude of the princes, on whom it had been expected Great Britain could rely to sabotage the British Indians' claims for independence.

So far as the conference has gone the princes have been the most ardent advocates of a free India, subject, of course, to the preservation of their privileges. This is not altogether unwelcome even to the British Indian delegates, for India, no matter how democratic she may be in theory, still respects hereditary rule and is willing to submit to it as long as its natives are not subject to foreign rule.

Start Work on Constitution.

The federal relations committee, meeting on Monday, will begin work on what really will be the rough outline of a future Indian constitution. The Indians believe the conference will be short. Their idea is that this job will be worked out in rough outline and then an adjournment will be asked for the various delegates to go home and try to sell the result of their work in India, including to the Gandhi party.

LADDER FALLS; MAN HURT.

A ladder which was blown from under a painter working on the side of a building at South Wabash avenue and 8th street yesterday struck and seriously injured Grover C. Stockman, 44 years old, a railway mail clerk of Centralia. The painter, Arthur Thomas, 3023 North Paulina street, saved himself by clinging to a sign.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Arthur Young, sister of Gen. William Mitchell and a Milwaukee social leader, received a decree of divorce in the Ozaukee County Circuit court at Port Washington Monday. That became known today. The divorce was granted on grounds of desertion, Mrs. Young stipulating that her husband left her May 16, 1929. Mrs. Young was given custody of her daughter, Harriet, and the son, Arthur J., was given to his father's care. Circuit Judge C. M. Davison signed the decree.

A division of property was stipulated in place of alimony. Mrs. Young has been living at her home at Thiensville since the separation.

The Youngs were married June 17, 1908.

Mr. Young is associated with an accounting and auditing firm. He is a member of a pioneer Milwaukee family. His home Youngcraft on the Dean road is one of the show places of Milwaukee. His sister, Miss Grace Young, recently married the Rev. Howard Agnew Johnston, pastor of the Immanuel Presbyterian church.

Seeks to Enter U. of C.; Threatens Women Clerks

A man who said he was John Dore, 26 years old, of Hamilton, Ont., and apparently suffering from a mental disorder, frightened women clerks yesterday when he appeared at the recorder's office at the University of Chicago and threatened violence when told he could not enroll in the university. Dr. Stewart Sniffen, psychiatrist of the department of social service, had the man taken to the psychopathic hospital for observation.

SPANISH RIOTERS BATTLE POLICE; ONE SLAIN, 4 SHOT

Radical Workers Refuse to Return to Jobs.

BARCELONA, Spain, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Rebel members of the labor union "Syndicato Unico," who have refused to obey their leaders' order to return to work after the general strike, continued rioting here today. One of their number was killed in a clash with police.

The encounter occurred in the factory town of Gava, six miles from here. Four workmen were wounded as police charged a milling mob of strikers and strikebreakers, but the disturbance was quickly quelled and the police escorted the workers to their places of employment.

Rest of City Quiet.

Meantime the rest of the city remained quiet and business was practically normal after the disorders of the last several days.

In a raid on a left wing meeting place today police found a quantity of revolutionary pamphlets inciting workers to rise against the government, but it was believed these were intended for distribution before the general strike was called off.

More than a thousand persons have been summoned to testify at an official investigation into the strike and its attendant disorders and a round-up of suspected communist agitators is continuing.

King Calls for Showdown.

MADRID, Nov. 21.—(AP)—King Alfonso called for a showdown today in the face of persistent reports that his powerful elite corps of artillery was ready to revolt, and made a personal inspection of the artillery barracks.

He looked over the quipment, chatted with officers and men, and smiled broadly in response to welcoming cheers. The city commented with admiration tonight, for while this was officially a routine inspection, it was interpreted as another example of the king's flair for cool, dramatic directness in confronting emergencies.

A sentence of eight months' imprisonment has been imposed upon Maj. Ramon Franco, noted Spanish aviator, who has been in jail for some time on account of political activities.

Auto Dealer Again Sues Buyer for Knocking Car

John S. Jackson, automobile dealer at 7320 Stony Island avenue, yesterday filed a second suit for $200,000 damages in the Superior court against F. S. Hendricks, real estate operator of 7023 Sheridan road. The suit charges libel and alleges that Hendricks purchased an expensive auto from Jackson and since has been driving it about the city bearing a placard branding the car a "lemon" and offering to trade it for a cheaper car. A similar suit for $200,000 was filed a few weeks ago. Attorney Joseph Z. Willner, representing Jackson, said a suit will be filed every time Hendricks is seen in the automobile.

SIX FRENCH BORN YANKS FACE TRIAL AS "DESERTERS"

Suffer in Squalid Army Jail at Rouen.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROUEN, France, Nov. 21.—Clothed in the fatigue uniform of the French convicts and subjected to the iron discipline that is the fate of military offenders in one of the world's toughest armies, a half dozen American citizens are awaiting trial by court martial as deserters or defaulters from military sevice in the prison cells of the 39th infantry here.

They are Leon Bogen of New York, Alexander Du Moulin of Detroit, and four others hailing from New Orleans, Denver, Alabama, and Connecticut. Another prisoner, Gabriel Rohmer of New York, who travels under his Egyptian title of Saleh Bey, was released a few days ago after a month's imprisonment on an anonymous denunciation.

All Were Born in France.

All of these military prisoners have succeeded in proving that they are American citizens and all came to France on American passports, but because they were born in France and left before they served their term of compulsory military service they were arrested when they arrived.

Most of the Americans have been here for at least a month. After being finally brought to trial, if found guilty they will be transferred from the clammy climate of Normandy to the blistering sands of north Africa or the malarial jungles of Indo-China, and there serve out their period of military service in a labor battalion.

Would Welcome Change.

To the men in prison here, however, anything looks bright compared to the present misery. One of the imprisoned Americans today gave the following picture of the life in the somber dungeons.

"The cells are horrible iron cages with flagstone floors. The only furniture is a wooden bench which has to serve as a bed, and we are only allowed on thin moth eaten blanket, which is usually crawling with vermin. The sanitary arrangements consist of a bucket of water and an open trough running through the cells, in which slops are dumped.

Get Scrap Stew.

"The cells are dark and we are compelled to buy candles if we wish light. The only food is a nauseous stew made of scraps of meat and vegetables, the heads and tails of fish, and other things picked from mess plates of the regiment, with a piece of moldy bread floating around.

"We are allowed to walk around in the prison yard two hours every day under the eyes of guards. The brutality of the noncommissioned officers is beyond belief. Bogen, who is charged with desertion from the French army during the war—the worst crime any one can commit in this country—became so ill from imprisonment and brutal treatment that he had to be taken to a hospital where he nearly died."

Some of the American prisoners owe their misfortune as a result of anonymous denunciations cabled from America. Often jealous wives are responsible for getting their husbands, traveling as bachelors in Europe, thrown in the Rouen jail.

The American government is powerless to help citizens who dodged military service in France because no naturalization treaty exists between the two countries.

Asks Divorce Change

MRS. MURIEL HANFORD.

Mrs. Muriel Keane Hanford, former actress known on the stage as Muriel Window, filed a petition in the Circuit court yesterday to amend a divorce decree she won ten years ago from Robert Emmet Keane, an actor. Her attorney, David T. Alexander, said the purpose of the petition is to legalize Mrs. Hanford's marriage to Arthur S. Hanford Jr., wealthy resident of Sioux City, Ia., whom she is suing for separate maintenance.

Dispatches from Sioux City a week ago stated that Hanford had filed a cross-bill to his wife's suit asking that their marriage be annulled on ground that it was illegal because he married Mrs. Keane five days after her divorce hearing, but before the decree was actually signed. He asserted his wife had made heavy demands on him for money during their ten years of married life and he has given her an average of $800 a month.

Mrs. Hanford says in her petition that she and two witnesses testified before Judge McGoorty on April 27, 1930, and that the judge indicated he would grant her a divorce. Until their separation Hanford never raised the question of the legality of their marriage, she says.

ILLINOIS HONORS PIONEER EDITORS BY HALL OF FAME

Ceremony Takes Place at State University.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—To the strains of a mighty organ, in a solemnly reverent ceremony, Illinois paid tribute this afternoon to the pioneers in her journalistic history with the inauguration of her editors' hall of fame.

Bronze busts of eight outstanding figures in the newspaper chronicles of the state and nation were unveiled at the auditorium on the campus as the nucleus of the gallery of renown sponsored by the Illinois Press association. Four others are to be unveiled later.

Grouped on the platform for the program of dedication was an impressive bevy of speakers. The chief executive of the state, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, was there. So were the heads of two great institutions of learnings, Presidents Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago and Harry W. Chase of the University of Illinois. So also were John H. Finley, associate editor of the New York Times; J. E. Dertinger, president of the Illinois Press association, and several other editors and publicists.

Large Audience Present.

Faculty members and students of the university, friends and former associates of the men thus honored, and the general public crowded the auditorium and gallery.

Of them Gov. Emmerson said: "They were strong and outstanding men in a profession where no man has a right to be weak."

Those Honored.

In the order to which they were elected to this honor the busts represented:

EDWARD WYLLIS SCRIPPS, 1854-1926 (Jo Davidson); originator of the United Press, N. E. A., and other associations.

HENRY MEANS PINDELL, 1860-1924 (Hansen); editor of the Peoria Transcript and Journal.

Election of four additional members to the hall of fame, whose busts are not yet completed but who were also cited in the presentation address of President Dertinger of the Press association, are:

MELVILLE E. STONE, 1848-1929, for nearly thirty years head of the Associated Press as general manager and counselor.

Gov. Emmerson's Eulogy.

The address of Gov. Emmerson, who accepted the busts on behalf of the state, and in his capacity as a trustee of the University of Illinois, was well received. Referring to the fact that some of the editors included had been personally known to him, he said:

"I have been privileged to count some of these men honored here today as my close friends and I know that their shortcomings are forgotten in the glorious memories of their achievements. These early editors of Illinois have turned the last pages of life. What we say here can add nothing to that record. It is for us to profit by the inspiration which their lives afforded.

"They were men of ideals and they followed them in adversity just as they did in success. They helped build in a natural Garden of Eden a state that is proud of its past and confident of its future."

To which testimonial it remained for the Press association head, Mr. Dertinger, to add that the exercises of this afternoon "reflect dignity and honor upon the profession of which we are all proud, and to which the men here memorialized gave their rich lives and their high talents."

Unveiled by Miss Dertinger.

The unveiling was delegated to Miss Elizabeth Dertinger, daughter of the speaker, and followed the biographical sketches of the various members of the hall of fame, which had just been given by her father.

Col. Finley, head of the New York Times, looked for a few moments during his address into the future of journalism, in a plea for the preparation of a few scholars who will be prepared to write on varied topics with a sympathetic and understanding vision.

Joseph Medill, THE TRIBUNE founder, Mr. Dertinger described in his biographical notes as "a man known to every student of the history of journalism in Illinois, he was one of the most significant figures of the life of Chicago and the middle west, who brought THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE from a position of relative insignificance to one of international importance and scope, who was editor, executive, and mayor, a guiding spirit of the Republican party, and a friend of Lincoln."

THE REMEDY FOR HIGH TAXES.

The Association of Real Estate Taxpayers has made its bow to the public in a brochure intended to present salient facts regarding the public revenues in Cook county. The figures cited show what every taxpayer probably suspects already: that intangible wealth in bonds, stocks, and other forms constitutes the greater part of the wealth in the community while real estate, which is relatively of less value, pays more than 80 per cent of the taxes.

Unfortunately the association has allowed its anxiety to undermine its critical faculties. The brochure makes much, for example, of the fact that in the year 1931 Cook county property will have to pay $548,000,000 in taxes, which, we are told, is $60,000,000 more than Germany's annual payments for reparations and two and a half times as much as the federal income tax collections from the whole of Illinois in 1929. The comparison is more startling than meaningful. It overlooks the fact that no taxes at all were paid by Cook county real estate for more than two years, from April, 1928, to July, 1930, because of the reassessment. The $548,000,000 which must be paid in 1931 is, in reality, two years' taxes, and, though the two payments will come in the same calendar year, they will be separated by ten months. Meanwhile reserves for taxes, where set up, have been earning interest.

The situation is bad and perhaps even critical, but no service is done the community by distorting the facts. Present taxation is unjust and inequitable, but in operation it is not so grossly unfair as the association would have us believe. The fact is that the owners of the intangibles which are not taxed are in an enormous number of instances also the owners of real estate. If they evade taxes on their intangibles they pay them on their realty. Likewise, the man who owns stock in a corporation owning real property in Illinois may pay no tax on the stock as such, but the value of the stock is reduced by the fact that the corporation which issued it must pay taxes on its real estate and therefore can distribute less in dividends to the stockholders. And, of course, every rentpayer is, in effect, a taxpayer, even though he receives no bill in his own name from the county treasurer.

With these qualifications, the report has value in presenting some of the more striking elements in the situation. The report is weak, however, in its discussion of remedies. At one point the suggestion is made that the tax collections may be enjoined on the ground that the constitutional provision for equality as between tangibles and intangibles has been violated. We are not prepared to predict what the courts would do if the matter were presented to them, but even the association must regard the proposal to throw out all tax assessments as a last resort. In effect it would again cut off all revenues from the local governments and create another crisis like that caused by the reassessment.

Ultimately there must be a revision of the tax provisions of the Illinois constitution. The defeat of the proposed amendment a few weeks ago means that no other change in the tax articles can be proposed for another four years. Meanwhile every effort should be concentrated upon reducing the costs of government, both state and local, as far as possible. Every one knows that our local governments are extravagant; no one should know that better than the gentlemen of the association in whose name the report is issued. A glance at the list of names on page 2 of the report shows that many of them have been and are associated in one way or another with the very men whose reckless handling of public funds has placed so heavy a burden upon real estate in Cook county. Perhaps that is the reason that the obvious remedy of reducing the costs of government is not stressed with greater force.

For the present we believe that a reduction in the costs of government is the only acceptable remedy. If the legislature passes an income tax, and there is no particular reason to think it will, the courts may throw the law out as unconstitutional. In any event, under present conditions, an income tax could only mean another tax. Real estate would get little or no relief while the tax spenders would get more to spend. A wholesale refusal to pay taxes, a taxpayers' strike, is a possible alternative, but it promises only a worse dislocation of values and the temporary bankrupting of government.

GOLDEN DAYS IN ITALY.

The news reels have pictured the home coming of Primo Carnera, the Italian pugilist, who is back from the new world with more gold than Drake or Frobisher ever brought in from a cruise. His fellow countrymen received him with such enthusiasm that he was nearly dismembered. The moving camera shows a much perturbed young giant who is plainly skeptical as to his ability to get out of the crowds alive. The boy is as glassy eyed as if he had just taken one on the chin from a first rater and would need a count of at least a hundred to come out of it. He was getting a worse pushing around from his admirers than he ever got on the Amercian pork and bean circuit.

Italy, under stimulation by Mussolini, is the land for heroes. That means youth. Il Duce has made the Roman eagles young again. It is at least an emotional renaissance, ready with garlands for any captain or adventurer who can come home with strange tales of other lands with attending legends of exploits among the heathen. Carnera is a centurion who has been far over seas among the duck billed people who use furniture polish for wine and go nowhere at 60 miles an hour.

THE RAILROADS AND PROSPERITY.

The resolution reached by the National Association of Railroad Executives at their annual meeting is encouraging evidence of public spirit in the most important of our industries. It is evidence of good faith that the resolution is phrased cautiously and avoids promises which conditions may make it impossible with the best of will to fulfill. The railroads are carrying a heavy burden in times which strain the strongest enterprises. Their earnings have been greatly reduced, in some cases to a point which imperils solvency or the credit upon which efficient operation, to say nothing of expansion, depends. They have for years been subjected not only to the increasing competition of new forms of transport but to a policy of regulation which, however intended to protect the general public interest, has been persistently restrictive and often shortsighted. Some of the great systems have prospered in spite of this and are now prosperous. But many have been greatly depleted, and, as a whole, the industry is not in the condition to meet, as well as it is its interest and that of the public to do, the problems presented by the business depression. Nevertheless, the executives have pledged their utmost effort to keep employment at as high a level as their means permit and to maintain and, if possible, to increase their efficiency.

In this effort they ought to have the aid of a constructive government policy which will seek to correct inequitable exactions and regulations and increase the railroads' ability to assist in the earliest possible restoration of prosperity. No industry in the country can be a more powerful factor in our recovery than that of the railroads, if they are given adequate means not barely to meet taxation and fixed charges but promptly to make necessary repairs, to improve their roadbeds, their rolling stock, and their terminals, to electrify and to modernize their equipment, and, in short, to advance as other great industries of the United States are doing through vigorous initiative and the constant improvement of methods and equipment. Undernourishment makes health and progress impossible and is injurious not only to the railroads but to the economic welfare of the country.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO'S NEW PLAN.

The tentative plan for educational reorganization announced by President Hutchins seems to us to represent a vigorous initiative which deserves in itself a welcome which need not wait upon results. As evidence of intelligent self-criticism, of openness of mind, of a truly scientific spirit of progressiveness, the plan is a most encouraging portent. Our own optimism, though it has little or no support in the special knowledge of the professional educator, is founded on our faith in these qualities, and also upon our belief in the soundness of the general views which President Hutchins expresses in outlining the new project. As we see it, the movement is toward the elasticity and variety of life and away from the rigidity of conventional forms. In the higher education this seems to us an emphatic need and, without speculating upon details of application, courses of study, classification of work, readjustments of departments and administration for more effective coöperation, etc., there is everything to be hoped from such a movement. It represents the highest type of educational leadership and strengthens our confidence in the future of the University of Chicago among the world's greatest institutions of learning.

SCOFFLAWS HERE AND THERE.

The new prohibition administrator for New Jersey is going to show the scofflaws of that commonwealth that prohibition prohibits. He has declared war on all male patrons of speakeasies. Apparently prohibition, in his view, does not prohibit the female scofflaw from indulging an illicit appetite. But we are not so much intrigued by this theory as we are by the choice of front for the new offensive. Is New Jersey chosen for special measures, by any chance, because it has just elected to the senate an unblushing advocate of the repeal of the 18th amendment? If not, we shall, of course, soon hear that the citizenry of regions like Florida, where liquor is sold openly over the bar, or, like Kansas, where it is not purveyed so openly, but can be had with little inconvenience, will be overcrowding the jails.

Editorial of the Day

[Battle Creek Enquirer and News.]

Speaking before the National Advertisers' convention in Washington Monday evening, David Lawrence made the point that the country has nothing to fear from a political change resulting from the elections because the new congress will not meet until a year from December.

That is 13 months away and in 13 months conditions will unquestionably have changed. In 13 months the temper of public opinion will have changed. And if, as there is every reason to expect, business is moving along at a normal rate within 13 months, the country will have ceased looking for legislative cures.

In slow times radical politics finds its greatest opportunity. If the new congress were to convene now, the radical element, though small, would have much to say and much to ballyhoo. But that opportunity will have passed in 13 months. By a year from next December one party will be as interested as the other in keeping things moving ahead on an even keel and erratic schemes of relief will be untimely from any source.

Though a deadlocked congress might at this time interfere with business or add another psychological handicap, the question of congressional control will not bear so directly in 13 months. And in the meantime, if business looks to itself for the needed remedies it will find them and by a year from December will not be disturbed in any way by the meeting of the new congress.

TREATING IRITIS.

W. S. N. asks for an article on iritis. He is having his second attack within a year. A friend has been having attacks periodically for twelve years. He asks particularly for the cause and treatment.

Iritis means inflammation of the iris. Since that membrane is a part of the middle coat of the eye, iritis is apt to be part of chorioiditis. It may involve that part that shapes the pupil or it may involve some other part of the middle coat, or any other part of it.

The history he gives is typical. It comes in attacks and these have a tendency to repeat. Rarely is it a disease of children or young adults. It is important because of the pain, inconvenience, and incapacity it causes, because it may result in glaucoma, blindness, partial blindness, irregularities of the pupil, or loss of the eyeball. It is also of importance because it is usually a local sign of a general disease.

The most frequent single or combined cause is syphilis. It is apt to be a manifestation of inherited syphilis of the late developing type. Another frequent cause is so-called rheumatism. Instead of calling it rheumatism now we say iritis is caused by infection with streptococci absorbed from infected tonsils. Maybe the absorption is from the teeth, gums or from a sinus. Infection with gonococci is another cause.

This is the eye trouble which develops in the good eye in the wake of an injury or disease in the other eye. The name it goes by in such a case is sympathetic iritis. Infection with tubercle bacilli is another cause. Absorption of toxic substances from the digestive tract is sometimes charged with causing some cases. Plainly, when a man develops an attack of iritis after treatment for relief has been given the physician should begin probing for the cause. It may lie almost anywhere. This policy is advisable both because the eye is endangered and the general discomfort warrants it and because the first attack is almost certain to be followed by a second.

The eye is very sensitive to light, from more than one standpoint. Therefore eye strain due to glare, poor lighting, eye work of any sort should be guarded against. Drops to prevent the iris from sticking to the lens are generally used. If there is reason to suspect syphilis, that suspicion indicates the treatment.

The eye specialists say mercurial treatment benefits so many of the cases that either syphilis can be effectively masked or else mercurials are of service in iritis not due to syphilis. Since so many cases are due to infections with streptococci, anti-rheumatic treatment benefits a large proportion of the cases. As you see, the physician should search far and wide for the cause, and the treatment to be given depends on the cause he finds or suspects.

SEVERAL MONTHS NEEDED.

1. How soon after one starts taking cod liver oil should it show results?
2. Not liking the taste, I use a little orange juice with it. Is that all right?

REPLY.

1. I don't know why you are taking it, or in what dose, or what results you are looking for. As a rule, cod liver oil should be taken for several months.
2. Yes.

HARD WATER SOFTENED.

C. G. writes:

1. Where I live the city water is very hard and we have installed a water softener. This makes the water very soft with a flat taste. Is this softened water good for drinking purposes?
2. I have had trouble with gravel in one of my kindneys and drinking hard water seems to aggravate it. Drinking the soft water seems to relieve it.

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Drinking moderately hard water does no harm, as a rule. But persons who are subject to kidney stones are generally advised to drink very soft water.

CHARGE THEM RENT.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A riding club without permit has established a bridle path across my corner lot and on through the whole subdivision, none of which is improved. Evidence that automobiles use this path is also obvious. Upon investigation and complaint to the subdividers the riding club's identity was established. Subsequently I received a written request from the club for permission to continue the use and maintenance of this path. 1. If this request were granted would it in time become by law a public highway? 2. What rights by continued use would the club gain over my property? 3. I have been told that in some states a road established and used across one's property for one year made the road a public highway.

R. P. B.

1. Yes, in twenty years. You could exclude this possibility by having them pay you a nominal rent.
2. The rights as described.
3. We know of no state with so short a limitation period.

INSPECT BEFORE BUYING.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought a bungalow on contract and have lived in same for three years. Due to poor workmanship or other unknown reason the walls and concrete foundation have cracked. Have notified builder and as yet nothing has been done by him to remedy this. Would like to know if I could legally break contract and get my equity out of the house, or if they are not compelled to repair these damages. J. J. W.

You would have no legal remedy on the bare facts stated. In general, a purchaser is supposed to buy in reliance on an inspection made before he purchases.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By AA

MAYBE THAT'S WHY AARON BURR SHOT HIM.

The newspapers everywhere, shooting off firecrackers for the latest University of Chicago stunt, whereby a student doesn't have to stick around four years to get his sheepskin, but can have it in two weeks, five days, sixteen hours, thirty-one minutes, and ten seconds if he can do the work in that time, say that it is "new," "truly radical," "revolutionary," and "a remarkable experiment." Listen, dearies, there ain't nothing new under the sun. And if you will dust off your history books, newspapers, we'll prove it to you. When young Mr. Alexander Hamilton (whom you will recall referring to many times in the sentence, "Andrew Mellon is the greatest secretary of the treasury since," etc.) first came to America back in 1772, the idea was to go to college. His choice was Princeton, but he didn't want to spend four years going there; he insisted on graduating as soon as he had completed the course and passed the examinations. The president of Princeton wouldn't agree to let him take the course as fast as he could. So young Mr. Hamilton told Princeton to go jump in the ocean and went to King's College in New York (that's Columbia now), and the jolly old prexy of King's, when the matter was put up to him, said: "Sure, go to it. You can graduate here in two weeks, five days, sixteen hours, thirty-one minutes, and ten seconds, if you do the work." And Alex practically did. That was back in the eighteenth century, newspapers. Honestly, dearies, there isn't anything new under the sun. And don't let papa catch you saying there is again.

THE FOOL IS HAPPY.

O, Genius is a better steed,
And Energy is stronger,
But Patience is a good beast,
Will plod a little longer;
And if I like to rest a while
There's no one by to blame me;
I have no Public to recall,
No Critic to defame me.
I never goad my Pegasus,
I know his limitations—
His interest is less in flight
Than in his daily rations;
And if I come not first of all
And if I come not second,
Perhaps I still may reach my goal
As early as I reckoned;
And if I never come at all . . .
Why, then, another rover
Has vanished with a plaintive song,

DOROTHY KISSLING.

NORTHWESTERN in the great spectacular windup of the football season today will whip Notre Dame 36 to 7. We merely mention this to keep our record without stain. We've never guessed a football score right in twenty-five years of earnest guessing.

THE DAUGHTERS of the Confederacy object strenuously to the name "Civil War" and want it changed to "the War Between the States." We can't see that there's any more difference between the two than 'twixt tweedledum and tweedledee, but the Daughters, like all ladies' organizations, just have to change things around. Anyhow, "the late unpleasantness" seems the best name for that trouble we had in the Sixties, and let's let it go at that.

A FEATHERED SCOFFLAW.

It was very annoying, not to say humiliating, to one who has always been very fond of poultry (especially in the form of chicken pie) to read in the newspapers yesterday that a setting hen back of a speakeasy in St. Louis was discovered to be sitting on six pints of alcoholic likker. Dry sleuths took away the likker but apparently did not shoot the hen or even put her in jail. The girls of the W. C. T. U. should do something about this. They should at least talk to the hen gently but firmly and explain to her the sinfulness of her act. To attempt to hatch six bottles of hootch is nullification and nothing else. It would be idle for the hen to claim that she laid the six pints of likker; she did not, the little liar, she was sitting on them to hide them from the law of the land. And if she will not promise to be a one hundred and twenty per cent American in the future, then send her back to Henley, where she came from.

A LADY won a divorce in a Chicago court yesterday by testifying that her beloved had been drunk 750 times in five years. There seems to be just a little touch of pride in the lady's statement; 750 almost sounds as if she were bragging.

Modesty, Get Thou Behind Us!

R. H. L.: You always do include my favorite poems in the Line book, so I seldom make requests; but to me the poem that stands out from the whole year is "Poet," by Dorothy Kissling. I know you will have that in. When I see her name in the Line I fairly pounce on the poem, hoping for another such gem. To my mind your column is like a daily surprise package that sometimes thrills, sometimes buoys, but always interests. It is my spiritual morning coffee. (What a metaphor for a verse writer! Let it rank with Cordelia's salt and be forgiven for its gross materialism.)

ADELAIDE P. LOVE.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 22, 1914.

LONDON.—A Rome dispatch declares that the commander of the fortress of Przemysl, besieged by the Russians, offered to capitulate upon condition that the garrison be permitted to march out with arms and equipment. The Russians refused.

PETROGRAD. — Enormous losses were inflicted on the Austro-Germap forces which advanced eastward between Kielce and Radom, and at all other points Russian lines have successfully repulsed efforts of the enemy to press forward in the movement upon Warsaw, it is stated here.

PARIS.—French forces have captured the heights of Ornes, near Verdun, and silenced two German batteries, according to dispatches.

WASHINGTON. — Great Britain, Spain, and Cuba have notified this government that their citizens in Mexico are panic stricken with the fear that they may lose their lives and property after the American troops leave Vera Cruz. These statements, however, have not altered President Wilson's determination to evacuate Vera Cruz on Nov. 23.

WASHINGTON.—Turkey has voluntarily explained to the United States government through Ambassador Morgenthau that the shots fired toward the launch of the American cruiser Tennessee were intended merely as a customary warning that the port at Smyrna was mined and closed to navigation.

CHICAGO. — Gales on the great lakes and tornadoes on land caused serious loss of life and property yesterday. On all sides of Chicago storms raged, sinking vessels or driving them ashore on the inland seas and wrecking hundreds of houses in various towns. The roll of victims of the storm in Tennessee and Mississippi up to midnight was 67 dead and 51 injured. Ohio, Colorado and Utah were swept by hurricanes. Colorado Springs was badly damaged.

CHICAGO.—Nat Goodwin is out his heavy winter overcoat. A young man presented an order to the clerk at the Wellington hotel, purporting to have been signed by the actor, directing the hotel to give the bearer the coat. Shortly afterward an order was presented at the Powers theater, with the bogus signature of Maxine Elliott, Mr. Goodwin's wife, directing the management to pay the bearer $20. It did so.

LONDON.—A dispatch from Lord Roberts says an outpost of the "Buffs" walked into a Boer trap southwest of Balmoral on Nov. 10. Six of the "Buffs" were killed, five wounded and 31, including an officer, taken prisoners.

NOVEMBER 22, 1880.

ST. PETERSBURG.—A large number of nihilist placards have just appeared upon the walls of St. Petersburg. They proclaim in flaming characters the beginning of a fresh revolutionary movement beside which all former agitations will be considered insignificant. Ominous warning is given that the throne of Alexander will be vacant before the dawn of another year.

LONDON. — Sir Alexander Cockburn, lord chief justice of the Queen's bench, died suddenly after being seized with a pain over the heart. He was a great orator and a man of immense learning in the law. He was principally known to Americans through his connection with the Geneva arbitration and the great Tichborne trial.

LONDON.—Field Marshal General Sir Charles Yorke, constable of the tower, died at the age of 90. He served with distinction in the peninsula and at Waterloo.

WASHINGTON. — The annual report of the Indian bureau for 1880 shows a continued, steady advancement toward civilization on the part of nearly all Indian tribes, especially among the Ogalallas and the Brule Sioux. During the year 60 boarding and 110 day schools have been in operation among the different Indian tribes, exclusive of the five civilized tribes in Indian territory.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—If a candidate identified with politics must be chosen—and there is a good deal of truth in what Harold Ickes recently said about the wisdom of selecting a politician—why doesn't the Republican party offer the best it has instead of its worst? There are still some Republicans who possess clean reputations. Why not consider Isaac N. Powell, Walter J. Raymer, Gen. Milton J. Foreman, Edward J. Brundage, or Col. Noble B. Judah? The Republican party needs leadership and badly, too. It needs a revival of popular government. Leaderless in Washington, drifting in Illinois, and submerged in Chicago by political racketeers, how can it expect aid from decent Republicans until a change in methods takes place?

The Republican party will be officeless if it continues to solicit aid for discredited politicians. Let the thousands of party supporters who want old-time Republicanism restored have a chance at the primaries to vote for a candidate worthy of the party ideals.

ABOUT AN ASSESSMENT.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Upon making complaint on the third floor, county building, regarding taxes on vacant, Niles Center, I am told at the desk that my individual complaint will receive no attention, that 51 per cent of the property owners in the block have to complain, collectively, before my complaint will be considered. Then when I get in touch with other property owners in Niles Center, I find the only way I can work is to turn it over to tax reduction sharks, who will get one-half. What is the game, assessors? Come out of hiding and tell us. I was told at the desk that no consideration for individual complaints on vacant is a "regulation" of the board of assessors.

A TURNING WORM.

SUMMERALL.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Summerall, as an actor in the whole show, may or may not be the man your editorial in Tuesday's TRIBUNE paints him, but to thousands of veterans of the Second division he is something far different. This man ordered, commanded the crossing of the Meuse the night of Nov. 10, knowing full well an armistice was arranged for the next morning. The general commanding the Second division and his staff made a difficult and long journey back from the front to Summerall headquarters Nov. 10. They pleaded with him not to push the crossing of the Meuse that night.

He was asked as a man. All knew of the armistice of the next day. The Germans could not have strengthened their defenses any more than they were entrenched in one day's time. If the armistice went by the board, the Meuse could have been crossed the 11th. Summerall gave a direct order to the commanding general of the Second division to cross. It was at what a cost in lives unnecessarily; one company went in with 130 men, came out with 15, in just one-half hour. The major of one battalion of marines sacrificed his career in the corps, but he saved the lives of most of his men by deploying them in the woods and not joining the attack. Today he is remembered by those of his battalion far beyond any picture Summerall will cut in the hearts of soldiers.

Summerall may have been all you paint, but he erred, and erred grievously, in his grasp of actualities the last two days of the war. It is not to be expected that you will even print this in your column, but it is written in the memories of thousands of officers and men of the Second division.

WARNS OF 'UPLIFT' INVADING HOME PRIVACY OF CHILD

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam has no intention of sending the baby to sleep, no matter what the experts at this White House conference on child health and protection have to say about the proper dimensions for the cradle.

In his speech tonight before the entire conference, Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, its chairman, guaranteed to the American mother prior rights in her own child.

"We want a minimum of legislation in this field," he told the delegates, who, in turn, are to tell the parents of the nation. "Our function should be to help parents, not replace them. The accessories which our civilization has brought for the care, protection, and development of the child should be accessories to the home, and not supplant it. In other words, there must be a decentralization into the local field of the great mass of the problems we have been studying."

At the same time, the community is at least a silent partner in every family group, according to Secretary Wilbur, who asserted:

"Every child is our child. Parental responsibility is moving outward to include community responsibility. The parent, plus the community, must be stronger than either the parent or the community alone.

"In general I think that we will agree that we must assist children in their own development, not 'bring them up,' as has been so often done in the past. We are, I think, convinced, too, that children should not be used as test tubes for opinionated programs, with no worked out basis of science or fact. I think we are all more or less suspicious of those whose hearts impel them to 'do good' to children when their minds are untrained or guided by fixed fantasies or the crank type."

Because he believes that the child's most valuable quality is his elasticity, Secretary Wilbur sees a serious menace in "our marshaled athletics, our dominated recreations, in our yelling sections, and our overevident coaches."

Strikes Responsive Note.

And he got a laugh of reminiscence from his audience when he said:

"I imagine, too, that the modern parent with his or her ideas regarding vitamins, cod liver oil, and conduct is at times an undesirable associate in the view of many of our children."

Praising the numerous and minute reports which the experts have presented to the conferees urging still further study of many of the problems, the chairman of the conference warned the delegates against killing the child with kindness and attention. His words were:

"And in the midst of our crowding eagerness to help lift our children to higher levels, to guard them against our own overzealous programming, we must leave them sufficiently wide margins of free time and free space for the great and joyous adventure of growing up as personalities operating under their own motive power."

The row over recommending that all child health work be transferred from the children's bureau to the public health service, progressing from a small subcommittee in which Miss Grace Abbott, head of the children's bureau, gave a dissenting opinion, on through committees and sections, is scheduled to come to the final session of the general conference tomorrow morning.

At least it will come there unless the committee on procedure, believing that it is so controversial that it will somewhat challenge President Hoover's plea that no controversial matters come up, refers it to the President's continuing committee.

Protest Bureau Transfer.

Today the fight grew from one of women who supported the children's bureau side and the men who sided with the public health service to a question of national proportions. Doctors, men as well as women, sent dozens of telegrams to the conference protesting against the proposed transfer.

Secretary of Labor Davis held a conference with Miss Abbott, and John P. Fry, secretary of the metal trades of the American Federation of Labor, criticized the committee for presuming to make such a recommendation without ever consulting national organizations such as his which had been vitally instrumental in starting the children's bureau.

Later in the day the section on the "handicapped" passed resolutions urging that the work be kept in the bureau and admonishing the conference not to present any other recommendation. This brings two of the four of the President's anticipated "harmony conferences" in bitter opposition.

During the heat of the argument Mrs. Florence Kelly, head of the National Consumers' league, went so far as to predict that this White House child conference, the third in history, will fail to share the glories of the Roosevelt one in 1909 and the Wilson one of 1919 if it persists in letting one committee impose its report on the entire body of delegates.

Among the Chicagoans on today's program were Miss Jessie Binford of the Juvenile Protective league, Miss Ann S. Davis of the vocational guidance bureau of the board of education, Prof. J. Ferris of the University of Chicago, and Alexander Legge, chairman of the federal farm board.

Children Find Sand Sprite; Get Daily Wish

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.
[Director of Children's Work for Branches, Chicago Public Library.]

"The Cat Who Went to Heaven," by Elizabeth Coatsworth [Macmillan].
"Toby and the Goblin," by Elizabeth Atkins [Rand McNally].

Young readers who enjoyed "The Bastable Children" have another treat in store for them this year, for the new book by Edith Bland Nesbit entitled "The Five Children" is as full of fantasy, humor, and imagination as was the earlier one.

This time it is the story of another family, of five children, who have as glorious a time as did the young Bastables.

Their adventures all began when they were staying in the white house in the country, and went to dig in the gravel pit one day and discovered the Psammead [pronounced Sammy-ad]. At first the children didn't know what to make of the strange little creature, but when it explained to them that the name really meant only "sand fairy" they knew they were going to have a wonderful time together.

And what a time they did have when the sand fairy began granting them one wish a day. Of course, the wishes didn't always turn out as they expected them to, but that wasn't the Psammead's fault. It always gave them just what they asked for. This is only one of the stories in the book, and the other two, which are called "The Phoenix and the Carpet," which tells their adventures with the magic carpet, and "The Story of the Amulet," which takes them into Egypt, are just as good. All three tales are delightful, and one rejoices that these fine stories of wholesome, natural childhood are available in such attractive format for our children today.

Another book of unusual merit which graces this year's list is Elizabeth Coatsworth's "The Cat Who Went to Heaven." It is a story of a little spotted cat which could not bear to be omitted from the picture of the Buddha when all the other animals had a place there, and of a young Japanese artist who gives up hope of fame and fortune to put her in, only to find them returned to him in greater measure by the hand of the prophet himself. It is a story beautiful in conception and telling, which has a place among the best literary productions of the year for young people. It is illustrated by Lynd Ward.

Boys and girls who like a taste of goblins and elves in their books will want to know about Arthur Mason's "Wee Men of Ballywooden" and Elizabeth Atkins' "Toby's Goblin." The wee men lived in Ireland and were good friends to Danny O'Day and his old donkey until the night that the big wind came and scattered them far and wide. These are delightful tales of the little folk who have their place in the fields and forests and hearts of Ireland. "Toby's Goblin" is a rollicking story of a little Dutch boy and the funny little goblin which caused everybody so much trouble.

Personal and Private

Last Sunday night at the Arts club Mary Borden, author of "The Woman with White Eyes," gave a thrilling talk on literary London. I'd tell you about it, except that I have persuaded her to write out most of it and you shall have it next Saturday in her own words. Mary Borden is as romantic a figure as any character in a book. She is the wife of Brig. Gen. Spears, she knows literally every one in London—from prime ministers to communists and from masters of hounds to Bernard Shaw. And she is as native to Chicago as the water tower. She never thinks of herself as an Englishwoman, but as an American, although she certainly doesn't talk like a Chicagoan.

Her accent is by Mayfair out of Illinois. The Mayfair branch of the alliance has triumphed in the accent, but there are strong traces of Illinois in the voice. She has that typical quality of the English woman who, although not startlingly handsome nor alluring in the daytime, becomes siren beautiful in the evening (a quality which she describes with keenness in "The Woman with White Eyes"). She has three children, but she has had—or taken—time during the eleven years since her first novel was published to write seven books.

And she has, to talk to, a mind that is delightfully free from fripperies. It is keen and sure, not at all what I called her last book, "diffused." She said that her husband told her that I was perfectly right about her writing, but that she entirely disagreed with me about "The Woman with White Eyes," because what she was trying to do in it was not to tell anybody's story but to set down how the mind of a woman of 60 would function in its memories.

The Thirty club, which is a luncheon club composed of authors and editors and whose number is limited to its name, met the other day in the bungalow on the roof of the Hotel Sherman and elected to membership, to fill vacancies caused by the departure of some of its members for assorted foreign parts, Margaret Ayer Barnes, Kenneth Horen, Lloyd Lewis, and David Hamilton. Among the authors who basked in the day's sunshine (actual as well as conversational) were William Montgomery McGovern, Marion Strobel Mitchell, Harlan Ware, Arthur Meeker, Harriet Monroe, Jessica Nelson North, Alice Gerstenberg, and Georgene Faulkner. The rest of us were just editors.

Yesterday Will James, author of "Lone Cowboy," met the literary editors and some of the important booksellers and they, in turn, met him at luncheon. The ten gallon hat was nowhere to be seen. There were no spurs. His tailor obviously specializes in business suits and not chaps. And he can't roll a cigaret with one hand, although he does smoke them made of Bull Durham. He looks much more like a poet than like a cowboy. But he talks exactly the way you'd expect him to talk, sort of drawly, in good American cowboy (it's a language almost by itself). I asked him if there was any one writing western fiction that was telling the truth about the west and he said he didn't know, he never read anything—he didn't have time after he had read over his own work four times and drawn pictures for it. But if you wanted the real cowboy truth not to miss Andy Adams—he packed the truth. A very engaging soul, Will James, 38 years old and looking younger with a quiet assurance just underneath the surface shyness. He is going to autograph copies of his books at Marshall Field's book section this afternoon.

George Oppenheim of the Viking Press was in town the other day and told us a classic story about Will Durant, whose "The Case of India" is getting stupendous pannings for its inaccuracies. Just after Gene Tunney spoke on Shakespeare in one of the classes at Yale, another professor said to his class: "I am sorry not to be able to get Gene Tunney to talk to you on Shakespeare, but I hope to secure Mr. Will Durant to talk to you on philosophy."

About Early Chicago.

"Wau Bun," by Mrs. John H. Kinzie [Banta], is a new edition of one of the few personal records of the early days of Chicago. It is a source book for Chicago of 1831 when she visited here, and it contains a picturesque account of the massacre in Chicago in 1812 as told her by members of her husband's family.

These Books Deal with Hobbies, Most of Them for Boys

"Stories Postage Stamps Tell," by Sigmund I. Rothschild. (Putnam.)
"Bows and Arrows for Boys," by George Decker. (Bruce.)
"Beginner's Book of Model Airplanes," by Carl H. Claudy. (Bobbs Merrill.)
"Puppet Plays for Children," by Florence Everson. (Beckley Cardy.)

The young stamp collector who is looking for some new ideas for the arrangement of his stamps will find in Sigmund Rothschild's "Stories Postage Stamps Tell" a fund of information about stamps and their possibilities, with many interesting suggestions as to their arrangement.

By making a study of his stamps by subjects, the author has unearthed a world of knowledge about them and shows what interesting pages in the album can be arranged under such subjects as bird life, heraldry, sports, and numerous others. There is a page on fancy cancellations which is of decided interest, and one on architecture, which shows the design on stamps ranging from an African hut to the Cologne cathedral. It includes many pages of photographs.

For boys who prefer a hobby which requires them actually to make things there are George Decker's "Bows and Arrows for Boys" and Carl Claudy's "Beginner's Book of Model Airplanes." Boy Scouts and others interested in archery will find, in the first, full description of the making of bows and arrows with minute details and very helpful diagrams. There is also a short history of the sport included and the author offers suggestions for forming clubs and holding contests.

The second book is for the young model maker and gives information on the principles of flying and directions for making four standard models with lists of tools and material needed for the work. There are many good points given on the flying of models and the cause and correction of failures.

Puppet theaters and their making offer much in the way of pastime to the children and perhaps more than half the fun lies in their making and manipulating their own puppets. Florence Everson's "Puppet Plays for Children" is a most usable little book, giving directions for making them which are simple enough for even the youngest children to follow. There are also some plays included, but these are not of exceptional merit and the value of the book lies in the directions for making puppets rather than in the plays suggested.

Here's Cheerful Book About Young Beasts in Circus

The next best thing to attending the circus is reading about it, and so Elizabeth Gale has written "Circus Babies" [Rand McNally], a book with lots of pictures which tells all about Cap, the baby lion; Toko the monkey, and Inky and Pitch, the two little black leopards. These and many other animal babies live in the circus and Miss Gale pictures them all for her little friends. It is just the right kind of book to bring joy to a dreary, rainy day when restless little ones must stay indoors.

Writer and Artist Here; So Children Meet Them

Berta and Elmer Hader have been in Chicago during the last week. Many young readers who have known them through their writings and drawings have had an opportunity to hear them talk and see Mr. Hader drawing pictures. Among the originals which have been on exhibit during the week at the Legler branch library are the illustrations for their new "Mother Goose." [Coward McCann].

Fate Is a Fool, by Harriet T. Comstock [Doubleday Doran], is about a girl who defied fate.

Alay-Oop, by William Gropper [Coward McCann], is a grand novel of life and love among the acrobats in comic pictures and no words.

Thy Servant a Dog, by Rudyard Kipling, contains three tal s supposedly told by "Boots," a Scotch terrier, who unfortunately for readers talks baby talk.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

New Bennett Novel Weighty, but Not Great

So Critic Says of Opus of Over 700 Pages.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Imperial Palace," by Arnold Bennett. [Doubleday-Doran.]

Among the 32 novels, 15 plays, 9 pocket philosophies and 12 volumes of miscellaneous prose which have come from the pen of Arnold Bennett during the 32 years of his writing life, not to mention the countless magazine and newspaper articles which went the way of all journalism, into oblivion, there must be a large proportion of writing which was done with the left hand.

Although "The Old Wives' Tale" unquestionably is one of the great novels of our generation, just as unquestionably "The Vanguard" is not. There is a larger proportion of memorable writing in Arnold Bennett's output than one could expect from its mass. It has been rumored that Mr. Bennett himself admits that he writes potboilers regularly in order to keep the pot boiling for the greater efforts which he makes in the name of art.

One could go into a long discussion of these "pot boilers." Certainly his light novels like "Denry the Audacious" and "Helen with the High Hand" and "Buried Alive," masterpieces of their kind, have as high art in them as have the Clayhanger trilogy, for instance. What the potboilers pure and simple, like "The Pretty Lady" and "Accident" lack, that other and impressive light novels from his pen have, is an authentic zest for life, a real interest on the part of the author, which induces a like interest on the part of the reader in his characters. They are mere stories told with the skill of a practiced story teller, but lacking that breath of life which makes the most casual reader know that he is meeting greatness. They are adequate without being superb.

"The Old Wives' Tale" is superb. So is most of the Clayhanger trilogy. And in their way, so are some of the early light novels.

"Imperial Palace," which was published yesterday, has the physical aspect of the "Old Wives' Tale" and the Clayhanger trilogy. It is a vast novel of 769 pages, a three decker in size if not in fact. It has been hailed as a logical successor to "The Old Wives' Tale." It promised to be another masterpiece.

To this reader, at least, it is nearer the potboilers than the masterpieces, a pretty good book dressed up in the impressive raiment of the authentically great Bennett novels. Its sheer bulk would make most readers think it great (I could name two or three vast novels of the last decade whose only claim to greatness was their length, but which the public accepted at their weight value).

I don't say that "Imperial Palace" hasn't moments of greatness in it. There are whole situations—two or three of them—which are superb with that keen magical understanding of human relationships that made "The Old Wives' Tale" a masterpiece. The relation between Evelyn Orcham, the hero, and Gracie Lavott has all of the best Bennett tang. But mostly the book is a surface thing, a catalogue of observations that a good press agent would supply to an observant visitor in one trip around a vast hotel. "Imperial Palace" is the name of the greatest luxury hotel on earth and it is the story of its director (its creator in a sense) that the novel tells. There are all of the ingredients for a masterpiece. There are whole chapters which are masterful. But that indefinable quality of greatness is absent. It is too ponderous. It is too much like a Cook's tour of an industry. It is neither the story of the hotel (which would be a marvelous tale) nor of a person (which, too, could be a thing of wonder).

It is a sprawly, loose kind of book, without the tight, tense mood of "The Old Wives' Tale" (despite its length), or the equally tight design of those gay tales which are among his best.

It has very little humor in it, almost none of that delightful distillation of the author's mind which has so often made Arnold Bennett's books unforgettable even when they have not been obviously the best.

Burns Mantle Lists Ten Best Plays of '29-'30; Tells Reasons

"The Best Plays of 1929-1930," by Burns Mantle [Dodd-Mead], is the one indispensable book for every one interested in the drama of the day. It is a year book of everything that happens on the stage in the United States, besides being a selection of the ten plays which the critic considers the best of the season and a reprinting of enough of the dialogue from each of them, with connecting descriptive passages to give the reader not only the plot but the atmosphere of the play.

The ten plays which Mr. Mantle chooses as the year's best are: "Green Pastures," by Marc Connelly; "The Criminal Code," by Martin Flavin; "Berkeley Square," by John Balderston; "Strictly Dishonorable" by Preston Sturges; "The Last Mile," by John Wexley; "The First Mrs. Fraser," by St. John Ervine; "June Moon," by Ring Lardner and George S. Kaufman, "Death Takes a Holiday," adapted from the Italian by Walter Ferris; "Michael and Mary," by A. A. Milne, and "Rebound" by Donald Ogden Stewart. All but the last two plays have already been published in their acting versions.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

In his sitting room at the Hotel Buckingham on Saturday he told us that his interest had again been turned to "that inexhaustible period, the French revolution," by an often promised long delayed reading of Chabot's Apologia, a delightful compound of truth and lies whereby that unlucky stock manipulator hoped to alibi himself out of prison.

Research is too cold, too unenthusiastic a word to describe Mr. Sabatini's wide reading of books and manuscripts of the past. He can gratify his eager curiosity in five languages. The son of itinerant opera singers, he was born in Italy, educated in Portugal and Switzerland, and now lives in London. English is his adopted tongue. He speaks it with the brisk buoyant inflection of the true Londoner.

Cruikshank and Mary Johnston are responsible for his being an historical novelist. "As a child of six or seven," he relates, "I came upon some of Cruikshank's drawings in an old English magazine called Bentley's Miscellany. To understand the unfamiliar costumes of Cruikshank's ladies and gentlemen I conducted my first historical research." Later came Mary Johnston's "To Have and to Hold," which commanded his admiration and admittedly influenced his work.

It was through "Scaramouche" that Mr. Sabatini and America discovered each other, but this is his first visit to these shores. And he is properly impressed. "In London we class New York with—well, say, Manchester," he confessed. "A provincial city of freakish architecture dictated by commercialism. I was utterly unprepared for the majesty of New York."

In turn let us confess we were equally unprepared for Mr. Sabatini. He is not as Valentino as his name. Nary a hint of swashbuckle even in his neckties. He looks, rather, like a nice, square-jawed Scotchman with lively round eyes of sherry-brown hue. His hair, thinning a bit on top, is dark auburn. Tennis in summer and skiing in winter have given him an athletic leanness.

Mr. Sabatini's present visit, occasioned by the Broadway production of his play, "The Tyrant," is terminated on Wednesday. But he is planning to return next year for a tour of the country, mayhap to lecture a bit, assuredly to discover what we have impressive in the line of salmon fishing.

Back in town for the winter are Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Aley. Rainy Friday did not lessen the crowd at their first tea party of the season. "I'm afraid that the owner will recognize it," said Dawn Powell, voicing the fear of many another who had an exchanged-at-the-Farrar - tea - last-week umbrella.

Downstairs beside the tea table with its charcoal burning samovar Blair Niles told us why authors were such tea party enthusiasts. "We have to work shut up in a room alone. Other people see a friendly face and do a bit of talking in the course of a day's toil, but we have to wait till work is over."

Upstairs in the drawing room we saw I. A. R. Wylie, Lyle Saxon, Mathilde Eiker, Bayard Schindel, and were introduced to Richard Curle, Conrad's executor, you know, who has come from Scotland to do a book on American book collectors.

Edward Moore, music editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has performed an inestimable service for any one who is eager to find out anything of any sort about opera in our town. "Forty Years of Opera in Chicago" is a superb reference book on the subject, with every possible bit of information collected between its covers from casts to how the public received them, from the records of the Chicago season to the list of out of town performances, their dates and the operas which were sung.

It is a cyclopedia of the subject. But it is something much more than that. It is written with a pleasant humor which embroiders facts with gayety. Mr. Moore not only sets down the statistics of a performance, but he tells the gossip about it, recalls many of the pitched battles of the past, not only between the singers, but between the public and the opera—like the battle over "Salome" for instance when Mary Garden and Arthur Burrage Farwell spoke openly to the public about their several ideas of the moralities.

Those grand old names in opera [or what seem grand old names to the present generation] become the labels of human beings, sometimes all too human. None of the feuds is missed, and none of them is taken too seriously by the author.

The book begins with the programs of the two performances of "Romeo and Juliet" which opened the Auditorium on Dec. 10, 1889, and closed it on Jan. 26, 1929. It is that span of forty years in that building [mostly] of which Mr. Moore tells the history.

The new Civic Opera house appears in the book merely as the offspring of the grand old gal who lived her life dangerously, thrillingly, who gave the neighbors plenty to gossip about, who was a good mother, although she did live her own life, who was like the old trouper in "The Royal Family" with a romance about her that her children never will have.

For Collectors; For Joy or Rage, as They Prefer

"Unpublished Letters from the Collection of John Wild," selected and edited by R. N. Carew Hunt [Dial] is a volume to cheer or to arouse the jealousy of any collector. Mr. Hunt inherited a famous collection of autograph letters which contained so much unpublished material that he has undertaken to edit it for the benefit of historians, biographers and readers who have been previously ignorant of the existence of most of the letters which the collection contains. This is the first volume of what the editor promises will be a series.

Richard E. Byrd Finishes Book; To Be Out Nov. 28

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, famous explorer, today completed his book on "Little America," with a half hour conversation by telephone with the publishers in New York today, in which he dictated the "foreword" for the volume. It will be out Nov. 28.

"Best Seller" Full of Truth, Laughter, Too

"Best Seller," by N. O. Youmans [Bobbs Merrill.]

Even if you aren't vitally interested in the business of publishing and selling books—if you lean more to bonds or tractors or hams and bacon or radios or clucks and suits—you'll think "Best Seller" one of the most amusing books of the year.

It is about the book business, how authors are wheedled, how books are boomed, how publicity is blasted out of literary and city editors.

The book is the truth laid end to end to form a track from ennui to grins and guffaws.

It is about a boy from the home town who goes to the city and makes good—the son of a plumbing magnate whom his offspring calls the commode king. He has an assortment of millions coming to him some day so he can afford to pass up the glamours of bonds and concentrate on best sellers. But his real ambition is to write one himself and he toils passionately from Monday until Friday every evening on his magnum opus, and makes up for it by riotous revelry the rest of the time.

Jasper Watts saw more of New York than anybody else [even some one in the publishing business]. He played lover and hater and bartender and guide and amateur philosopher and occasional friend to all sorts from yearners to bootleggers. He lived his life to the full—in extreme fact often on Sat'dy nights. And Mr. Youmans tells his story with utter candor and swell satire.

What he doesn't tell about the book business is only how dull it is—sometimes. Any one reading "Best Seller" would feel about going into publishing the way the world felt about going to Tahiti after reading "White Shadows of the South Seas." It makes the publishing business the most luring and the most entrancing business in America—and one of the most amusing rackets. "Best Seller" will give you one good, clean laugh after another, and a few not too sterile. Every one is going to be excited about Mr. Youmans. Enterprising people will ask all of their New York friends who can call somebody in the business by his first name who this brilliant young Youmans is and the answer—if the friend is smart—will be that he is the one author most often quoted in anthologies of wise cracks and poems, one of the best known writers in the world. N. O. Youmans is our old friend, Mr. Anonymous, with his letters switched around. This particular Anonymous is really a young man well known in the publishing business whose name is Allen Marpel—but you mustn't tell any one; this is in the strictest confidence. F. B.

RYAN ESTATE IS UP $5,000,000 DESPITE SLUMP

Credited to Son's Wise Management.

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Judicious management of the $121,000,000 estate left by the late Thomas Fortune Ryan before, during and after the stock market crash last fall by his son and executor, Clendenin J. Ryan, is credited with an increase of approximately $5,000,000 in the estate by those familiar with its adminstration. This was learned today from a source close to the executor.

The son, who is charged with the management of the estate, now estimated at $125,000,000, began selling large blocks of the estate's securities before the stock crash. It is understood that he realized on most stocks he sold when they were at or near their peaks.

The executor has filed with the surrogate of New York county for approval on Dec. 16 an accounting showing that the estate will pay an inheritance tax of $17,379,291 to New York state and $4,382,072 to the federal government, or a total tax of $21,761,363.

Not only did the executor realize on securities when they were at or near their peak, but even after the crash he disposed of at least one important group of securities at a figure more than $3,000,000 higher than the value placed on the same stock at the time of Mr. Ryan's death. That was the controlling stock of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway, a 1,000 mile road, sold to the Van Sweringens last March at a price reported to have been around $9,000,000.

At the time of Mr. Ryan's death the accounting shows, he held 184,100 shares of common stock, valued at $3,682,000, and 63,400 shares of preferred stock of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, valued at $2,113,397, or a total of $5,795,337.

Only Big Sale This Year.

That is the only important block of stock sold by the executor this year, it is understood. At the peak market of 1929 the common stock of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois reached $43 a share on Feb. 4 and dropped to $15, the low for the year, on Dec. 26. The preferred sold at 66⅞ on Feb. 4 and dropped to 36, the low for the year, on Dec. 26. At the peak the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway holdings had a book value of $12,164,100.

One Day Yearly for That "Broke" Look Is Quite Sufficient

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In an amusing play running currently on Broadway a girl protests at accepting an invitation with: "No, I can't deceive people. I've got the broke look." Or words to that effect were spoken.

The broke look. Haven't we all had it or felt we had it!

Couldn't we steal the broke look and use it to demonstrate a certain beauty look? Haven't you known days when you wanted to slither your frame down the least frequented alley to avoid letting any one see you? That must illustrate what a broke beauty look is. Not broken. Just broke. You feel you haven't any resources left, and, worse, you look as if you hadn't any.

The next day you may rally with a marcel, a facial, a new hat or a new suit and your worst enemy couldn't accuse you of the down and out taint to your appearance.

Sometimes you just don't feel well enough to make the effort to look your best and I suppose out of 365 days one honestly is entitled to one day off. The occasional broke look may not be so bad for the soul if the following day sees a rejuvenated person in your place. But it is a look you can't encourage for more than a day a year. Not in this year of our Lord 1930, and exciting things apt to happen any moment. Exciting meetings and exciting dates out of them!

Instead of life being met with occasional events for which time could be given over in formal preparation, today one must be on the qui vive, pictorially speaking, every minute. We gather our judgments on women, rightly or wrongly, from first impressions, and in these appearance is a dominating factor.

There are women who look well only when they are due to go somewhere. There are women who look well all of the time. With the latter class it is a chronic habit, incurable and enviable. A worthy pride in self is a marked trait and a systematic acceptance of the duty of looking well keeps such women from ever having the broke beauty look. It doesn't just happen that some women are always ready pictorially for a date.

Lace Dinner Dress Comes Into Its Own

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Lace dinner dresses and informal frocks are a charming and practical feature of the new Paris fashions. Black, off-black and colors are all much in favor and there are some new shades of apricot, biscuit and melting beige that are particularly becoming.

Chanel, you know, has always had a weakness for lace and all the other couturiers seem to share it to some extent this season.

These lace dresses almost invariably have sleeves, short or long, or some sort of sleeve effect that mitigates the essy impres on of the fabric and makes them suitable for innumerable occasions.

Worth peps up the black lace dinner dress, sketched above, by allover velvet embroidery in Irish green which black and Irish combination by the way, is favored by Lanvin. Augustabernard and others, for both day and evening, and it is one of the outstanding features chez Worth.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Cats Need a Home.

"I am writing in regard to some dear little animals that have wandered in the home. We have two female cats and two cute little kittens. Can you find homes for them? We have a shelter for women here and barely manage to feed them, so we can't possibly take care of these pets.

"G. L. S."

Conducting a shelter for women is quite an undertaking in itself. When one has to take in stray animals, too, it really becomes a problem. Will you help these kindly people by taking the kittens off their hands and providing a home for them?

WOMAN SCHOLAR FROM PARIS PAYS VISIT TO CHICAGO

Simplified living is the secret of longevity, in the belief of Mme. Nadine Zavadsky, European scientist, head of the department of radio-biology of the Curie institute in Paris, who arrived in Chicago yesterday.

She will remain here as the principal guest at a tea to be given tomorrow by the trustees of the Women's and Children's hospital, 1606 Maypole avenue, and then will depart for San Francisco to attend the convention of the Radiological Society of North America.

"The whole problem of longevity is largely determined on one consideration, that of simpler living," said Mme. Zavadsky at the Stevens hotel. "Control of malignant diseases would be more easily achieved if the speed of modern living could be checked. Simpler living would be a valuable ally of the scientist in his efforts to add a few years to the span of human existence."

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes.

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila Fay married King George despite the opposition of her uncle and guardian, John Donohue, and her former suitor Jim Molloy, and disapproving friends. King, known as "the wild boy of Harvard," must wait several years before receiving the principal of the fortune left by his father, Joshua George, of chewing gum fame. Before the honeymoon is over Sheila discovers her husband is a drug addict. She determines to fight for his regeneration. A federal narcotic agent suggests a program, which if rigidly adhered to would effect a cure.

King promised Sheila to go with her to Alaska, after the races at Tia Juana. Sheila plans to kidnap King and take him to a remote spot, there to help him fight off his baneful habit. Jim Molloy is living in Nome and he promises to help her. At breakfast in Jim's cabin King's coffee is drugged and Sheila and Jim carry him off unconscious to a cabin not far from Nome, although seemingly in the heart of the frozen wilderness. Jim leaves them his servants, Hi-Jack and Casino an Eskimo couple, and returns at once to Nome, promising Sheila to return secretly every month.

When King regains consciousness and learns he is trapped for the next eight months his fury breaks in verbal abuse on Sheila, accusing Jim of wanting to get her out of the way. He tries to bribe Hi-Jack to go to Nome for him. Failing in this he tries to escape on snowshoes and is saved by the timely arrival of Pere Le Clerc, a missionary. The priest begs Sheila to let him take King to the mission, but she refuses to abandon King.

King squanders his remaining supply of dope and brutally attacks Sheila. When he at last is exhausted Sheila slips on his wrists the handcuffs which Jim had left. When he awakens she tells him that before they are able to leave the cabin she will bear his child. This news gradually works a transformation in King. He suspects Jim's visits, and in March meets him and urges him to take Sheila back to Nome. Unwillingly she leaves with King and Jim.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

THE BIRTH OF A SON.

Sheila would doze as King scrambled to a place on the runners; she would waken to find him returning for a swift warming canter behind the sled; she would doze again when he came to crouch in the furs at her feet; roused again by his restlessness when cramped muscles would send him forth to sprint, or to take Jim's place on the runners. She was aware that they were beginning the pull up King mountain; she tried to keep the heavy eyelids open for the climb, but it was the leaping of the dogs on the sled which pulled her back from a queer dream—no, she was not in the Slisovich cabin; she would never be there again. Soon it would fade into a denying memory. . . .

Drugged by motion and fatigue, again she slept, something awakening her with a start—perhaps one of the dogs had howled? The electric cross of the saloonkeeper of Nome was blazing its welcome to her. In a few minutes she would be lying in a soft, warm bed, with white-veiled women moving softly about her room and through the quiet halls. Yes, submission brings peace, and peace means happiness, she thought, as she came nearer Joe Jordan's cross.

How varied the emotions which had been greeting that sign ever since the man who disbelieved in a God but who accepted the symbol of a great man's humanity to man had placed the cross of electric lights on the nearing church spire! Eskimos; priests; sinners; saints: miners; explorers and women—how many women, she wondered, had been carried over this unseen trial to her hour of trial? To how many women had the blazing cross promised, as it did to her, comfort, gentle nursing, safety? She met in memory all the experiences which had been hers since she had last looked on that pledging welcome. King was thinking of that, too; and undoubtedly, so was Jim. . . .

Again she slumbered. When she knew what was happening to her she was being carried up the steps to the hospital door. She was being taken into a brightly lighted hall. White coiffed women were flocking about her. She was being tucked into warmed blankets. Saying goodnight to King, to Jim.

A few days later her son was born.

King was allowed to see her and the babe, soon after her self-inflicted torture was over—for she had refused drugs. When they saw how hysterical she grew, they forbore urging her. But she had lost consciousness at the end. Though afar, her spirit was not alone; some one she could feel but not see was there to guide her, a presence who gave to the strange light enveloping her the iridescence of rainbows. . . .

Jim did not come at once to see her, but she was satisfied he had never been far away. The gentle nurses fairly had to push King from the bedside. King who hung with terror over the blue faced infant, listening to the small strangled sound at her breast.

She wept with him when they had to tell him that his son had died during the night, but she could not tell him her tears were those of gratitude. God was good; he had not let that luckless child live—only a child himself, this husband of hers; Mary George's son—no, her own. He would always be her son, now; her child. Mary George had been released. Some one else was carrying on for her.

Before she was allowed to sit up, she was allowed a few visitors—Mary Cameron, who did not even voice her surprise to see Sheila again in Nome. Jim, for only a few moments, a shy, restless Jim; and Pere le Clerc. The priest was brought to her room by the sister superior. He was on his way back to the Kruz-ga-mapa mission, he told them, he had just returned from St. Michael's. At the newspaper office, where he had stopped to see Molloy, he had learned the news of her, "la pauvre Madame Jorge."

"If I hadn't had a sick Eskimo in my sled, when I passed the Slisovich cabin a month and a half ago, I would have gone in to see how it was with you. But he was ver' sick; it would not have been kin'."

He approached her bed, looking down on the wasted face. "Mechante!" He patted the thin hand with his weather beaten fingers. "That was not what one could call a—a frank confession, is it not so?"

"But it wasn't a sin to be confessed, Pere le Clerc! There was no need to tell you."

"I should have been tole. I would have taken the husban' to the mission. You would have had not so bad a time. I have been tole by Soeur Superieure. But I do not scole. An' I have already seen Monsieur Jorge. He looks ver' well, madame. You can be ver' proud."

"How can I ever thank you enough, Pere le Clerc?"

"You have thank me, Madame Jorge."

"But the mission, can't I do something for your work, or for the comfort of those living there? If it gives me pleasure, please, Pere le Clerc! Sister Superior, will you bring my checkbook and my fountain pen? Will you hold me while I write? I never wrote a check as joyfully, as gratefully!"

Without glancing at the amount, the priest who had saved King from the blizzard at the river put the check into his shabby wallet. Still Sheila was not satisfied.

"But for you, yourself, I want to give you something to remember me by, and that night in the cabin when you sang for us, Pere le Clerc. I—why, I wonder if you would not like the phonograph and the records, the radio, too. O, let me send them to you, dear Father le Clerc!"

The priest beamed down upon her. "So kin'! But I need not a thing to remember you by, and that night on the 'pup of Hobson Creek.' Do you remember that, madame? Ah, they are wonderful women, the Americaines, Soeur Superieure, n'est ce pas?"

And the sister superior, who was an American, beamed upon him serenely.

Every day to the hospital came Casino, who had been again installed in Jim's kitchen. And one afternoon she was accompanied by Happy Jack. He carried an ungainly parcel—the pelts, Sheila surmised. White fox skins and red, for the big boss. Those frightful stenches had been endured for her. . . . She gave the Eskimos the equipment of the cabin, but not quickly enough did she make exception of the phonograph. When she saw the brown faces fall, she promised to give them another. "But that one belongs to the good man from the Kruz-ga-mapa mission."

And the day before they were to sail, Jim came again—Jim, the only one she could not repay, because she was Sheila and he was Jim.

The first ship had cut its way through the fields of floating ice and was to pull up anchor at noon the next day. From her upper story window she could see it riding the waves. This time the sister left them alone together.

Good Morning!

Too bad that the work and the bravery of the untrained girls who nursed overseas during the world war have not been commemorated in a better picture than "War Nurse."

Though rather informative, because of incidents that give you an idea of the girls, their gallantry, their romances, their tragedies, and, occasionally, their waywardness, the film is too clumsily strung together to be effective. Plenty of things happen but there's not one really strong situation among the whole caboodle.

Robert Montgomery does the best he can with a "fresh" aviator rôle. Anita Page, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most popular feminine lover-sinner-sufferer-and-dier, has a baby without benefit of clergy while the hospital's being bombed, and drifts sadly off to heaven to ask God what it's all about. You would think the poor girl would know better by now—and probably she does . . . only there are, of course, things a lady MUST do when she's under contract. Miss Page is to be commended for honest effort, anyhow.

Zasu Pitts gets an occasional laugh and June Walker is pleasing, though unflatteringly photographed. Hedda Hopper, as a head nurse, is, gracefully, a lady fish out of water. The acting, in all cases, is better than the rôles. Photography and sound are all right.

University of Michigan to Spend Million on Pensions for Professors

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The University of Michigan will spend more than $1,000,000 to provide for a "forsaken generation" of professors who otherwise would face retirement from active work with prospects of inadequate pensions, even the largest of them being no more than $1,500. The crisis was caused by the inability of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and the Carnegie corporation to pay full pensions on which 160 Michigan professors depended for their retirement. The plan will operate until 1965.

Then the plan of cooperative annuities will care for all professors, as faculty members pay 5 per cent of their salaries and the university adds an equal amount to buy annuities. That plan will not, however, care for men who will retire before 1965.

Meteor Showers Will Be Better in Next 5 Years

Census of Leonids Acts as Forecast.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 21.— (AP) — Brilliant showers of meteors within the next five years were forecast by completion of the November, 1930, meteor census at the University of Pennsylvania today.

The census was the count of Leonids, the advance guards of an innumerable host of meteors which is approaching this earth again for the first time since about 1900. The counts were reported to the Flower Astronomical observatory, whose director, Dr. Charles P. Olivier, summarized the results.

"Reports from 15 stations, extending as far as Cuba on the south and Iowa on the west, prove that the Leonids furnished the richest shower since 1902 on the morning of Nov. 17," he said.

"Leonids were also observed on the night of Nov. 14, 15, and 16, on which latter date the maximum was expected. The shower came, therefore, a day late. Large numbers were also seen on the night of Nov. 17 and 18.

"While too soon to give mean hourly rates, reports to date indicate a richness at least three times as great as anticipated. There were also many splendid fireballs, some leaving long-enduring trains. Indeed the display almost equalled what is popularly known as a 'meteor shower' in brilliancy and numbers."

MOVIE CLOSEUP

Today at 10:30 o'clock the Fox Theater company starts its programs for children at the Terminal theater. The program will consist of a special "Mickey Mouse" reel and a picture selected from a special group chosen for juveniles by a California woman's club. Application blanks will be distributed to the various merchants in the neighborhood, and will admit the children free to the first performance. They will elect a Mickey Mouse and a Minnie Mouse; receive Mickey Mouse buttons; learn a cheer and salute, and sing songs, led by the screen Mickey. A Mickey Mouse club, you see, for youngsters. Cute idea, if you ask me! The Fox folks are starting this all over the country, so I'm told. M. T.

Spaniard Tells How Gibson and He Tried to Save Edith Cavell

BRUSSELS, Nov. 21.—(AP)—How the marquis de Villalobar, Spanish ambassador to Belgium, and Hugh S. Gibson, then first secretary to the American legation, tried to prevent the execution of Nurse Edith Cavell by the Germans is told in extracts published from the diary of marquis de Villalobar.

The marquis relates that at Gibson's request the two of them went to Baron von der Lancken, then director of political affairs in the occupied Belgian territory, and tried to get Miss Cavell reprieved on the eve of her execution.

The marquis told Baron Lancken, "Miss Cavell may have sent hundreds of men to the front by means of her ambulance, but if you kill her she will send millions against you from her tomb."

Miss Cavell, head of an English nurses' training school in Brussels, was executed by the Germans, Oct. 13, 1915, on the charge of assisting British, French, and Belgian prisoners in the occupied territory to escape.

The marquis says he and Gibson went to Baron von der Lancken, who told them he did not think Miss Cavell's execution would be immediate, but Gen. von Sauberweig, the acting governor, was resolved to execute her.

The marquis, relating a private conversation he had with Von Der Lancken, tells how he pleaded with him, but the baron said Von Sauberweig was not to be moved. As a last attempt the marquis says he suggested the baron telephone the German emperor at his headquarters, but the baron was stupefied at such a request and exclaimed, "But one can't telephone the emperor."

The former emperor is pictured by the marquis as having become very angry when he learned of the execution. He is said to have reprimanded those who permitted it to occur and to have ordered that in the future no women were to be executed.

5,000th Negro School, Aided by Rosenwald, Dedicated in South

Hampton, Va., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The five thousandth school assisted by the Rosenwald fund was dedicated at Greenbrier, three miles from here, this morning, with Gov. Byrd and Dr. Harris Hart, state commissioner of education officiating for Virginia.

The Julius' Rosenwald fund has aided the building of 5,000 Negro schools, in 830 counties of fourteen southern states. These schools accommodate over 600,000 pupils and 14,000 teachers.

Twenty-five million dollars have gone into the buildings. Of that four million dollars were given by the Rosenwald fund, another four million by hundred of thousands of Negroes, one million by individual white friends. The remainder, sixteen million dollars, came from public tax funds. The entire maintenance is a public charge. Every one of the five thousand schools is a part of the public school system.

"If it were true that this nation could not endure half slave and half free, it is equally true that a democracy cannot endure half educated and half ignorant."

RELATIVITY FAILS TO SOLVE EINSTEIN INVITATION PROBLEM

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Frau Elsa Einstein and her renowned husband appealed to the Associated Press today in regard to a problem which even the propounder of the theory of relativity cannot solve.

Pointing with a gesture of despair to stacks of unopened cablegrams and letters, Frau Einstein said, "I would appreciate it more than I can tell you if you would send a short message to the people of the United States from Albert and myself.

"Please tell our thousands of well wishers, most of whom we don't know that they should not think us impolite if we don't reply to their messages."

Prof. Einstein has been flooded with invitations to functions in the United States during his impending visit there. He has indicated that he can accept none of them.

"One funny thing struck us while we were reading some of these letters," said Frau Einstein. "It seems that every kind of organization in America is celebrating some anniversary at which my husband should be the guest of honor. I never knew so many anniversaries could fall in one year."

Mrs. Hoover Pleads for More Leaders for the Girl Scouts

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover tonight made a plea for more leaders for the project which is said to be nearest her heart—the Girl Scouts.

"It is such fun to work and play with them," she said in an address at a dinner given in her honor at the Hotel Biltmore to celebrate the federation of the Scouts of the five boroughs of New York City into one group.

"One of the finest things about Girl Scouts—and Boy Scouts, too—is that the organizations give girls and boys an opportunity to make friends with their elders. Young people often miss so much by not having friends among the older generation."

More than 300 men and women, many of them prominent in the social and civic life of New York, attended the dinner and a large group of Girl Scouts in uniform sang choruses.

Mrs. Hoover was to leave for Washington early tomorrow.

Cuban Women Ask Better Business Chances in Havana

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The dictum that "woman's place is in the home" is being challenged in Cuba today. Miss Maribianca Sabas Alamo, an active leader among women, points out that Cuban women more and more are entering business and that as their number increases they are demanding improved working conditions and higher wages. They now want a court for children similar to the juvenile courts in the United States, and there is equal suffrage agitation.

Woolen Trade Linked to Youth of Shakespeare

Yankee Finds Law Suit by Poet's Father.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—New record of William Shakespeare's father, John Shakespeare, which throws an interesting light on the dramatist's early days in Stratford-on-Avon has been unearthed by Leslie Hotson of Harvard. The London Times is publishing tomorrow a letter from Hotson citing documentary proof of the elder Shakespeare's dealings in wool. A suit in the Court of Common Pleas, Hotson finds, was brought by John Shakespeare in 1599, two years before he died.

"John Shakespeare, by his attorney, William Court," Hotson, describing the suit, writes, "sues John Walford of Marlborough, Wiltshire, on a debt of £21, alleging that on Nov. 4, 1568, at Stratford-on-Avon, Walford bought 21 tods of wool of him for £21, payable on demand. Walford has never paid and Shakespeare demanded his money and £20 damages. In reply Walford, by his attorney, Stephen Henchman, denied he owes Shakespeare anything and is ready to prove his contention.

"The court orders Henchman to have his client, Walford, in court on Oct. 29, 1599, for further hearing of the case. Later proceedings are noted in the docket for the following term, but the plea roll containing them has unfortunately been lost.

"Here we have evidence of fairly extensive dealings in wool. We are reminded of the mental arithmetic of the clown in the 'Winter's Tale' (Act IV., Scene 3).

"'Let me see, every 'leven wether tods; every tod yield pound and odd shilling; fifteen hundred shorn, what comes the wool to?'

"When the poet was 4 years old his father therefore sold wool at a pound a tod and the price had risen a trifle by the time of the writing of the 'Winter Tale.' If 'every 'leven wether tod,' the Walford transaction involved fleeces of 231 Cotswold or Warwickshire lambs. To the Stratford activities in barley and timber we may now confidently add dealings in wool, and perhaps see the basis in the fact for Haniwell-Phillip's designation of the eastern house in Henley street as 'wool shop.'"

Evangeline Booth Denies Any Clashes in Salvation Army

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Evangeline Booth received a musical welcome by a band playing "The Star Spangled Banner" when she arose to speak at the first public united meeting of the Salvation Army tonight in connection with the London international commissioner's conference.

Evangeline, of whom Gen. Edward Higgins earlier declared that her counsel had been invaluable, referred to the recent published reports of conference dissensions.

"You've got some remarkable newspapers here" she said. "When I was questioned regarding the story of the secession, I replied: 'It is so old it came out of the ark.' Every time I visit the old country some one hatches up a story about me coming over to cause trouble in the Army. I have only one bone of contention to pick with the new general—he has not visited the United States as soon as he ought to have done."

Tries to Give Brother Only $1 from Valentino

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A demand that Alberto Guglielmi, brother of the late Rudolph Valentino, film actor, receive only $1 from the Valentino estate was made to the Probate court today because Guglielmi, against the provisions of his brother's will, had brought legal objections to administration of the estate. The action was filed as an answer in the contest of Guglielmi and his sister, Mrs. Maria Guglielmi Strada, over handling of the estate by S. George Ullman, executor. The heirs accused Ullman of mismanaging the estate.

Chicagoans Display Rare China, Silverware, Etc.

Twenty tables displaying the linen, china, and silver of every period since the early American era were on exhibit yesterday at the Chicago Woman's club. Members brought their finest treasures and the older ones reminisced over the ways a table was set in earlier days. Among the exhibits was a set of old English service plates, owned by Mrs. Maurice L. Rothchild. They depict celebrated English gardens, each plate being a different scene.

C. S. Deweys on Way Home from Poland

BY THALIA ——.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey have terminated their three year residence in Warsaw, where Mr. Dewey has been financial adviser to the Polish government, and sailed, according to foreign dispatches, on Thursday for this country.

The days before their departure were evidently filled with farewell parties, indicating the esteem in which the Deweys are held.

Friends of the Deweys here believe that in all likelihood they are planning to resume their residence in Chicago some time after Christmas, and that they will go to Washington on their arrival in this country.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand A. Garesche of the large and prominent St. Louis clan announce the marriage of their daughter, Dorothy Marie, to William King Holland of Chicago. The ceremony took place on Armistice day, Nov. 11, at the Garesches' summer residence at Madison, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Holland are to be at home after Dec. 1 at 230 East Delaware place.

Guests of Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, and Mrs. Scott in the president's box at the Northwestern-Notre Dame football game this afternoon will be Mr. and Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, Mr. and Mrs. Max Epstein, David R. Lewis and his daughter, Miss Katherine Lewis, William A. Dyche, business manager of the university, is to have as his guests Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Farwell, John T. McCutcheon, George Getz, Fred L. Thompson, and L. A. Downs.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank's latest novel, "The Lion's Den," running serially now in one of the national monthly magazines, will be available at the bookshops in book form in early December. The novel deals with a young Wisconsin farmer who goes to congress and is thrust into the lion's den of the great political game.

Miss Joan Williams, who is expected to arrive on Monday for a visit with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, will be partied almost every moment during her less than a week's stay. Mrs. Chalmers is planning several lunches and dinners for her, the first of them, a luncheon at the Casino the day she arrives. Miss Muriel Winston is giving a dinner on Monday evening, and she will attend the Bachelors and Benedicks' party on Wednesday evening. Miss Williams has been teaching French, English and Italian at Foxcroft, where Miss Laura Sprague is also an instructor, and is to return to the east on Friday.

Newcomers in Lake Forest are Col. and Mrs. Frank Ruggles, who have taken a house in Washington circle. Col. Ruggles, who served in the First division of the A. E. F. and made a fine war record, has come to be on Gen. Frank Parker's staff for the 6th corps area. He is an accomplished horseman and has brought with him a steed that has won many ribbons and which will doubtless appear in the horse shows next year. Col. Ruggles is a first cousin of Mrs. Arthur T. Aldis and also kin to Mrs. George L. Dickson of Lake Forest.

There seem to be more Chicagoans than usual in New York this week, many of them having gone east for the Yale-Harvard football game. Mrs. C. Frederick Childs and her daughter, Mrs. William A. P. Pullman, are there; also Mrs. George Lytton and her daughter, Mrs. Lytton Benello; Mrs. Frederick A. Preston of Lake Forest, Mr. and Mrs. Champ Carry, Mrs. Robert G. McGann, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Andrews of Highland Park and their daughter, Mrs. Harlan B. Eldred, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Dewey Jr. The Chauncey McCormicks departed for New York Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Robert B. Gregory was reelected honorary president of the Arden Shore association at the annual meeting held yesterday at the Palmer house. Mrs. George Allen Mason of Highland Park is the new president, and the other officers include Mrs. George Richardson, Mrs. William J. Wardall, and Mrs. Marcus Richards, first, second and third vice presidents respectively; Mrs. Joseph J. Siddall, recording secretary; Mrs. Ernest Palmer, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Jay S. Glidden, treasurer.

The English Speaking union announces a program of chants and dances of New Zealand by Miss Bathie Stuart next Friday evening at the Illinois Woman's Athletic club. Miss Stuart performed here last winter at a party given by Robert Eskridge at his studio.

Doris Says a Few Words for a Much Maligned Woman

BY DORIS BLAKE.

An excerpt from "Unhappy Bride's" letter: "Why did God make mothers-in-law?"

One reason, a good one, too, for wedding occasions—to provide grooms. Another—to give sons to the world.

With those two legitimate reasons for their being, young brides might manage a more generous appreciation of the need of mothers of sons on earth. In fact, it would be a pretty dull old world without them.

Unhappy Bride's story is necessarily a one-sided version. Mother-in-law hasn't written her side. And some mothers-in-law, we suspect, have stories, and hard ones. Especially those who are unfortunate enough to be thrown in daily contact with daughters-in-law who raise the question as to why their creation. That very question speaks an intolerance almost inhuman.

Again we would suggest to young persons whom financial necessity throws upon the bounty of their maternal in-laws that theirs is the position of guest in the house. Whether they pay board or not is not the question. They're living with their in-laws because they cannot afford to live elsewhere. They're using them for a convenience until such time as they can afford a place of their own. Consequently, theirs is the duty to take second place so long as they inhabit the parents' roof.

One grows weary of the selfishness of youth as it is so often exemplified in the daughter-in-law. Youth is inclined to be selfish, anyway, feeling the world is made for it and age should step aside rather than block its plans.

There are decencies in human contact that have to be observed, even though it is a husband's mother who happens to be the human. She can't be ruled off the face of the earth under any circumstances. She can't be routed out of her place in her own household when her position to a young couple is either that of hostess or laundry. And that is something young brides should seriously consider before they rush into a domestic situation that involves the age-old problem of two women fighting for first place.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Unapproved.

"Dear Miss Blake: I can't win the approval of my girl's parents. Please advise. TONY."

You'll have to find out the reason for their disapproval. Tell them you like their daughter and want them to like you.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An entertaining and an informative show is this of Forty Modern Americans in the Walden-Dudensing gallery.

The show will continue until Dec. 8. Alexander Brook, who carried off most of the spare cash lying around loose in the Carnegie exhibit this month, is represented by a cool little study called "Pears," but which really includes several things entirely unrelated to fruit, though accurately, thoughtfully, indeed beautifully, painted.

Jules Pascin, cosmopolite by birth and circumstances, American through citizenship papers, is brought into focus with a painting of a girl that would in a less sophisticated setting send shivers down one's back. Her mouth and eyes are greedy, treacherous and cruel. Jules Pascin committed suicide in Paris about two months ago, trying to meet death twice and succeeding the second time.

The loveliest paintings in the exhibit are "Polo Players," by A. Friedman; "American Landscape," by A. Wiltz, and "Chinaberry Tree," by A. Goldthwaite. The most delightfully whimsical is "Spring's Awake," by Nura, in which a green cherub and a surprised bird vie for honors. Pop Harte offers a breath of foreign liberalism with his patiently gay donkeys in "Loading Casks."

"Still on Chair," by Mangravite, is realistic painting brought to exquisite fruition. For trick painting, painting that deliberately means to shock and to attract attention turn to William Schulhoff's portrait of Mrs. W. S. in which the face is literally eaten away by the strong light cast on it. The eyes stand out, black slits; below there is a nothingness as horrible as any ghastly disfigurement one can conceive. The painting epitomizes modernism gone rotten.

Plans Holiday Feast for 39 Crippled, Dependent Kids

For the third consecutive year the children of the Martha Washington Home for Dependent Crippled Children will feast royally on a turkey dinner and all the trimmings on Thanksgiving day. Mrs. Alvin Kessell, 6151 Winthrop avenue, will again see that the 39 children are given a feast in addition to the other food she provides for them the rest of the winter. This is in memory of her brother, Sollie Goldstein, who died three years ago. Mrs. Kessell is the daughter of "Mother" Goldstein, who for several years has seen to it that a number of homeless and disabled men have a Thanksgiving dinner.

MRS. ALVIN KESSELL.

Two hundred baskets of food will be available for the poor Thanksgiving day as a result of a benefit performance given by the Boy, Girl, and Cub Scout troops of Albany Park at Temple Beth Israel Thursday night. The performance was directed by Morton Aurie Rosen troop, and netted $600 from seat sales.

HEINRICH SCHLUSNUS, BARITONE, IS SOLOIST FOR STOCK ORCHESTRA

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Heinrich Schlusnus, who illustrates by personal demonstration the virtues of the baritone voice in a way that almost puts him in a class by himself, was the soloist with Mr. Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchesta yesterday afternoon. His presence was one of the reasons why applause rang high and long.

He is an extraordinarily versatile singer. At first hearing one thinks of his voice as falling into the lyric classification; that is, of pleasant quality and none too ponderous texture. Yet it builds up into almost any amount of dramatic force when necessary. Wotan's Farewell from Wagner's "Die Walküre" was in his delivery about as impressive and finely wrought a performance as you will hear in a long tour of opera houses. In this excerpt he was considerably aided by the magnificent orchestra, which is to most operatic orchestras as he is to most other baritones, but at the same time he had considerable to do with making it, the final number of the program, a great climax.

Elsewhere—he appeared three times—he displayed other sides of his ability. He has expert knowledge of the clear outlines, which are by no means cold, of the ancient classics, two arias from Gluck's opera "Iphigenia in Aulis" and a cantata for solo voice by Handel, "Dank sei dir Herr." He projected gloomy tragedy in a Mahler song, "Der Tambourg'sell," sustained lyric beauty in the "Rheinlegendchen," also by Mahler, and humor in Hugo Wolf's "Der Rattenfaenger." But of all these he was at his statellest in the Wotan number.

Mr. Stock contributed considerable music of various kinds on his own behalf. He began with the Rameau suite of the Mottl orchestration that pleasant set of numbers that has "La Poule" as the first item, a hen, or several of them, with voices ranging from contralto to deep baritone. Later he gave a first Chicago hearing of a suite drawn from that astonishing ballet by Stravinsky, whose music is as potent and full of color now as it was when the Diaghileff Ballet Russe presented the work a dozen years ago.

Still later came another first Chicago performance, Tommasini's "The Carnival of Venice," developed out of Paganini's variations on that tune; but it was a plain error of tactics, an example of great resourcefulness applied to great futility of material. However, Mr. Stock then swung into the Wagner number, and its magnificence caused prompt obliteration of "Carnival of Venice" memories.

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn of Chicago were among the passengers who sailed tonight on the White Star liner Majestic.

Too Often Parents Don't Investigate Their Child's Nurse

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Suggestions for dressing the small boy and small girl will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

We sat around the small sailboat lake in the park. The younger children who were not flying around to catch their small yachts before they bumped the concrete banks, were skating or scootering, or playing with balls.

One little boy of about 7 was anxious to go on riding his scooter bike, but his French nurse or governess made him stop.

"But why?" he kept saying in a perfectly good natured way.

"Parce que je le veux," [because I wish it] she kept replying, giving no reason or explanation.

Standing aimlessly around the benchful of maids or governesses was a little girl of about 4. She had a small empty basket on her arm. The maids talked among themselves—no one spoke to her nor played with her. She had nothing to play with. She had nothing to do.

Several other children whose faces were eager and happy I watched, and one or two babies, and I couldn't tell whether they were with their nurses or mothers. Such interest and companionableness was pleasant to see, and could only be because they were with some one who cared.

There was one utterly careless girl in uniform and one whose young charge cried or was slapped four or five times while I was there. We don't want to be full of blame for those uninterested girls or women who earn their living by taking care of children. Some of them are not suited to the work; most of them have never had any training. This is a field full of unskilled workers. It is not for us to blame the ones who are careless, ignorant, or unkind. But it is for us not to choose them for our children.

What do you know about the person to whom you entrust your child? Many women coming home from the country have engaged new help—perhaps a maid who takes the children out in the afternoon—perhaps a governess or nurse who has most of the care of the children. What means have you taken to get the information you should have about her? What do you really know of her character, her habits, her understanding of children, her treatment of them?

There are many fine, sympathetic, understanding girls and women who like the work of caring for children.

Food Talk.

It's almost an insult to serve some folks hash. The very sound of the name irritates them. All it means to them is a concoction of scraps or just a conglomerate mass of leftovers that have been thrown together—those leftovers which have been accumulating in the refrigerator for days and then trotted out are the accepted ingredients of hash.

The function of hash is not low. It is an important part of economical meal planning. It is susceptible of the highest development.

Good meat and slightly underdone potatoes are the most important ingredients for corned beef hash. Tinned corned beef may be used and is tasty, but it lacks some of the flavor of home cooked corned beef. The hash should be cooked in a heated spider. Cover it closely and cook slowly for at least half an hour. Turn with a spatula. Never stir hash, stirring absolutely spoils it. If a brown crust is desired, let the hash cook, covered, over a hot fire for a few minutes. Turn onto a plate after loosening with a spatula any places where the hash sticks. Served with tomato catsup, chili sauce or garnished with fried tomatoes, we have a delightful home luncheon or dinner dish. With a vegetable, simple hot bread, and a sweet dessert it makes a complete meal:

BEEF HASH.

1 lb. round steak or
2 cups diced cold roast beef.
1 cup boiling water or stock.
Pepper.

Heat butter in an iron skillet. Add thinly sliced onion. Let fry gently two minutes. Cut meat into tiny dice and add. Cover pan tightly and fry the meat slowly for ten or fifteen minutes. Then add the potatoes cut into dice. Add pepper, salt and water or stock. Cook thirty minutes or longer, keeping the pan covered. Do not stir when done but loosen with a spatula. If a brown crust is desired elevate the flame and cook rapidly for a few minutes. Turn and brown on the other side. Slip onto a hot platter without breaking, if possible.

Corned Beef Hash.

The tinned corned beef freed from skin and gristle makes a good hash, but is not comparable to that made from home boiled beef with the flavor of the vegetables cooked with it. Take equal parts of corned beef, 2 cups, and rather underdone boiled potatoes, 2 cups. Dice both, alternating beef and potato.

Heat an iron spider and melt in it 2 full tablespoons fat, ½ butter and ½ any good drippings. Sprinkle the hash with paprika and a dash of black pepper and turn it into the spider. Dot with generous pieces of butter and pour over it ½ cup of hot water or stock, preferably stock. Cover closely and let cook slowly from ½ to ¾ of an hour. When well heated, turn carefully with a spatula and let heat for a while longer. If a brown crust is desired, let cook, covered, over a hot fire for a few minutes. Loosen from the bottom with a spatula and turn out on the platter.

When served as a home luncheon dish have fresh tomatoes sprinkled with chives and French dressing, and johnnycake or spoon bread included in the menu. For a sweet serve gingerbread with whipped maple cream.

Spric parsley.
1½ cups tomato purée.
5 medium potatoes.

Cut liver and bacon in pieces. Put in casserole with onions peeled and carrots cubed, mushrooms, parsley, tomato purée, and two cups of boiling water. Cover and let cook in slow oven [350 degrees F.] for 2½ hours. Add potatoes cubed at the end of one hour. Mix 3 tbsp. flour, ¾ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. paprika, and ½ cup water and 1 tsp. lemon juice. Stir into liquid in casserole and cook for ten minutes before serving.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Tommy Loughran's skill last night was too much for King Levinsky in their fight at the Chicago Stadium. King lost the ten round decision, but, judging from the applause he got, won back 14,428 fickle fans who gave him a record raza two weeks ago when he was adjudged winner over Jimmy Slattery.

Mr. Loughran came to town for the specific purpose of solving what has come to be known as the "Levinsky problem." All Tommy had to do was follow up the unpopular Levinsky-Slattery decision of two weeks ago with a neat licking designed to put King out of the picture.

Tommy did his part by cuffing King with astounding rapidity and severity, but instead of being happy at seeing poor King take a smacking the bugs rossed up the experts by making him more of a hero in defeat than he ever has been in any of his victories.

Maybe it was sympathy, but honest, folks, the hand the customers gave the battered fish strangler after the fight was nothing short of an ovation.

It was obvious from the outset that the former light heavyweight champion had heard of Levinsky's grotesque but powerful technique. In the first round he made it clear he wanted none of King's bull rushes. When the west sider tried to get set for a hefty right swing he found his face full of left handed gloves. In the first two minutes of the first round King didn't get close enough to Tommy even to execute a clinch and he landed only one punch.

Tommy Ties Him Up.

Tommy watched that flail thereafter and every time King used his windmill attack Tommy either tied him up or stepped in and traded shots in kind.

Whether or not Mr. Slattery really won from Levinsky two weeks ago is a matter that has completely gone out of our mind, but it is certain that Loughran last night fought a more intelligent and artistic battle than that waged by King in his last previous fight. Loughran's attack and defense was planned for the odd fish trainer and nobody else. Tommy tolerated no rushes to the ropes or into the corners. When King wanted to try to do his stuff he had to try it in the center of the ring where Tommy could prance about. And every sally he attempted got him many lefts and quite a few rights.

The best part of King's defense was executed with his nose. Tommy tried to hit him elsewhere on the head, but King always warded off the blows with his schnozzle. While an interesting defense, the nasal technique caused Mr. Levinsky to leave the scene of the encounter with a nose that looked not unlike a Hubbard squash, or, anyway, a calabash gourd.

Customers Pay $39,092.56.

The fight was popular with the customers, who paid $39,092.56 to see the card. There was an especially loud expression of glee after the first round and also a noisy demonstration after the second round, when Levinsky scored the only knockdown of the fight; the fifth, which was very exciting, and the eighth, when the fighters twice came together in the center of the ring and each gave the other all he had, ring artistry being completely forgotten for the time.

Both fighters were in excellent condition and both left the arena unmarked except for King's mammoth proboscis.

Barney Ross, Chicago, and Harry Dublinsky, Chicago, fought eight rounds to a draw. The first was about even, featured by the fast boxing of both fighters. Dublinsky had a shade the better of it in the second and third rounds, but Ross came back to take the fourth and fifth. In the sixth round both men resorted to slugging tactics with Dublinsky getting a shade the better of it. The seventh and eighth rounds were about even.

Tribune Writers Appear on WGN Grid Program Today

Three sports authorities will speak between the halves of the Northwestern-Notre Dame football game at Dyche stadium this afternoon from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station. Those who will be introduced by Quin Ryan, veteran sports announcer who will tell the radio audience of the thrilling plays, are Westbrook Pegler, THE TRIBUNE'S eastern sports writer; Harvey Woodruff, conductor of the column In the Wake of the News, and Arch Ward, sports editor.

IT'S DAY OF DAYS IN EAST AS YALE FACES HARVARD

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The traditional series between the football teams of Yale and Harvard will be continued tomorrow minus the aspects of any national or sectional championship.

Since 1875 these rivals have battled forty-eight times, and even today, despite the phenomenal rise of other colleges to gridiron prominence, this game is considered the blue ribbon classic of the season by many eastern fans.

Season Success in Balance.

Harvard has pointed for the Yale game since September. Likewise Yale has sacrificed its man power and its strategy for the Crimson clash, and the success or failure of the season for both teams hangs in the balance on this sixty minute engagement.

This game has a habit of defying prediction. A survey of previous games reveals the favorite has been conquered more often than it has conquered. On its record Yale stands out as the most likely victor and sports writers have made the Blue the favorite.

None of those who have managed to obtain tickets of admittance will care at all that Harvard's team has fallen before Army, Dartmouth, Michigan and Holy Cross, or that Yale was stopped by Georgia and tied by Army. Yale is playing Harvard and that is enough.

Booth to Start Game.

Little Albie Booth again ran the first Yale team in signals today and Mal Stevens announced after the practice that he was going to start him just as he did in the Princeton game.

Linehan, the guard who is such a big part of the Eli line, is ready, they say, and is also named as a starter on the team to face Harvard at the opening kickoff. Dud Parker, the back whose arm was broken in the first

Revenge Is Ohio's Aim in Illinois Fray

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 21.—In ten of the 18 games between Ohio State and Illinois, the Buckeyes have not scored. Moreover, the Illini have held Ohio to a string of goose eggs for the last three years.

This can't continue, according to Capt. Wes Fesler and Coach Sam Willaman, who led the Buckeyes into town this morning at an hour when most citizens were turning over for another half hour of sleep. And by overcoming its own failure on attack, Ohio figures it will win tomorrow, even if that attack only crosses the Illinois goal line once. In brief, Ohio believes it can reverse conditions and present the Illini with a nice round zero for the scoreboard.

If Ohio's linesmen do stop the plunges of Robinson and Schultz and halt the wide sweeping runs of Gil Berry, while the Buckeye backs take care of the forward passes, it will be the fourth time in the history of the series Illinois has not scored. And it will be the first blank Illinois has drawn since 1920, when Ohio won 7 to 0, in the battle for the conference title.

Ohio State's men this morning went directly to the Urbana Country club. After lunch the squad reported at Memorial stadium for its drill on the field where tomorrow afternoon it will fight against Illinois for a berth in the first division of the conference standing.

Coach Willaman indicated a sincere respect for Illinois. By no logic can it be deduced he is afraid of the outcome, but in his review of Illinois games he stressed the strength of his foe, which he said was not expressed in the scores.

"Illinois' line made a fine showing against Northwestern and threatened to whip Michigan. The Army would have been fortunate to win, 7 to 0, for an intercepted forward pass created the additional margin," he said.

"Then when I look over Illinois

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 21.—University of Chicago Maroons and the Wolverines from Michigan, rivals on the football field since 1892, will clash in their 19th football battle at the Michigan stadium here tomorrow afternoon.

It will be one of the most unusual games ever played in the western conference. More exceptional features have been woven into it than in any other Big Ten struggle. A crowd that would do credit to a championship game will see the encounter between the ancient rivals—one a tail end team, the other fighting for a share of the conference championship.

It is to be a football spectacle for charity, the first ever staged in the Big Ten, and because it is being played in the name of charity upwards of 65,000 will see it. Ordinarily it would have attracted not more than 30,000.

If the attendance reaches 65,000 a charity fund of $120,000 will be the outcome. Of this amount Michigan charity will profit to the extent of about $80,000. Chicago charity may get as much as $40,000.

The fund may go beyond those figures, for clear, cool, crisp weather is the outlook. Latest reports indicated that all of the 40,000 tickets taken by Gov. Fred W. Green will be sold. Society maidens and matrons were selling them on the street corners in Detroit tonight. Every school teacher in the state has become a part of the vast sales organization.

At the university ticket offices it was announced that practically all of 35,000 tickets offered here will be sold by game time tomorrow afternoon. Thus a crowd of 75,000 is a possibility and in this event $30,000 more will be added to the charity fund, bringing it up to $150,000.

Prepared to Celebrate Title

Michigan followers streaming into Ann Arbor and nearby cities tonight do not regard the Maroons any too lightly. They do not expect to see their championship hopes go up in smoke, but they are going to be perfectly happy if the Wolverines win by a couple of touchdowns. The old grads will then be ready to join with the undergrads and help paint the town red when the championship celebration takes place tomorrow night.

The Wolverines will have no excuses to offer if this unusual game brings still another unusual feature. That is an upset in dope and a Maroon victory. They were at full fighting strength when they went through their final maneuvers late this afternoon. Not a regular was missing. Quarter Back Harry Newman's powerful right arm was heaving passes in all directions. There's nothing wrong with Mr. Newman's forward passing implement. Purdum will be at left tackle in place of Auer or Samuels.

The Maroons, 30 strong, were led into Ypsilanti, only a few miles from the scene of battle, early tonight by Coach Stagg. They were to spend the night there and continue the trip to the stadium shortly before game time tomorrow.

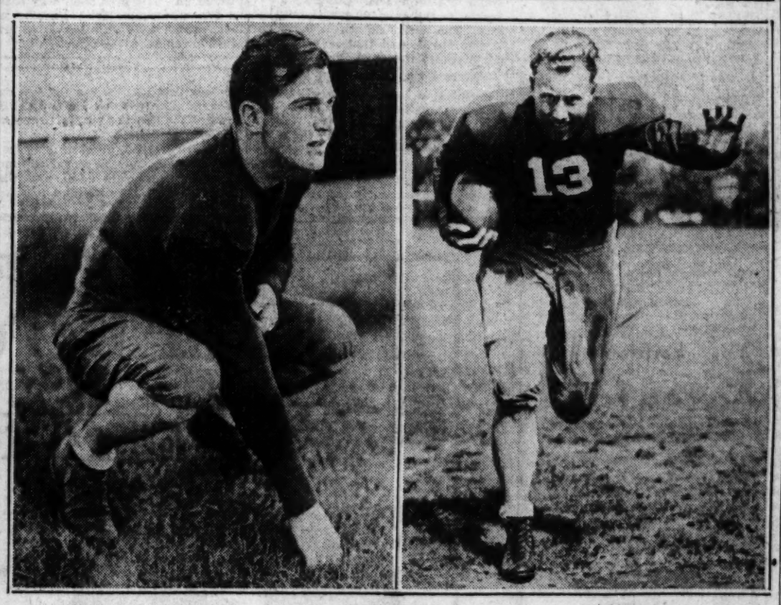
LEAD UNBEATEN GRID FORCES



Tom Conley, left, and Hank Bruder will be conspicuous figures at Dyche stadium this afternoon, but not merely because they are captains of undefeated Notre Dame and Northwestern teams. Conley for three years has been showing Irish partisans he's one of the best ends in the country; while Bruder, despite injuries and ailments, has proved his all around skill at half back.

CALM BEFORE STORM EVIDENT AT NOTRE DAME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 21.—A peculiar calm, indicating a feeling of extreme nervousness, settled down over Notre Dame's football headquarters today. The regulars, who tomorrow must carry the big portion of the burden against Northwestern's gridiron power plant, didn't even don their uniforms for a last rehearsal. The usually effervescent Knute Rockne was slowed down to words of one syllable. Knute finally has found a game worth fretting about and the fretting is on the square.

The decision not to let the regulars take even a glimpse at a football was made because Rockne feared staleness. Last night his first string men pepped up to the point where he believed he had them on edge.

Shock Troops Take Light Drill.

Today he figured they weren't on edge, their last night's display of enthusiasm notwithstanding. So they were told to forget football until tomorrow morning. Meanwhile, the shock troops and the third and fourth elevens performed lightly on the practice field.

When the regulars are turned loose against the Purple tomorrow it will be the first scrimmaging they have had since the Drake struggle here last Saturday. All week they have had nothing but signal practice and dummy defense against Northwestern's formations. Real scrimmage was abandoned because several of the regulars are in bad shape. They got quite a going over by a Drake team which hadn't been figured as tough. Who the injured men are is something Northwestern must find out for itself. Rockne seems to think he won't have their services for even half the game. That depends on how much advance secret information the Purple fellows have in their possession.

Rockne to Start Regulars.

That Rockne isn't kidding about maintaining respect for the Purple strength is further indicated by the fact that he does not plan on starting off, as customary, with shock troops

Purple, With Big Ten Title Won, Now Relaxed—Hanley

"Northwestern's football team has accomplished its real 1930 objective—the winning of the Big Ten championship—but we aren't underestimating how much it would mean to us to whip Notre Dame."

So spake Head Coach Dick Hanley last night after he had concluded the final practice session of his 1930 Wildcats. Certainly not a prediction of victory nor an acknowledgment of expected defeat.

With this prelude Mr. Hanley launched upon a pleasant discourse. But he didn't go far on any subject without mentioning that Northwestern considers the Big Ten its real sphere, the Big Ten championship its real aim and inspiration.

No Effort to Key Team.

"There has been no effort to key the boys up for the Notre Dame game. We asked them to go out and win a Big Ten championship and they did it," Coach Hanley said. "To put on the high pressure and tell them that having won one championship their honor and future depends upon their going out and whipping Notre Dame tomorrow would be poor psychology.

"We have not attempted in any way to buzz up the squad. The attitude of the team and the coaches is that it's just another ball game, and that if we can win it will be fine and dandy. If we don't, the world won't come to an end.

"This is not lethargy. On the other hand I think our sincere feeling of relaxation after having defeated all our conference rivals will cause the team to play its best game of the year. The point I'm making is that I haven't driven the boys in preparation for this game. They're in good shape and they know their stuff. And I certainly don't have to preach to them about how much fun it would be to trim Notre Dame.

"We're all pleased with the change in the weather. The cold means that we can keep our first string in there most of the time, barring accidents, of course.

"I believe the element of surprise will be negligible in the game tomorrow. We have no idea that we can give Notre Dame any plays that they are not looking for and we feel that we have a pretty good notion of what we may look for from them. Therefore, the outcome should hinge on the extent to which each team is successful in the execution of tried formations.

"We have not played a team this year that resembles the Irish, unless it was Tulane. Tulane had a speed attack similar to that of Notre Dame but nothing like the man power. Indiana is the only team that we both have played. Our first string made four touchdowns in full time. Notre Dame's first string played half time and made four touchdowns."

Tribune Writers Pick Notre Dame to Defeat N. U.

Following are the predictions of TRIBUNE writers on today's game between Northwestern and Notre Dame:

Harvey Woodruff—The first break will have an important psychological effect. Northwestern has more than an outside chance, and the advantage of having already attained its goal—the Big Ten title. Notre Dame figures about one touchdown better, say 14 to 7.

Arch Ward—No team can go along Saturday after Saturday piling up victories like Notre Dame without cracking somewhere along the route. But this isn't the day Notre Dame will fail. The score: Notre Dame, 20; Northwestern, 7.

Irving Vaughan—It looks like a 14 to 7 victory for Notre Dame. I think Notre Dame's running attack will be stronger than Northwestern's forward passing.

Wilfrid Smith—Notre Dame has one of the greatest teams in football history. The Irish will win by at least two touchdowns and it may be four.

Edward Burns — Precedent, rather than analysis of the two teams on defense, indicates that the game will be a merry scoring spectacle. Both teams have been willing to take defensive chances to get over touchdowns and that mood should be rampant today. I guess Notre Dame will make three touchdowns and Carideo will kick the point after each. Northwestern will make two touchdowns. Russell will plunge for an extra point, but Engebritsen or Bruder will fail to kick.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Northwestern football players, co-champions of the Western conference colleges, unbeaten this season, will meet Notre Dame football players, unbeaten since the final game of 1928 in California, in heroic combat at Dyche stadium this afternoon. The result will have a direct bearing on the honorary national title. It even may determine that choice.

Behind this prosaic statement of facts are the superlatives of everything else connected with gridiron effort. Northwestern has its best team in all history. Notre Dame is called greater, even with the loss of Savoldi, than that team of 1924 which boasted the Four Horsemen. It is the best balanced aggregation of all the great elevens which have been developed by Knute Rockne.

Draws Country's Interest.

Because of the records already established by Wildcats and Irish, partisans of both colleges, enthusiasts of the middle west, football followers throughout the country are taking greater interest in this game, as a game, than in any ever before played in Chicago.

Only 48,000 persons have seats for this exhibition because permission could not be secured from the conference faculty athletic committee to transfer the affair to Soldiers' field as requested by Northwestern and Notre Dame, the extra receipts to go to charity. Three times that number could have been sold. Prices as high as $50 have been paid for good locations against a face value of $3 for the coveted pasteboard.

Experts Come from Everywhere.

Coaches and football representatives from other sections are pouring into the city. New York, Philadelphia, and other eastern newspapers are sending staff experts, as never before, to report a struggle between two distinctly middlewestern elevens.

To Notre Dame players, this experience is not new. They are accustomed to such honors, to being termed "wonder teams." In the last twelve years—since the war—Notre Dame has been on the short end of the score only eleven times, four of those in 1928. In three of these twelve years, a clean slate was recorded after traveling all over the country and meeting any and all opponents.

To Northwestern, all this fuss, acclaim and possible national honors, is something novel and exciting. It is a far cry from the Methodists, as the team was known, of twelve years ago, to the Fighting Wildcats of today, whose conference victory induced a four day student demonstration with classes dismissed officially on the final day.

Because of its past record, of experience under fire, of caliber of opponents, Notre Dame ranges favorite in the speculations at prevailing odds of 2 to 1. Notre Dame backers are willing to lay even money and spot the Purple anywhere from 7 to 14 points.

There is little actual basis of comparison between the elevens except by the unsatisfactory method of comparative scores. Each scored four touchdowns against Indiana. Northwestern relying more on passes and Notre Dame on its running attack. Similarly, each eleven has been fully extended only once this season. Northwestern's victories over Tulane, since unbeaten; Ohio State, Illinois, Minnesota, Centre, Indiana were comparatively easy, or at least convincing. Trailing in the first half against Wisconsin last Saturday, the Wildcats came back with their best power effort of the year.

S. M. U. Gave Irish Scare.

Notre Dame had its close call at the start of the season against Southern Methodist. Since then it has routed all other foes, simply smothering them by the speed and suddenness of its initial thrusts. Pittsburgh, supposedly strong, was overwhelmed in a scoring orgy, and only counted when second and third string players

PETROLLE DROPS McLARNIN TWICE; WINS DECISION

Jimmy Takes Sound Beating Before 12,500.

BILLY PETROLLE.

A crowd of 12,500, banner throng in these days of unemployment, bounced around in their seats in vociferous amazement as Petrolle, granite-chinned and relentless as a maddened bull pup, smashed the class of the welterweights about the ring for ten rounds, dumped him in the resin twice for counts of nine in the fourth session, and ran away fresh and eager with the unanimous decision at the end of the battle.

Exciting All the Way.

New York faithful have become so accustomed to seeing McLarnin clip his rivals on the chin and scarcely bother to see where they fell that they made him a three and four to one favorite to beat the westerner who long ago was believed to have seen the best of his fighting days. But Petrolle fooled McLarnin, and fooled the betting customers, too, with a curling left hook that drummed all night on the side of Jimmy's head, plunged into his body, and kept him constantly on the run.

Billy alternated with straight rights that made a mess of the other side of McLarnin's face and in the clinches he always seemed to hold the upper hand.

The astonishing conquest, third in succession in which a highly rated favorite has gone to defeat in the Garden ring, jumps Petrolle into the commanding position among the lightweights.

Whipped Canzoneri Soundly.

He whipped Tony Canzoneri decisively a few weeks before the Italian won the 135 pound title from Al Singer in a surprising knockout here last week. Earlier he dropped a hair line decision to Jackie Kid Berg, British whirlwind, in another spectacular duel.

Petrolle's victory rounds out the trio of underdogs in the betting who have finished out in front in the last three Garden fights. Kid Chocolate was a four to one favorite when he lost to Fidel La Barba. Singer was a four to one choice over Canzoneri, and McLarnin was about anything one wanted to ask from three to one up.

summaries and see that Schultz and Evans, the men who last year smashed our line, are sitting on the bench in most of the games, I wonder just how strong Illinois is.

"Tomorrow's game looks to me like another of the famous last minute decisions for which Illinois and Ohio State have been famous."

Fesler Gets Credit.

Willaman gives the major portion of the credit for Ohio's gridiron comeback to Wes Fesler. Defeated by Northwestern, 19 to 2; by Michigan, 13 to 0, and then tied by Wisconsin, with neither team scoring, the Buckeyes later won from two intersectional foes. The Navy was scuttled, 27 to 0, and Pittsburgh was beaten, 16 to 7.

"He can do everything well," Willaman said. "Against the Navy he kicked ten times for an average of more than 50 yards from the line of scrimmage. His passing has figured in both these victories. His defensive work needs no comment."

Fesler Ranks High in Classes.

Stanley Jensen, former Senn High school star, now playing his first year at guard, was released from the hospital this morning. Injuries received in the Chicago game placed him on the shelf. It was said that Jensen might play part of the game tomorrow.

The drop in temperature will be an advantage to the teams, but the chill breezes which today whipped across the Illinois prairie may make it unpleasant for the spectators. Twenty thousand will watch the final battle of the season.

NORTH CENTRAL, DE KALB ELEVEN DRAW, 13 TO 13

De Kalb, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—De Kalb Teachers and North Central battled to a 13 to 13 tie here today in the best football game of the year for both teams. After North Central had scored in the first period, De Kalb came from behind to assume the lead in the third quarter. The visitors tied the count early in the last frame, however, and a valiant last stand on the part of both teams in a frantic effort to score was spectacular but profitless.

Massier, Williams, and Stiles played well for North Central, while Strombom, Mustapha, Pace, and Petersen were outstanding for De Kalb. Mustapha was particularly outstanding, practically assuring himself of a berth on the all-conference team. The Teachers made twelve first downs to North Central's nine.

LES CANADIENS, BLACKHAWKS TO RENEW RIVALRY

Comparative scores make the Blackhawks favorites. The Chicago team won from the Boston Bruins, 1 to 0, Thursday, while the Bruins defeated Les Canadiens, 5 to 2, last week.

The last meeting of the Canadiens and Backhawks was last winter, in one of the final matches for the Stanley cup. The match lasted 111 minutes before the Montreal sextet scored the deciding goal.

Thistlethwaite Denies He'll Quit at Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Glenn Thistlethwaite today said he had "no intention of resigning as football coach at the University of Wisconsin."

He admitted he had heard rumors that a member of the athletic council would ask his resignation at a meeting Monday night. Three members of the council denied Thistlethwaite's ouster was contemplated.

Calm Before Storm Evident at Notre Dame

tomorrow. The regular layout, which includes the cosmopolitan back field of Carideo, Brill, Schwartz and Mullins, will be in action at the kickoff, unless the weather should suddenly turn warm. In the latter event the shock troops would be employed for a part of the first period.

Some difference of opinion seems to prevail about the poundage of the two elevens. Rockne has mentioned several times that his first string team ranks second to Northwestern when it is a matter of weight, and Purple adherents have branded this as just another variety of autumn bolognas. When the regulars square in front of the Purple tomorrow, the Rockne claim will be upheld. Culver, his left tackle, is the only 200 pounder in the line. The back field also is light, but it has speed, and that is what may develop into the deciding article.

Notre Dame Plans Kept Dark.

Nothing is known as to what kind of an attack Rockne will rely on. He has men who can, if pressed, do all the things permissible under the rules. But, unless Northwestern should get the jump and Notre Dame should be forced to gamble, the biggest portion of the Irish assault undoubtedly will be of the running kind. In his regular back field Rockne has runners and blockers who probably are entitled to be rated the best quartet Northwestern has seen so far.

The Irish squad, numbering 40 men, will leave here in the morning, lunch at the Auditorium hotel, and then hurry out to Dyche stadium for their day's labors.

Notre Dame Is Zuppke's Choice; Willaman's, Too

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 21.—Bob Zuppke and Sam Willaman, whose teams meet here tomorrow in the final Big Ten game of the season between Illinois and Ohio State, this afternoon named Notre Dame as the victor over Northwestern tomorrow at Dyche stadium.

Although the Wildcats are the conference champions and have beaten both Illinois and Ohio, Zuppke and Willaman did not give them a chance against the Irish.

"Notre Dame by two touchdowns," Zuppke said. He has not seen Notre Dame play this year.

"I think Notre Dame will win by a large score," was Willaman's pronouncement. "We gained more than 300 yards on Northwestern and that means to me that Notre Dame will run wild."

Willaman saw Notre Dame play Pittsburgh. His prediction was based on the spectacular Irish running attack, which that day harvested five touchdowns in 25 minutes.

What Rockne, Conley Think About Game

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 21.—Statements of Coach Knute Rockne and Capt. Tom Conley of Notre Dame regarding tomorrow's game with Northwestern follow:

ROCKNE—It's an old Norwegian custom to express a hope that the best team may win. If that happens tomorrow it will be just too bad for Notre Dame. What I want is a few breaks that will let us have the biggest score at the finish. Speaking seriously, I have hopes of winning, but I am not kidding myself into thinking it is going to be a cinch. If we win we will have to beat a pretty good team. And if Northwestern wins it will be because it beat a pretty good eleven.

If all my regulars were sound physically I would have a lot more confidence in the team. They might be lucky enough to escape aggravating their hurts during the game. If they do it will help us considerably.

A thing that has to be reckoned with is the fact that the Northwestern game is only the first of three hard battles in as many weeks. That is a mental hazard with my men.

CONLEY—There is nothing to say except that we want to win, and will if it is humanly possible. We certainly have done everything we could do to prepare ourselves.

Here Are Three Routes from Loop to Dyche Stadium

Three main routes were recommended to motorists driving from the loop to attend the Notre Dame-Evanston game at Dyche stadium in Evanston today by the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor club. The recommended routes, which begin at Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue, follow:

ROUTE ONE.

ROUTE TWO.

ROUTE THREE.

The motor club touring bureau suggested an early start to avoid congestion, and reminds car owners to keep to the right except when passing, another practice which, if followed, would go far toward expediting traffic.

Thus critics figure that neither Northwestern nor Notre Dame has yet shown its full power for an entire game. On what they have seen and read they give Notre Dame an advantage of about two touchdowns.

That Notre Dame will be nonchalant to its own detriment or that Northwestern will be overcome by extreme nervousness is unlikely. The Irish still have Army and Southern California to face. They seldom have an opportunity to meet a conference champion in its final game of the season. The Wildcats would be a choice morsel to add to an Irish stew.

On the other hand, victory is more necessary for Notre Dame than for Northwestern. The Wildcats have finished their season with all the honors they sought to attain—the Big Ten title. Anything else is just that much more. They are in the frame of mind for more, but not in the frame of mind where anxiety is likely to penalize.

So these two elevens, pupils of an experienced, successful coach and of a young, successful coach, will present their wares under conditions calling for all their resourcefulness and all their reserve power. It is not a test of the Notre Dame shift against the Warner double wing back attack so much as a test between two previously victorious elevens matching brain and stamina.

In physical condition both squads are in good shape. Northwestern's loss of Rentner, its forward passing ace, is matched by the compulsory withdrawal from school of Joe Savoldi, Notre Dame's strongest back field artist. Both have capable successors. Technical strength and weaknesses of both elevens have been told earlier in the week by other writers. At 2 o'clock this afternoon will come the answer to all these questions.

PLAY TOMORROW.

We are not cutting our Quality to meet a temporary Price. But we are cutting, 200,000 sq. feet of Martin's of Glasgow Genuine Imported Scotch Grain Leather to Give You the Greatest Value ever Offered in a Shoe for $6.60

WHEN we searched England this year for the newest Styles to show you this Fall, we discovered that Bartley & Sons and G. W. Bunting Ltd., two of the most prominent Royal Bootmakers, were both using Martin's of Glasgow Scotch Heather Grain in their most popular models, which we purchased to reproduce for you.

Now there is only One Genuine Scotch Grain. There is no substitute. It is made from the finest selection of Calfskins in Europe and tanned by a secret process, known only to W. & J. Martin of Glasgow.

There was only one way to reproduce these wonderful shoes made by Bartley and Bunting,—and that was to purchase identically the same expensive Leather that they used.

And that is exactly what we did. Our representative went immediately to Glasgow to see Mr. Martin personally, and we placed orders for 200,000 square feet of the same identical tannage that he supplies the Royal Bootmakers.

It is the largest order Mr. Martin ever received. Today we own more of Martin's Genuine Scotch Grain Leather than any American Manufacturer and all of the Custom Bootmakers in England and America combined, and we are showing in our windows today, more Scotch Grain Shoes than anyone else, at any price.

If you want to see the Original $35. hand made Scotch Grain Wing tip Oxford by Bunting or the Original $30 Blucher Brogue made by Bartley, look in our windows today, and right side of each Original shoe you will see the Regal Reproduction for $6.60.

And if you step into the store, we will be glad to show you 25 other Styles made of Martin's of Glasgow Genuine Imported Scotch Grain.

LINDBLOM FACES HARRISON TODAY FOR PREP CROWN

Play at Soldiers' Field; Receipts to Charity.

Lindblom and Harrison, a couple of pocket young football teams, will endeavor to embarrass one another this afternoon at Soldiers' field in the annual game for the City league championship. Their efforts will benefit institute children of the public schools, as the proceeds of the game are to be turned over to the Children's aid society, an auxiliary of the Chicago Woman's club. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

Lindblom and Harrison each has a different reason for its present modesty. With the former it's a case of remembering last year, when the south siders went into the championship game almost immodest about themselves. A shy young Schurz team took it out of them by the score of 6 to 0. Coach Moore's boys have reformed this year, and with a record of nine straight victories, including a practice decision over Harrison, they're out to redeem themselves.

Harrison New to Finals.

Harrison's shrinking proclivities are another matter. They'll feel naturally out of place in the presence of a big crowd on a big field because it's been many a day since a Harrison eleven has advanced this far in the course of a City league season. This year's team has a record of seven victories, two defeats, and one tie.

Coach Bob Daugherty and his team may be modest, but not to the point where they aren't confident of emerging Lindblom. And they've done it before, as Lindblom well remembers. In 1923, when both were members of the central section, a great Lindblom team was on the verge of a sectional championship, when Harrison dropped in and handed them a 7 to 0 defeat. Subsequently Lindblom lost the playoff of a tie with Hyde Park and found itself out a game.

Harrison's Record.

Harrison started its season this year with a 31 to 0 victory over Wendell Phillips. Then it was tied by Fenger, south section champion which Lindblom overwhelmed last Saturday, 59 to 0. They dropped a 13 to 0 game to Morton of the Suburban league. Next came Lindblom. The Harrison line gave Lindblom the toughest battle it's had this year, and the game ended with Harrison on Lindblom's one yard line. That was Harrison's last appearance in the losers' column. Then followed decisive victories over Austin, McKinley, Marshall, Mooseheart, Crane and Lane.

The Harrison offensive is built around one Andy Pilney, who makes a specialty of running anywhere from fifty yards to the length of the field for a touchdown. He is ably assisted by Capt. Steve Kubic, George Baxa, and Steve Remias. The line includes Morris Klein and Jim Horvath, ends; George Hecko and Abie Shper, tackles; Nick Choronzuk and Frank Kopczak, guards, and Jack Diebel center. Among others who will be present are Louis Rabetz and Frank Leonetti, backs, and John Kabat and Sidney Cohen, linesmen.

Ticket sales for the charity championship game exceeded the 10,000 mark yesterday afternoon, according to A. H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education for the board of education, who is in charge of arrangements for the game.

FOUR SOUTHERN LEAGUE LEADERS TO PLAY TODAY

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The five surviving contenders for the Southwest conference football title will be reduced to three after two battles tomorrow.

The maddest scramble the circuit ever has experienced—only a pair of teams definitely eliminated after more than a month of conference play—will be straightened out considerably when Texas Christian university engages Baylor at Fort Worth, and Southern Methodist challenges Rice at Houston.

Each of the quartet goes into tomorrow's engagement hopeful of a shot at the crown. Texas Christian holds the inside track, needing victories in its last two games to clinch the title. Southern Methodist and Baylor can tie for the top if things go right and Baylor is not without hope.

The powerful University of Texas Longhorns have nothing to do until Thanksgiving when they encounter the Texas Aggies.

BATTLING BOZO VS. PANTALEO ON COLISEUM CARD

Battling Bozo of Birmingham, Ala., will make his northern debut at the Chicago Coliseum next Friday night in the eight round semi-final to the Mickey Walker-K. O. Christner match. It was announced yesterday by Promoter George Ferguson and Matchmaker Jim Mullen. Bozo will meet Paul Pantaleo, the south side Italian, who whipped Nando Tassi of Italy at the last Coliseum show.

Among those Bozo has beaten are Roy Wallace, Yale Okun, the New Yorker who stopped Dick Daniels twice; Lefty Jimmy Byrne, Emmett Rocco, Michael McTigue, Mike Maurer, and Tony Marullo.

Walker, who has been training at Mme. Bey's camp in New Jersey, will arrive here Monday to finish his work for Christner. The Akron rubber man with the iron fist will arrive the same day.

Dartmouth Eleven Will Hold Workout Here Today

The undefeated Dartmouth football team will arrive in Chicago at noon today and will practice at 2 p. m. at the Oak Park stadium. The Dartmouth Alumni association of Chicago and suburbs will give the team a dinner at the Oak Park club at 6:30 p. m. At 9 p. m. the team will leave to play Stanford at Palo Alto, Cal., on Nov. 29.

BY HOWARD BARRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 21.—Football followers from all corners of Wisconsin and Minnesota are gathered here tonight, filling the hotels and giving the town a holiday air. They are here because it has become tradition, al for Wisconsin and Minnesota fans to assemble each season and watch the teams of the two universities renew one of the country's oldest gridiron rivalries.

Thirty-nine times these elevens have met and on 21 of those occasions the Gophers have been victorious. The Badgers have won 13 times and five of the games ended with the score tied.

Tomorrow afternoon twenty-two husky young men will clash on Camp Randall field to determine which will emerge triumphant from the 40th engagement.

Game Figured as Tossup.

The consensus is that the game is a tossup, in spite of the fact that Wisconsin showed greater strength early in the season.

And while Minnesota meets Wisconsin it is particularly true that records mean nothing. The Badgers had good reason to take note of this two seasons ago, when an apparently inferior Minnesota team kept them away from the conference title by a 6 to 0 upset.

Wisconsin, considered a title contender early this season, is sufficiently unstrung by recent defeats to wipe out any theoretical advantages it might have over its adversary. The game is certain to be stubbornly contested, because both teams are strong on defense, while neither has shown great offensive ability. It looks like a battle between two stout hearted lines, with the possibility of a well executed forward pass deciding the issue.

Victory Will Make Season Success.

A victory in tomorrow's game will go far toward making the season a success for the team which achieves it. It would salve Wisconsin's feelings, which were injured rather severely when early title hopes went glimmering in mid season, and it would compensate Minnesota for what has been a rather drab season.

The 30,000 spectators who will be on hand tomorrow will see several well known boys carry the colors of Wisconsin for the last time. Capt. Milton Gantenbein will close his football career. So will Milo Lubratovich, who will be playing at tackle, right beside his captain, and Milo is considered as good at that position as anybody in the Big Ten. Swiderski, Behr, Lusby, Oman, Casey, Engelke, Hayes and Frisch also will be making their last bows.

Crisler Wants Firm Field.

The Gophers arrived this morning and one of Coach Crisler's first questions was: "Is the field muddy?" He wants a firm footing, as he is placing most of his hope on a speedy running attack. The gridiron has been kept covered during the recent rains and should be in good condition for tomorrow's battle, barring further precipitation. Nothing of this sort is expected for the weatherman forecasts cold and cloudy weather.

Against the Gophers' running game, the Badgers are expected to pit a passing attack. Coach Thistlethwaite has four men who are adept at throwing — Lusby, Oman, McGuire and Schneller. On the receiving end will be Behr, Gantenbein, and Casey or Jensen.

IOWA MEETS NEBRASKA

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—University of Iowa and Nebraska football squads today shared Iowa stadium for a final light practice before the two teams in the final grid battle of the season tomorrow.

Most Valuable Player.

Dear Harve: There is one player of whom we are not hearing enough in connection with his value to his team. This is Wesley Fesler of Ohio State, who this season has been more valuable to the Buckeyes than were Grange, Lowry, Friedman, Rouse, Bennett or Glassgow—your previous winners—to their respective teams. Coach Willaman, in need of back field strength, made this young man a full back in attack despite protests from downtown coaches, who had another candidate for the job. Fesler had been all-American end for two years. After the Ohio game Coach Thistlethwaite of Wisconsin said Fesler is undoubtedly the greatest defensive end of all time. He does the team's punting, passing, signal calling, and much of the ball carrying, excelling in all these departments.

De Paul Shifts Back Field for San Francisco

University of San Francisco's football team will arrive here this morning and will immediately go to Soldiers' field to hold its final drill for the game with De Paul university here tomorrow. The far westerners come here with five consecutive victories over Pacific coast teams.

More than 25,000 tickets have been sold for the contest, which is regarded as the most important on De Paul's schedule this season.

TIGERS TO SEND STRONG TEAM AGAINST CARDS

The Cardinals will not be playing a league game tomorrow when they clash with the Memphis Tigers at Comiskey park, but they will face one of the most powerful professional aggregations in the country. Memphis, which hopes to become a member of the National league next year, boasts a collection of football stars from coast to coast.

Among teams which have been beaten by Memphis this year is Ironton, which previously downed the New York Giants. Memphis also defeated the Green Bay Packers last season. The Tigers have scored 116 points in six games this year.

Few teams possess the diversified attack that Memphis offers. Tony Holm, at full back is a talented line plunger, as well as a consistent punter. Cowboy Woodruff and Banker are speedy open field runners as well as passers. Applewhite is the best pass snagger on the team.

Former Notre Dame Star Named St. Viator Coach

Bourbonnais, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special]—Bucky Dahman, former Notre Dame football and basketball star, has been appointed head coach at St. Viator college here to succeed Sam McAllister, resigned. Dahman has been coaching the St. Viator back field this fall, having previously coached at St. Louis university.

McAllister has gone to Alabama Tech, where he will be head basketball and baseball coach and assistant football coach. He has been at St. Viator since 1928.

Elgin High Eleven Beats Elgin Academy, 13 to 10

Elgin High school defeated Elgin academy, midwest prep football conference champions, at Elgin last night, in a charity game, 13 to 10. Duvall, academy full back, was the individual star of the game, scoring a touchdown and 45 yard place kick. The high school won in the fourth quarter by recovering a fumbled punt and driving over for a touchdown. The game was the first played between the two schools in 20 years.

Don't Forget to Feed Junco When He Comes to Call

BY BOB BECKER.

One of the pleasures of the recent pheasant season in the state of Illinois was the opportunity that it brought to renew an acquaintance with junco, the cheery little snowbird that comes into Chicagoland each autumn to spend the winter with us.

When we were hiking across the fields a few days ago to see if Jack, the spaniel, couldn't stir up a cock pheasant or two, we turned to a long hedge of tall weeds, scrub willows, and raspberry bushes. Out of this cover there flushed a flock of slate colored, gray breasted birds with white outer tail feathers which flashed into prominence when the birds took to wing.

These little birds were our old friends the snowbirds or juncos. Sharp wintry winds and snow sent them into the central states several weeks ago. Many of them will be with us all winter. Although timid, shy, little neighbors they can be induced to eat crumbs and seeds right at your back door.

We can recall someone describing the juncos as "little gray robed monks and nuns" which is certainly correct. They are robed in gray, with gray on the breast like a vest, and white underparts. Alert, vivacious and not quarrelsome like the pestiferous English sparrow, you can depend on seeing the junco during the winter and he's such an interesting bird neighbor that he should be cultivated.

When the snow has buried all the weed seeds and the berries on which they feed, the snowbirds will come into yards to accept a few crumbs. This winter look closely at the birds which take your crumbs, because like as not you will see some of these snowbirds which, although shy, will become intimate with you because of the pressure of hunger.

Coming when most of our other birds have gone south for the winter the snowbird ought to get a strong welcome from the bird fans. Dark leaden skies, above, sharp winds, snow on the ground—that's the background for this bird visitor, who actually carries in the colors of his plumage the gray of overcast skies and the white of the snow.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Big Ten standings and past records for the season will be thrown into the discard here tomorrow afternoon when Purdue meets Indiana in the 33d renewal of the annual gridiron classic. Both elevens have shown a marked disregard for "dope" when they take the field against each other, and the series for the old oaken bucket has come to be known as one in which being stamped the favorite means nothing.

Purdue, with one of the greatest running offensives in the country, expects to have its full strength to throw the Crimson, while Indiana has spent two full weeks developing a surprise offense for the special benefit of the Boilermakers that is expected to product plenty of fireworks.

Kizer Wary of Surprise.

Although the Boilermakers have been established as topheavy favorites for the game, by virtue of their record for the season, which shows only a single one point defeat, Coach Noble Kizer doesn't like the "setup."

"People seem to take it for granted that we should win easily," he said. "But they seem to forget that Indiana has made a specialty of throwing surprise parties. And if you don't think that Indiana's surprise parties are quite some functions, ask Northwestern. It can tell you about three affairs thrown in 1927, 1928, and 1929. Indiana has a lot more football in its system than has come out this season, an it's due to come out against us."

Kizer expects Pat Page, who had an open date last Saturday, to spring a new type of offensive for the game, using an open attack with frequent passes in an effort to roll up an early score and demoralize the Boilermakers.

Indiana will arrive here tomorrow morning on a special train from Bloomington that will carry a host of rooters in addition to the squad and the Crimson band.

The old oaken bucket which will be at stake in the battle already is adorned with four "P" links in a row, and Indiana is anxious to break the monotony of the chain.

HOOSIERS LEAVE TODAY.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Contrary to previous plans the Indiana university football squad did not leave for the Purdue camp tonight for the traditional battle of the two state teams tomorrow. The Crimson outfit will board a special train here tomorrow morning with band and rooters. The final practice of the season included a brief drill followed by a lecture on defense.

Loyola university ended its football season by battling to a 7 to 7 tie with South Dakota State at Loyola stadium last night. Five thousand persons saw the game. This was the final intercollegiate contest for eleven Loyola players.

South Dakota Scores.

Loyola's score came in the third period after the Ramblers' running attack had advanced the ball 68 yards. Durkin started the proceedings with a 28 yard run around South Dakota State's right end. Tom Howland and Les Molloy combined for a first down through the Dakota line. Howland swept wide around his left end for the score. Frank Lutzenkirchen made the extra point from placement.

Schultz and Nelson, who starred for the visitors, made two consecutive first downs in the early minutes of the fourth period. Off tackle smashes carried the ball to the 5 yard line. On fourth down Schultz fumbled, recovered, and tossed to Nelson behind the goal for a touchdown. Rishol's kick from placement gave the Dakotans a tie.

Loyola to 15 Yard Line.

COCHRAN ADDS TO LEAD BY BEATING HOPPE, 300 TO 279

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Welker Cochran, the Hollywood, Cal., challenger, increased his lead over Willie Hoppe, the titleholder, tonight by winning the tenth block of their match for the 18.1 balk line billiard championship, 300 to 279. Cochran now has a margin of 3,000 to 2,267.

For the ninth time in ten blocks Cochran had a run of over 100 when he wound up tonight with an unfinished run of 157. It was the fourth time in the match he had passed the former record run of 140. Hoppe, running 154 in the ninth and final inning, beat the mark for the second time.

As in the afternoon block which Hoppe won, 549 to 300, Cochran had difficulty reaching the form that had carried him through the early part of the match. But after Hoppe made his fine cluster, the challenger came back with an even better one and left the balls in good position for the start of tomorrow's play.

THIS nation is over a hundred and fifty years old. Most of those years have been pretty prosperous. In a few trade has boomed. But in some others there was depression. All the while the main trend has been upward. In 1907, in the boom before the panic, people thought that prosperity had gone as far as it could. And yet even in 1930—an off year—the national income will be treble what it was in 1907.

In off-years it is difficult to believe that the future will be better than the best in the past. And yet it invariably works out that way.

Take 1894, for example, a year of severe depression after a panic. There were soup houses in Chicago, little corn in the country, and Coxey's army on the march. Crepe was the popular national textile. The next year there was a revival all around, a boom in iron and steel, stocks soaring.

Or take 1908 if you will. It was another year of depression after another stock market panic. Cash was as scarce as hens' teeth. The aristocrats among American corporations had to have receivers. Gloom was the predominant American emotion. But late in the year business began to pick up, and by 1909 industry and trade were better than ever.

And again in 1921. Prices went down like an elevator. Unemployment was the worst ever seen. Never again were we to have prosperity. Wrong again. Business began to pick up early the next year, and the ensuing years made previous peaks look like dwarfed hills.

1930 is another of those off-years. Again there is unemployment. And pessimists who haven't been able to get a hearing in a decade are again catching ears.

Don't believe a word of it. There isn't any bogy-man. This is just one of those transition years which have been sandwiching themselves in between years of prosperity. Maybe the pickup won't be evident this week. But this depression has about run its course, if history is a guide. And the country is sounder and stronger than ever before to recuperate. We have always before gotten out of the slough of despond and this time the conditions are more favorable than ever before for prompt emergence. The growth that lies ahead should be greater than that which lies behind.

The new upswing will come along in due time. Growth and prosperity are two normal American conditions. Those who swim with the tide will likely feel the current before much more history is written. The progress to better times can be expedited, however. Those who would help business back to prosperity can do so by commencing at once to buy their full normal quota of goods.

Are You Doing Your Part to Hasten the Return of Prosperity?

REYNOLDS FINDS BIG BANKS NOT CURBING LOANS

Achieve Most Liquid Position in Months.

BY O. A. MATHER.

In contrast to the banking situation in the south, with its barrage of bank failures this week, the great Chicago and New York banks are in the most liquid position in many months. And, contrary to recent rumors, these big northern institutions are not seeking to enforce liquidation of loans on securities by their customers. These and other comments were made yesterday by Arthur Reynolds, chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, Chicago's billion dollar bank.

"Probably because of rumor and gossip, an unreasoning fear has spread that vast liquidation of collateralized bank loans is in prospect," Mr. Reynolds said. "Word has spread that many holders of securities have transferred their accounts from brokerage houses to their banks and that such loans must eventually be liquidated through selling of their collateral. There is no truth to such gossip.

Looking for Loans.

"The record of our bank shows that our loans on collateral, both to brokers and our customers, have declined steadily in recent months. We are entirely satisfied with our collateralized loans and the bank is in an unusually liquid condition. Money is almost a drug on the market. Therefore, not only are we not seeking to have our customers reduce well secured collateral loans but we are even looking for additional good loans.

"On the other hand, our unsecured loans, which consist mainly of commercial lines of credit to businesses and industries, recently have increased moderately. And we are entirely satisfied with this condition, because we believe it shows that business is turning upward after the decline of a year and longer. In fact, all our banking indices point to a turn in trade and industry, and while recovery may be a slow and gradual process, still all the factors inspire us with conservative optimism. The situation of the big New York banks is similar to our own, and they likewise have the same feeling of moderate optimism."

Better Trade Sentiment.

Although this week has brought little tangible change in the general situation, the weekly mercantile reviews again note an access of chcerful sentiment.

"Immediate surface fluctuations in the volume of trade are of less significance than the underlying movements which will determine the eventual trend." Dun's review says. "The level of activity does not vary greatly from week to week. Seasonal influences are operating both ways, stimulating demand in some lines and depressing it in other quarters, and the main interest centers in probable developments in the longer future. The disquieting element of commodity price unsettlement continues and a correction of this phase would do much toward promoting the hoped-for revival."

Has Retarding Effect.

"In trade distribution warm weather had a retarding effect on sales both at wholesale and retail, which still show a considerable lack of resiliency, while there have been some setbacks in industry which seems to fairly balance what forward movements have developed." Bradstreet's review says. "Standing out prominently, however, have been the continuance of the advancing trend in the securities market, the rally in wheat and sympathetic advances in other grains."

Commercial failures this week rose to 569, compared with 495 last week and 472 a year ago. Every geographical section showed an increase, except the west, while compared with a year ago every section showed increases. Bank clearings this week totaled $8,-$12,742,000, a decline of 42.7 per cent from a year ago.

Recession in Building.

Some recession in building construction also is evident. The F. W. Dodge corporation reports new construction awards in thirty-seven states east of the Rocky mountains totaled $62,198,-900 for the week ended Nov. 14, bringing the daily rate for November to $11,756,000, compared with a daily rate of $12,972,000 in October, and $15,641,-000 in November, 1929. New construction thus far this year has totaled $4,151,826,000, compared with $6,211,-857,000 for the same period last year.

Production of electricity during the second week of this month fell 5.1 per cent below a year ago but was still seven-tenths of 1 per cent above the corresponding week in 1928, according to the National Electric Light association.

Rising Market Boosts Cost of Chicago Seats

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The rise in stocks in the last ten days or so was not reflected in the price of Chicago exchange seats until yesterday, when a membership brought $15,000, an advance of $3,000 from the previous sale.

The market's recent upward course has revived interest in the seats which traditionally wanes when security values are declining. Exchange officials say that inquiries from prospective purchasers in the last week have been more numerous than during any six weeks' period since last spring, when the market was discounting the better times that were alleged to have been around the corner.

Four Bids Placed.

The lowest price seats have sold at this year was $12,000, as compared with a top of $45,000. At the present time there are four bids in, ranging from $13,000 to $14,000, and the lowest price a seat is offered at is $20,000.

The market yesterday gave a fairly good account of itself. The volume of trading was slightly reduced from the previous day. It was the motor and accessory shares that again enjoyed the most popularity. Net gains in the group ranged from a fraction in the case of Cord to a point and a fraction in Bendix and Auburn.

The increase in demand for the motor stocks in the last week has challenged the leadership of the utility shares as the volume headliners. Cities Service turned over in comparatively small volume here yesterday and the price was steady around 20½. Insull shares, however, have shown no decline in activity. Middle West and Insull Utility were actively dealt in yesterday and each added slightly to recent improvement.

Among the miscellaneous issues gains were chalked up for Swift International, Libby, Grigsby, and U. S. Radio. Majestic was easy, finishing the session a fraction off from the previous day's final quotation.

Liquidation Ceases.

The heavy liquidation in Bancokentucky which sent that issue reeling down in the early trading this week has dried up, at least temporarily. Less than 3,000 shares of the stock changed hands and the price was unchanged at 50 cents a share.

A dispatch from Cincinnati yesterday said that counsel of the Bancokentucky company had advised stockholders that they do not come under the double liability classification, as they are stockholders of a corporation and not the individual banks which it controls. The company, however, has double liability for the bank stocks which it holds, it was stated.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Carnegie Coal corporation, capitalized at $6,000,000, today took over the coal holdings of the Carnegie Coal company, which formerly was owned by John A. Bell, coal operator and banker, who was sentenced to prison several years ago as a result of the failure of the Carnegie Trust company. The value of the properties of the coal company once were appraised at $13,-000,000.

Twelve thousand acres of coal lands in Allegheny and Washington counties have been sold to the Manor Real Estate and Trust company of Philadelphia for $1,000,000 to liquidate taxes and other debts of the reorganized coal company.

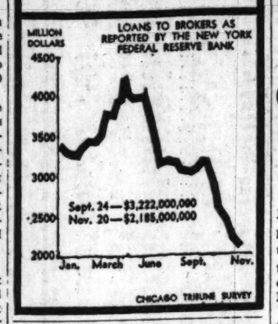
SINCE SEPTEMBER BROKERS' LOANS HAVE DROPPED MORE THAN A BILLION DOLLARS



STATES COPPER PRICE MARK UP NIPS RECOVERY

The recent mark up of copper from 9.25 to 12 cents a pound, hailed as a sign of recovery, comes in time to nip in the bud the first hopeful sign of demand, says the Alexander Hamilton institute. As soon as a passing fear of higher prices ceases to operate, stocks will again tend to accumulate, it says.

For the first time in many months October saw a demand only slightly below production. Stocks had risen from 3,000 tons in April, 1929, to 365,-000 tons. At 9.25 cents a pound, producers were laying off and consumers were beginning to take interest. Then the situation changed. Producers marked up the price of copper from 9.25 cents per pound to 12 cents.

"With conditions nearly right to enable 9.25 cent copper to balance production with consumption, the marking up of the price to 12 cents threatens to postpone the genuine solution of the copper problem, a solution which was apparently imminent before the producers' recent action," says the institute.

"It is therefore quite likely that as a result of 12 cent copper, the heavy stocks on hand will not show a reduction and will possibly show a further accumulation, according to the institute's current bulletin. This means, eventually, another period of price cutting and a prolongation of the unfavorable conditions that a little more patience might soon have overcome."

PLEDGES HOOVER BEST EFFORTS TO PROMOTE TRADE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—(AP)—His best efforts to promote trade relations between Argentina and the United States were pledged to President Hoover today by Ambassador Malbran, presenting his credentials.

The new ambassador fills a post which has been vacant since he occupied it for three months in 1928. He referred to the preinaugural visit of President Hoover to his country as one which always would be remembered. Presenting the greetings of President Uriburu, the ambassador said he would be aided by a deep love of his own country and a great respect inspired by that to which he came.

Sylvania Insurance Co. Holders to Vote on Merger

A special meeting of stockholders of Sylvania Insurance company will be held Dec. 1 to vote on the proposed merger of the company with the Globe Insurance company.

LEGISLATION IS ASKED TO ALLOW VOTE UPON POOL

Compulsory Plan Is Proposed in Canada

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Legislation to permit a plebiscite before spring on a proposal to require all grain growers to join the Canadian grain pool was demanded today by the United Farmers of Manitoba, in convention here.

All other steps toward recovery from the crisis in the wheat market were held in abeyance, but wheat prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange recorded advances for the third successive day. Cash wheat returned to 63 cents, making up last Tuesday's slump of 8⅝ cents a bushel. May futures reached 8 cents above Tuesday's low.

Plan Single Organization.

If the requested plebiscite favors the compulsory pool plan the convention decided to act at its next session to set up a single organization controlled by the growers themselves to handle all Manitoba grain.

The action of the Manitoba farmers followed recent approval of the 100 per cent pool plan by the growers of Saskatchewan. Farmers of Alberta, the third prairie province, have not yet acted on the plan.

The convention formulated a request to the dominion government for a currency commission "whose duty shall be to keep the standard of value (the dollar) stable." In support of the proposal it was pointed out that the Canadian dollar has fluctuated between the extremes of 132 and 41 in value since 1897.

REVEALS PROPOSALS.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Montreal Gazette published a dispatch from Ottawa today saying the proposals prairie premiers recently presented to federal authorities at Ottawa were these:

1. That the government put the minimum price of wheat at 70 cents.

2. That it guarantee the banks against loss on account of the wheat pool.

3. That it establish a stabilization board similar to the stabilization corporation of the United States.

The dispatch declares Acting Prime Minister Sir George Perley, after cabled communication with Premier Bennett in England, turned down the proposals, but that when the premiers appealed to him Mr. Bennett agreed to reconsider their requests.

Says Agreement May Soon Be Reached on Rate Request

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Dow, Jones & Co. says that western railroads recently have been conferring on the details of an application for an increase in rates and it is probable that agreement soon will be reached and an application will be made to the interstate commerce commission requesting a horizontal increase in rates, subject to certain exceptions.

A request for a 5 per cent horizontal increase in rates was made by the western roads in 1926, the request being based on "the existing financial emergency." The application was denied by the commission on the ground that "no emergency existed."

Says Place in Finance Won by Investment Management

BY SCRUTATOR.

It is an axiom that there are a great many more people in the United States with sizable sums of money in their possession, or with securities bought with this money, than there are capable investors. Probably a great majority of investors would be better off if they hired some honest and efficient manager who knows his financial background and gave him full sway than they are in trying with small knowledge to select their own investment by the expensive trial and error method.

Both investment advice and investment management are available in many forms. Trust companies and investment trusts, the first for many years in this country and the second for a decade or so, have sold management for fees. Individual investment counselors have sold advice.

Spread Into Middle West.

The investment trusts and the counselors arose in the east. They have spread into the middle west, but the counselors in particular have not had the vogue they enjoy on the seaboard. As it has worked out, the counselor sells only advice and his clients follow it or not at their own discretion. Between him and the investment trust, which takes full charge of the funds invested in its own stocks and reinvests them, there is a wide gap. A minority stockholder in an investment trust really buys management and his recourse in getting out must be taken by selling it in the form of stock shares.

Into the gap spoken of there has come an intermediary form, termed inadequately investment management As against the mere advice of the counselor, it requires that the client sign a power of attorney allowing the management full sway in buying and selling securities.

Variations are allowed and respected in the agreement; an investor may specify that no foreign bonds, for instance, shall go into his account, or that all investments be in common stocks. But in shifting securities within the stated limits the management does not first notify of intention; it reports when the transactions have been completed.

Cites Compensation.

As against the mingling of the stockholders' investments, as in the investment trust, the new management factor keeps each account separately and allows the investor to revoke the agreement at will. He gets back his own securities on demand. It is a particularly flexible form for handling investments. Charges vary in some degree, but about one-half of 1 per cent of the principal is close to the standard compensation of the management.

A number of the large investment banking firms have in the past year established departments of this kind in Chicago. According to C. K. Williamson of Lee, Higginson & Co., this investment management long since passed the experimental stage on the seaboard, and has a definite place in American finance.

Management Qualifications.

No attempt is made to guess the day to day fluctuations of the markets, and individual attention is given to whether maximum income or maximum future appreciation is to be the guiding factor with the management for each account.

Qualifications for the management, in general, are the same as for operators of investment trusts of good grade, or for trust management. Honesty so exact that it would scorn to push one of the house's own slow issues into the customers' accounts to their possible detriment would be a requisite. Efficiency, implying full facilities for gathering statistical information, would be another. Granted these, and the stipulation that the assets remain the individual property of the investor himself, which is made, this form of investment management would seem to have a large field.

SHOW STONE & WEBSTER NET FOR 12 MONTHS

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Stone & Webster, Inc., today reported for the 12 months ended Sept. 30 consolidated net profit of $6,201,714, equal to $3.70 a share on the average number of common shares outstanding during the period. In addition a profit of $794,844 for the period, realized from the sale of securities acquired from the predecessor company on organizing, was carried direct to surplus. Including this item, total net profit for the period amounted to $6,996,558, or $4.17 a share.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., for the 28 weeks ended July 12 reported net loss of $657,030, including profit and loss credits of $96,736 representing income on pictures which previously were the subject of charges to surplus or special reserve because of excess book values as of April 21, 1928. This compares with net profit of $542,336 in the 28 weeks ended July 13 last year.

Recent Warm Weather Retards Meat Demands

The approach of Thanksgiving with its emphasis on poultry, coupled with warm weather over much of the country, tended to restrict the demand for leading meat lines, and most markets were slow. Lambs, after a slow start, showed improvement and firmed at the close. Foreign business was fairly good. This is reported by the weekly Armour & Co. review on the packing trade. Plentiful supplies and comparatively low prices on other meats greatly restricted the demand for beef, but with exceptionally light receipts the live cattle market on the whole was maintained on a steady basis.

Blooded Live Stock Sells High at Kansas City Show

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21. — The stock market took another dozen or so bank failures on the chin without batting an eyelash today.

Except for a little wabbly spell in the early dealings—due to overnight selling orders growing out of the reaction late Thursday—and a slight setback toward the last due to realizing by overcautious traders, prices were on the up and up all day, and a whole string of new highs for the recovery were made. Gains of 1 and 2 points were the rule for active issues, with a dozen or so specialties, some of the rails, and a few motor accessories running ahead for 2 to 5 points and better.

Strength Is General.

The strength of the market was so general and so pronounced in face of generally discouraging news budget such as the showings of new building operations and the electric sendout of public utilities in addition to the fresh bank failures as to suggest artificial support. For, in spite of the splendid showing which the market has been making for the last ten days or so, sentiment in the street still favors the sidelines with purchases being recommended as a rule only on the recessions. Then, too, the end of the week has come to be popularly regarded as a bad time to get in on either side, regardless of which faction is in the saddle.

There has been talk for several days that the bull party was out to do some year end window dressing as its contribution to the "back to prosperity" movement, a report which, if true, ought to make for a better market for the balance of 1930. Be that as it may the fact remains that prices push on and on from day to day, utterly ignoring outside developments of every kind.

And the banner bearers of the group continue to show the way. United States Steel reached the highest levels on the recovery today, touching 149½. American Can rose to 120, as compared with its recent low of 107. New York Central reached 140, a level 12⅝ points above its bottom for the year. Westinghouse went to 106⅝, an advance of some 2 points, and General Electric rose a couple of points, to 51⅞.

Rails Advance.

Decision of the Association of Railway Executives to seek amelioration of conditions that have long been considered onerous in the railroad field had an instant reflection on the exchange, where almost every railroad stock on the list made gains that ranged from fractions to 5¼ points.

The strength in the railroad shares was credited partly to the ending of forced liquidation on the part of institutions which feared that the securities of certain roads might not continue to be legal investments for savings banks because of poor earnings this year, but in the main traders were motivated by the decision of the railway executives.

The advance in the railroad issues resulted in a gain of $2.38 in the average price of 25 representative carriers as computed by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. This was the greatest advance made by these averages on any day since July 10, when they gained $2.62.

The resumption of the advance by the motor and motor equipment stocks was featured by the sharp upturn in Electric Auto-Lite, which spurted more than 6 points before it ran into realizing. Nearly 5 points of the gain was held through to the finish.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

Officials of the Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants in St. Louis state that employés are being recalled as rapidly as production can be stepped up. Orders for new models are reported to be coming in faster than they can be filled, and 4,500 will be at work and operations at 75 per cent of capacity by Dec. 1.

Thompson Products corporation has received an order for 200,000 automobile valves from the International Harvester company. Other large orders received recently were from Chrysler, Marmon, and Oakland. This Cleveland firm reports sales of replacement parts slightly on the increase and export orders steady.

Dow, Jones & Co. reports that a 10 per cent increase in operations at the Sharon Steel Hoop company plant at Sharon, Pa., has helped advance mill schedules in the Shenango valley for the first time in a month.

Orders for coal placed by the Canadian Pacific railroad as a relief measure will double the pay roll of 2,000 miners in the Crow's Nest district of Edmonton, Canada.

The Chesapeake and Ohio railroad reported an increase of $121,249 in net operating income for October over the like month last year. Net operating income last month was $4,456,718, against $4,434,464 for the corresponding month of 1929. The figures included in the Hocking Valley railway.

The government's gold reserve has crossed the hundred million dollar mark. The department of finance announced that the reserve on Oct. 31 was $107,196,000. On June 30, 1929, it was $6,646,225.

Establishment of a Canadian plant and dealer outlets throughout the Dominion of Canada has been effected by the Hammond Clock company, F. H. Redmond, general manager, announced yesterday. Working arrangements have been completed under which De Forest Crosley Radio company, Ltd., has formed a subsidiary, Hammond Company of Canada, Ltd., to manufacture and distribute electric clocks under the Hammond patents.

Morris Markin, president of Checker Cab Manufacturing corporation, says the factory force at Kalamazoo, Mich., has been more than doubled.

The New York Shipbuilding company, a subsidiary of the American Brown Boveri Electric corporation, will lay the keel for the first of two passenger vessels, said to be the largest to be built in this country, on Dec. 4. Both ships are to be constructed for the United States Lines and will be placed in the North Atlantic passenger trade.

Arrangements have been made for the sale of a New York Stock exchange membership for $231,000, an increase of $5,000 from the previous sale.

Net earnings of the John R. Thompson company, operator of a chain of restaurants in Chicago and other cities, for the first ten months of this year are reported more than sufficient to cover the full year's dividend of $3 a share on the capital stock.

Mo. Pacific Withdraws $38,000,000 Stock Petition

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today permitted the Missouri Pacific railroad to withdraw its application for permission to issue $38,000,000 in new common stock, incident to its proposed plan of paying accumulated preferred dividends. Counsel for the railroad said a new financing arrangement might be considered in the future, but was not practicable at present.

There was a substantial reduction in supplies of all classes of live stock on yesterday's market and gains were scored in most kinds. Cattle sold to slightly better advantage, considering the quality available, while lambs advanced fully 25c to the highest point since early last week. Hogs slipped back 10@20c after an active 15@25c higher opening.

Combined arrivals of cattle, hogs, and sheep at the 20 leading markets yesterday at 139,000 compare with 150,000 the previous Friday and with 175,000 a year ago. During the first five days of the week the 20 markets handled 1,092,000 animals, a shortage of nearly 200,000, compared with the first five days of last week.

Packers balked at paying 15@25c higher prices for yesterday's supply of hogs and a reaction followed a lull in trading soon after the opening. Bulk of sales for the day were 10@20c above the previous day, the extreme top showing 15c advance at $8.40; while the general average gained 15c at $8.15. The clearance was slower than on Thursday's session and 4,000 were estimated left at the pens.

March Hogs Offered at $8.90.

There were offers of March contracts for $8.90 on the hog futures market yesterday, but the highest bid at the close was $8.60. December light were offered at $8.25 and bid $8.10. January contracts were offered at $8.60 and bid $8.30. On the "to arrive" market mediums for the delivery were bid $8.00.

Yesterday's meager supply of 1,800 cattle changed hands quickly at strong prices, the clearance being the best in several weeks for Friday. As usual late in the week, quality was lacking and the top for load lots stopped at $9.45. Ten steers averaging 1,024 lbs, however, reached $11.50. Yearlings are closing weak to 25c lower for the week, while medium and weighty steers are steady to 25c higher. Butcher stock is in line with the low spot of last week.

Top Lambs Bring $8.50.

Fat lambs sold freely at the advance yesterday, colder weather adding zest to competition for choice grades. Medium and weighty stock shared in the full strength during the scramble for numbers. Choice native and fed western lambs reached $8.50, the peak, while bulk of good grades sold around $8.25.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for Monday are estimated from 40,000 to 67,000. J. T. Agar marked 67,000, F. Gehrmann and W. T. Reneker 65,000, C. Southwick 60,000, G. W. Chandler 56,000, S. Lund, F. M. Sherwood and A. G. Welhener 55,000, R. B. Ellis and H. Williams 54,000, W. C. White and E. S. Waterbury 53,000, J. M. Waters 49,000, F. W. Young 48,000, F. Knutsen, H. Pattison and J. T. Brown 45,000, and C. Daley 40,000.

COTTON PRICES SAG

Cotton prices moved within a narrow sagging range yesterday and closed around the lowest of the day. The market started lower and finished with losses of 7 to 9 points on futures in Chicago, 3 to 8 points in New Orleans and 10 to 11 points off in New York. Spot market was 5 points lower in New York at 10.85c, with New Orleans unchanged at 10.60c, Galveston 10.65c and Houston 10.60c. Liverpool was 6 points lower at the close with spot sales of 4,000 bales.

The census report on ginnings to Nov. 14, while larger than expected, had but little influence. The aggregate was 11,962,304 bales against 15,500,000 bales last year. The figures were interpreted by a few cotton specialists as suggesting the possibility of a final increase in the crop figures. Hester's estimate on cotton brought into sight for the week was 500,000 bales against 537,000 bales last year. Spinners' takings for the week was 380,000 bales compared with 376,000 bales a week ago and 476,000 bales last year. The visible supply increased 210,000 bales against 333,000 bales a week ago and 61,000 bales last year. The total visible is 8,064,000 bales against 6,132,000 bales last year. Prices follow:

HOTEL CLUB BUYS LEASEHOLD ON PLYMOUTH COURT

Formerly Used as Chicago Automobile Building.

BY AL CHASE.

The International Geneva association, an organization of hotel and restaurant employés, with national headquarters in New York City, has acquired the leasehold estate and the store story building at 327 Plymouth court from R. J. Gunning for an undisclosed consideration. The building, for a number of years occupied by the Chicago Automobile club, occupies a site 25½x93.

The owner of the fee is Rose Rothschild. The ninety-nine year lease still has seventy-six years to run at a yearly ground rental of $4,250. The new lessee will occupy the building for club purposes. E. A. Teich of E. A. Teich & Co. represented the buyer. S. Z. Silversparre of R. J. Gunning & Co. represented the seller. Richard Klein and J. E. Beach were attorneys.

Add to Forest Preserve.

The forest preserve district trustees yesterday purchased an eight acre tract in Leyden township, at the northwest corne. of Bryn Mawr avenue and East River road, from Raymond Dorney for an indicated $16,000. They also brought 4.84 acres in Proviso township, on West 28th street, half way between Salt creek and the Des Plaines river, from Social Workers' Country club, for $27,744.

The Hollywood Park district trustees yesterday purchased a 30x122 foot lot on the east side of Christiana avenue, 221 feet south of Peterson avenue, from George M. Horne. The trustees now have acquired twenty-one lots in the block bounded by Peterson, Christiana, North Spaulding, and Thorndale avenues. They intend to use all but the frontage on Peterson, not yet acquired, for a park. Benson, Fitch & Helnemann were attorneys.

Buys 73d-Constance Corner.

Clarence A. Wenger bought the 12 flat building at the northeast corner of 73d and Constance, lot 124x41, from Dennis J. Hayes for an undisclosed price, subject to $53,000. The vacant, 125x75, at the southwest corner of 82d and Oglesby, and a bungalow at 7319 Phillips avenue were given in part payment by Mr. Wenger. J. A. Maloly & Co. represented Mr. Hayes and Gene R. Gans & Co. the buyer.

The Silver Creek Coal company has leased a portion of the Lawrence avenue frontage of its north side coal yard property at 1800 Lawrence avenue to Track Service Stations, Cincinnati, for a large filling and service station. The land is 80x150 and is slim from the front part of the yard, which has become more valuable for its purpose than for coal storage. The lease is for ten years at a gross rental reported to be $40,000 for the term. C. F. Durland & Co. were brokers.

WHEAT FIRMNESS REACTS AS HELP TO OTHER GRAINS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Evidence of the far reaching effect of stabilization operations in wheat is having on other agricultural commodities is rapidly accumulating. The removal of the menace of a continued decline in wheat appears to have brought bout a much more friendly feeling toward the buying side of corn and oats. At the high point yesterday corn was 6¼@6⅝c above the inside figure of Tuesday and oats had advanced 3⅜@4½c, the upturn adding around $175,000,000 to agricultural wealth if applied to the total estimated crops of the two grains.

While there have been practically no operations in the wheat market on the Chicago Board of Trade during the past two days, those in a position to know claimed there were liberal buying orders in the hands of brokers to take the December delivery at 73c, the same price as has prevailed of late. The limits on the May futures, however, were moved up ½c to 76@77c, representing an advance of 1c per bu in the limits since Wednesday.

Foreign Markets Firmer.

Not only American but also foreign grain markets have been affected by the stabilization operations by the farm board agency, and there was no evidence of the demoralization so much in evidence a week ago. Importing countries of Europe seem to have recovered their equilibrium, being credited with buying around 3,000,000 bu Manitoba wheat so far this week. Messages from the seaboard indicated that further bids were in the market.

There was little trading in the wheat market on the Chicago Board of Trade yestetrday. There was scattered commission house buying which lifted prices as much as 2c on the May future to 79⅞c for the new style, the highest since Nov. 8, with the finish well toward the top with net gains of ⅞@1¼c. Old December was 74⅜@74½c; March, 76⅜c; May, 78¼@78⅝c, and July, 75⅝@75¾c. Winnipeg was 1⅜@1¾c higher, with the December there closing at 62⅛c, or 6¾c above the low point of the week. Liverpool gained 1⅜@1¾d and Buenos Aires 2¼@2⅝c for the day.

A surprise was given to the trade in unexpected strength in durum wheat at Duluth. It advanced 2⅛@2½c, with the December selling within ⅝c of Minneapolis where only bread spring wheat can be delivered on future contracts. For a great many months durum has been selling at a big discount, but no explanation of the independent strength was received.

The situation regarding the Canadian wheat pool will remain in status quo as far as the government is concerned until Premier Bennett returns from Europe, according to reports from Ottawa yesterday. Mr. Bennett is expected to sail for Canada about Nov. 28. The pool was understood to have sold a large line of cash wheat to Canadian mills late Thursday, and the hedging of the latter grain was a factor in restricting the upturn at Winnipeg.

The sharp advance which has occured in corn futures during the last four days resulted in some of the local professionals and commission houses who bought in the recent break taking the selling side to secure profits. The offerings were readily absorbed, however, and the finish was at net gains of ⅝@1¼c, with December 74⅛@74¼c; March, 75⅛@76c; May, 77⅞@78c, and July, 73⅜@73⅝c.

There was evidence during the day that shorts in corn were becoming somewhat uneasy. Movement of cash grain is not increasing as rapidly as anticipated, and there was a much better demand from the New England territory, with sales of 135,000 bu reported by local handlers. In an extreme instance it was said that sales were for shipment as far ahead as next October. Buenos Aires closed 1@1¼c higher. The trade generally thinks that the tariff commission will recommend an increase in the import duty to 37½c which would have the effect of keeping Argentine grain out of the east, where it has been competing to some extent with shipments from the west.

Oats in Sharp Bulge.

A wave of buying swept over the oats market and carried the December 2¼c to a high of 34⅛c, the best since Nov. 1. Offerings were light on the way up, and shorts were forced to cover on a liberal scale. Closing trades were at net gains of 1⅝@2c, with December at 33¾c; March, 35⅛c, and May, 36⅝c@36⅞c. Cash interests were buyers of December early.

The rye market was inactive and held within a range of ¼@⅝c mainly in sympathy with wheat. Net gains of ½@¾c were recorded for the day, with December at 41¼c, and May at 46¼c. For the third straight day a moderate export business was reported in Canadian rye.

CASH-GRAIN NEWS

Foreigners have taken around 3,000,000 bu Manitoba wheat since Monday, according to estimates made by seaboard interests, and there were further orders under the market. Sales in all positions were estimated at 400,000 to 500,000 bu with a little rye taken by the continent.

Local handlers sold 67,000 bu wheat; 135,000 bu corn; 65,000 bu oats; 8,000 bu. rye, and 6,000 bu barley to the domestic trade with 55,000 bu oats sold to go to store. Purchases of 10,000 bu corn were made to arrive.

Offerings of cash oats are slightly larger, but the basis advanced ¼c on the future. No. 2 white brought 1@1½c over and No. 3 white, December price to ½c over.

WORLD'S-GRAIN MARKET-NEWS

The advance in wheat prices has created a better tone, but the trade remains nervous, although they say the government has virtually given them a "put" on December and May. They are afraid that some day the price may be withdrawn and an unexpected break result. Strong spots bring out selling pressure, and the pit gossip was that the farm board agency was selling new May wheat on the late bulge. The way the offerings were taken, however, created an impression that possibly some new buying power had come into the market.

Leading friends of the corn market are turning their attention more to the May delivery, as what little new buying comes in goes into that month. While the local bulls express themselves as believers in materially higher prices, they are doing most of their buying on breaks. It is noticeable that commission houses which were large buyers on the previous day were free sellers on the bulge.

Missouri river points are getting relatively more corn than any other markets, but primary receipts yesterday were only 702,000 bu, with shipments 369,000 bu. The open interest in December in Chicago is being steadily cut down, and is 15,466,000 bu of old and 1,553,000 bu new style.

Grain men who have not favored pool control point to the condition of the pool in northwest Canada, which indicates that the old method of handling grain through the exchanges is the best and safest in the long run. Pool control, they say, is all right when supplies are small and the reverse when big crops are raised.

Once more crashing to record breaking lows, butter futures experienced a drop of $200 per car on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. All deliveries struck new bottoms, November falling to 28⅝c, December to 28¾c, and January to 28½c. Egg futures lost ground, news being somewhat bearish. Net losses were ¼@¾c. Sales: butter, 303 cars; eggs, 161 cars. Receipts: butter, 10,417 tubs; eggs, 2,773 cases. Deliveries: butter, 8 cars; eggs, 3 cars. Prices follow:

COTTON GINS ACTIVE; OUTPUT EXCEEDS 1929

Cotton ginning in the United States to Nov. 14 aggregated 11,962,000 bales, compared with 11,890,000 bales last year and 11,820,000 bales in 1928. In 1926 12,956,000 bales were ginned. That private reports can reclassify parallel government returns a week or more in advance of the latter is shown by comparison of the government figures with statement issued about a week ago by E. H. Miller of James E. Bennett & Co., the government's figures being only 31,000 bales more than Bennett's returns, which were secured from gins all over the cotton belt. Returns on all the leading states vary slightly from government figures, and in some instances are practically the same. Detailed comparisons by states of the two reports follow:
